BRITISH LABORITES ACCEPT BOLSHEVIK 'NO ANNEXATIONS'

Appeal, Through Russia, to Teuton Peoples to Defy Dynasties and End Militarism.

ADOPT TROTZKY FORMULA

Favor International Control for Tropical Africa, "Self-Determination" for India.

CALL FOR RECIPROCITY

"We Adjure the Peoples of Central Europe to Declare Themselves," Says Message.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The British Labor Party, in a message to the Russian people and an appeal to the peoples of Central Europe, made public today, announced that the British people accepted the Russian principle of self-determination of peoples and no annexations or indemnities for the British Empire, particularly in the Middle East, Africa, and India, and adjured the Teutons "to declare themselves or make their Governments speak for them in answer to Russia and ourselves."

The family interests of dynasties or the desire of the Teutonic governing classes to dominate other classes and nationalities, it is declared, "must no more be suffered to prevent self-determination in Central Europe, and thereby imperil it in Europe as a whole, than the interests of British imperialism or British capitalism must be suffered to do elsewhere."

The text of the message, which was issued by the Labor Party in conjunction with the Parliamentary Committee of the Trades Union Congress, reads:

"We have reached a crisis in the war. The negotiations at Brest-Litovsk have been interrupted because the Germans have refused to admit the principle of self-determination of peoples and the doctrine of no annexations. In thus acting the Central Powers are speaking clearly in the name of a militarist State.

"In this crisis the British people must speak, because the Russians can only succeed in their great and perilous task if supported by the people everywhere. The British people must proclaim to Russia and the Central Powers that its aim is identical with Russia's; that we, too, see no solution for the evils of militarism except self-determination and no indemnities.

"In applying this Russian principle to our own case we are conscious of the problems raised, but we do not shrink therefrom. The British people accepts the principle of no annexations for the British Empire. This applies in our case to the Middle East, Africa, and India.

"We wish to remind the Russian people that Great Britain, taught by the loss of the American colonies in the eighteenth century, was the first modern State to grant complete self-determination to any group of its inhabitants, for example, the Dominions of Canada, Australia, South Africa, and New Zealand. We accept the principle also for India and other dependencies of the British Empire, though we believe that the record of the British Government here gives little occasion for reproach.

"We intend to meet this by more rapid development of self-government. We respect the sovereign independence of the Turkish people in their national home, but we believe that the domination of their Government over other peoples is a hindrance to their own national development. Our Government is pledged to some of those peoples—Arabs, Palestinians, Armenians—that the Ottoman rule shall not again be imposed on them. This responsibility should be undertaken by the peace conference and a permanent international organization that we hope will be there constituted.

"In tropical Africa we repeat our renunciation of annexations. Nobody contends that the black races can govern themselves. They can only make it known that the particular government under which they have been living is bad in some or all respects and indicate the specific evils from which they desire liberation. We believe that the peace conference would be well advised to place all tropical Africa under uniform international control.

"We adjure the peoples of Central Europe to declare themselves or make their Governments speak for them in answer to Russia and ourselves. We call on them to renounce annexations in Europe with the same good faith in which we are renouncing them in Asia. We call on them to give the same self-determination to the French, Alsatian, Italian, Polish, and Danish members of their States as Russia has given to Finland, Courland, Lithuania, and Russian Poland."

The manifesto concludes:

"The family interests of dynasties or the desire of the German, Austrian, and Magyar governing classes to dominate other classes and nationalities must no more be suffered to prevent self-determination in Central Europe, and thereby imperil it in Europe as a whole, than the interests of British imperialism or British capitalism must be suffered to do elsewhere.

"Peoples of Central Europe, this catastrophe of the human race, this fatal schism in the civilized world, can only be ended by the defeat of militarism on both sides and by the victory on both sides of moral and intellectual fair dealing. If the world is to be saved, it must be saved by good faith and reciprocity on the part of all. Do not fail

Bulgars and Teutons Seek to Detach Serbia

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The Reuter correspondent at Serbian Headquarters reports that the Bulgars are making vain efforts at fraternization, and that the Germans are sending leaflets into the Serbian lines devoted to efforts to detach Serbia from the Allies.

The correspondent says he learns on good authority that Austria-Hungary a short time ago proffered the Serbians, through a private channel, the surrender of Bosnia and Herzogovina, with an outlet to the Adriatic, if they would cease fighting and sign a peace.

WAR OF FACTIONS GROWS IN GERMANY

JINGO MEETINGS BROKEN UP

Vorwaerts Predicts Internal Change That Will Greatly Affect Political Workers.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 15.—Whether in the face of assertions, denials, and rumors the German political situation has once more reached a stage of crisis it is difficult at the moment to say. It is fairly clear that something of considerable importance is going on behind the scenes in Berlin.

During the last few days semi-official and well-informed papers have been at considerable pains to declare that all differences between the civil and military authorities have been settled and that things are going smoothly and in complete unanimity. The comparatively calm nature of the comments in the Pan German press has lent support to such statements. Then the all-important military leaders were suddenly called to Berlin for consultation, and by Sunday night political circles were buzzing with all sorts of rumors.

[illegible] has been called into existence by the military party. In recent days the Frankfurter Zeitung, always cautious and well-informed, has expressed the opinion that the political calm was only temporary, and yesterday it declared:

"It is a case whether the policy which the Chancellor and the Foreign Minister, in agreement with the majority of the Reichstag, settled upon for the Brest-Litovsk peace negotiations, a policy which represents an endeavor to reach peace by understanding and which rejects all forcible annexations, will succeed or whether the very considerable annexations demanded by the military party under the formula of 'military safety of the frontiers' will be realized."

As far as can now be judged, that would appear to be an accurate summing up of the situation.

Serious View Taken by Vorwaerts.

Vorwärts fears the worst. It declares that rumor has it that "quite a sudden change in domestic and foreign policy" will supervene, as a result of which Dr. von Kühlmann will go, and Count von Hertling will be unable to remain much longer in office.

It is, the Socialist journal says, a question of "an undisguised and complete program of annexation in the east and the west and of the inner political consequences which will naturally follow," and it adds that such a policy, if it materializes, will have enormous effect on the working classes.

The journal then goes on to deplore "the profound uncertainty and confusion" which are again evident in the German political situation. It declares that this time the Socialists cannot be blamed for it, and wonders how much stability is left in the Reichstag majority against which all the weight of influence of the Fatherland Party will be thrown. "At any rate," it concludes, "the people wish to know where they stand."

The Deutsche Tageszeitung, in a twenty-line comment on the situation, refers twice to "the extraordinary importance" of the presence of the Crown Prince in Berlin.

Theodor Wolff, writing in the Berlin Tageblatt, says:

"For the past twenty-four hours one has heard nothing in Berlin save of conferences and discussions. The Crown

HOUSE REPUBLICANS IN LINE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Opinion is crystalizing in Congress and among the prominent business men called to Washington to assist the Government in the conduct of the war that there must be a radical reorganization of the methods of governmental administration, particularly in the War Department, which is being subjected privately to a degree of criticism that is certain to come to the surface in open attacks before very long.

The demand for one-man control of the War Department or in the purchase of munitions for all the military branches of the Government is very strong.

It has been apparent for several days that Secretary Baker had become alive to the feeling that the matter of supplying the armed forces of the United States, especially in ordnance and clothing, had been badly mismanaged. Since Mr. Baker's appearance as a witness before the Senate Committee on Military Affairs there has been an outcropping of criticism over his conduct of the War Department in conjunction with [illegible] of the Council of [illegible] credit Mr. Baker with not having a proper appreciation of the seriousness of the war preparation situation.

Mr. Baker's manner on the witness stand irritated members of the committee, and the remark is being made in Washington that he failed to make frank statements or furnish illuminating information as to the matters into which the committee is inquiring.

Baker's Reorganization Plan.

That this state of feeling has not been lost on those most concerned has been apparent from the announcements made within the last few days that methods of reorganization had been undertaken. Tonight Secretary Baker issued a statement through the Committee on Public Information, explaining that he had arranged to reorganize the Quartermaster's and Ordnance Bureaus of the War Department, these being the branches of the military establishment that had come in for the most criticism, and had created a Bureau of Supplies, which will be a central agency for the purchase of all supplies needed for the various military departments.

The creation of the Bureau on Supplies, which in a measure takes the place of the Committee on Supplies of the Council of National Defense as far as it affected War Department purchases, is designed, it is understood, to placate the demand for the creation of the Department of Munitions which would handle war purchases for all branches of the Government.

Before the Senate Military Committee today Walter S. Gifford of the Council of National Defense declared that "if the Government during the next eighteen months is not better prepared to use its vast resources than it is now we are going to fall down on running the war."

The department, he said, needs one policy, one program, one head for its vast purchasing work, and without these things the army would not have the advantage of co-ordination. He thought that a department of munitions was not necessary, but one man should have control of all purchasing agencies of the War Department.

The testimony of Mr. Gifford was in line with that given to the committee yesterday by Daniel Willard, Chairman of the War Industries Board, and Bernard Baruch, a member of the Council

Bolshevist Council Beseeches Russians to Join in Saving the Brave Starving Army

LONDON, Wednesday, Jan. 16.—Three appeals issued by the Bolshevist Government in Petrograd yesterday are contained in a Russian official wireless communication received here. One is signed by the Council of People's Commissaries for War and the Central Committee for Army Supplies, and begins:

> To all: Immediate help is necessary. The army which is standing patiently and bravely on guard for the freedom of the country is perishing from famine. Their provisioning has ceased. Several regiments are entirely without bread and horses are without fodder. Every citizen of Russia, in this fateful hour do your duty immediately.

The Government's provisioning committees are told it is their duty to assume responsibility for buying and sending food to the armies "without sparing any means and immediately, with all your revolutionary energy, in friendly co-operation to do what you think is necessary, including the ordering of compulsory work."

Railway men and others concerned with transportation are warned that if found guilty of violence or disorder or attempts to capture military foodstuffs they will be punished severely. The proclamation says:

> The Army, confident in you, is fulfilling its duty and awaits your immediate help.

Another proclamation, addressed "to all at the front, particularly the Twelfth Special Army," informs them that the Central Committee, chosen by the delegates at the last conference of the armies, has been formed in Petrograd for the purpose of provisioning the armies, and calls for fullest information from local army committees regarding supplies and needs. It concludes:

"Only by friendly co-operation, only in harmony and by strong physical effort, shall we be able to conquer the anarchy existing here."

German Ammunition Plants Closed for Lack of Coal

LAUSANNE, Jan. 15.—The Gazette says that it learns that the German ammunition factories at Karlsruhe have been forced to close owing to lack of coal, and that 9,000 men and women are out of work. Seven other large towns are affected in a similar manner.

The German Government's consignments of coal to Switzerland under the diplomatic arrangement, the newspaper adds, are decreasing monthly, the Germans apparently being unable to spare coal.

CAILLAUX ARREST DUE TO LANSING

PLOT FOR A COUP D'ETAT!

Matin Charges That Caillaux Planned the Arrest of Clemenceau and Several Generals.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—The arrest yesterday of ex-Premier Caillaux was due principally to a cablegram from Secretary Lansing at Washington, saying that in 1915 M. Caillaux had been in communication with the Berlin Foreign Office.

The cablegram stated that the American representative at Buenos Aires had been able to establish that M. Caillaux, during his visit to Argentina in 1915, was in communication with the Berlin Foreign Office through Count von Luxburg, then German Minister to Argentina, with the object of concluding peace with Germany at any price, so as to permit the resumption of business.

It is understood that this evidence will be published in America immediately.

Planned Clemenceau's Arrest?

Investigation of the Italian connections of Caillaux is said by the Matin to have resulted in the discovery of important military and political papers in the safe of the bank at Florence which was rented under the maiden name of Mme. Caillaux and used by the former Premier [illegible] in December, 1916. Among the political papers found in the safe, the newspaper asserts, were several notes in which Caillaux, in the expectation of gaining office as Premier, had drafted a Cabinet, designated a Generalissimo, and sketched various "exceptional" measures. These measures included the arrest of certain politicians and Generals, among whom Clemenceau is said to have been one, and the dismissal of a number of officials.

In addition to these, says the Matin, there were documents of a military character which by their very nature seem to constitute the strongest evidence against Caillaux.

Public interest in the case is concentrated upon two points—the contents of the safe in the Florence bank and the terms of Secretary Lansing's messages on the subject of the Caillaux-Luxburg relations.

Feared German Praise of Caillaux.

The document which caused the arrest of Caillaux, according to the Temps, showed that he had been directly or indirectly in communication with a representative of an enemy power.

The newspaper adds that Count von Luxburg, German Minister to Argentina, warned his Government that the praise Caillaux was receiving in the German press was compromising the ex-Premier and asked that such utterances be suppressed.

"Count von Luxburg," the Temps continues, "recommended that the German newspapers should be requested to say that Caillaux had made every effort to solve the Morocco question too favorably for France. The Berlin Cabinet was notified that Caillaux was soon to depart for Paris to appear in a lawsuit in which his opponents would use everything against him.

"This dispatch was not sent directly from Argentina to Germany, but to Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador at Washington, who sent it to Berlin via Sweden."

The Temps says it understands that the documents from the United States will add materially to the above statements.

Von der Lancken Implicated?

The Associated Press was informed today that the name of Baron von der Lancken, Chief of the Political Department in Brussels and Counselor of the German Embassy in Paris prior to the war, might be brought into the Caillaux case, owing to remarks made by von der Lancken to a neutral diplomat in Brussels some time ago with reference to the settlement of the Morocco controversy.

Von der Lancken is reported to have referred to Caillaux as a stanch friend of Germany, and to have used laudatory remarks which threw new light upon Caillaux's activities in the Moroccan affair. Permission will be requested from the Government of the neutral diplomat to permit the conversation between him and von der Lancken to be recorded in the Caillaux document.

Captain Bouchardon, head of the Paris Military Court, has appointed an expert accountant to make a complete report on M. Caillaux's financial resources at the present time as compared with his fortune prior to the war. Captain Bouchardon, contrary to previous reports, is still awaiting the documents from Florence. Caillaux will not be called before the court until they are received, which probably will be within four or five days.

An official of the court martial which is investigating the Caillaux affair said today that the telegram of Secretary Lansing giving information concerning Caillaux's activities in Argentina in No-

Announcement by McAdoo's Counsel Arouses Vigorous Protest.

VIEW OF DIRECTOR GENERAL

Insists That if They Are Not Needed Government Should Not Pay for Them.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Many of the smaller railroads of the country, known as short lines, are not under Government operation and therefore will not receive any compensation from the Government. This statement was made today by John Barton Paine, who, as counsel for Director General McAdoo, appeared before the House Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Mr. Paine made this admission in reply to a question by Bird M. Robinson, in charge of the interests of the smaller railroads. The latter said that this construction of taking over the railroads meant "the assassination of the roads left out of the system." Representatives of the smaller railroads declared that they had received notice from Mr. McAdoo that their lines had been taken over, and then pressed Mr. Paine for an explanation as to the exact situation.

"How do you explain the notices sent by Mr. McAdoo and what does the proclamation by the President mean?" asked Mr. Robinson.

Mr. Paine hesitated, but his questioner insisted that the owners of smaller railroads were entitled to know the views of Mr. McAdoo. Finally Mr. Paine, carefully framing his reply, said:

"Mr. McAdoo does not think that the proclamation by the President or the notices to the railroad executives constitute taking over all the railroads of the country. He does not think that the railroads not necessary to the country for war purposes should be taken."

It was explained by Mr. Paine that if the Government took over all the railroads, many of which were not essential to war purposes, the financial burden would be too heavy and the Government would be paying a vast amount of money to carriers that were of no use in the war transportation system of the country.

Mr. Paine further declared that the railroads, after receiving definite notice that they had been taken over by the Government during the war, should have made further inquiry from the Director General. In other words, he thought that the railroads should have found out in a more definite way than the formal notice whether their lines were included in the general order.

"If the orders of the Director General do not carry final authority, why are the railroad heads to take any orders at all from Mr. McAdoo?" asked Representative Winslow. "He has issued orders, and now you say that he had his fingers crossed when he did it."

Mr. Paine said that the President's proclamation stated that the Government would take over at noon on Dec. 28 the "transportation systems" as a war measure. The short lines and the smaller railroads, he said, were not considered as a part of the systems and necessary for the Government's uses during the war.

It was contended by representatives of the railroads involved that certainly the order originally issued by Mr. McAdoo did not give them any such idea. This order, they said, forbade them soliciting business, and in one instance Mr. McAdoo ordered a small railroad about to be dismantled to continue its operations.

"The smaller roads cannot live if this interpretation is final," asserted Mr. Robinson. "They will get no freight from the larger lines, and in addition will be forced to pay the higher wage scale which the Government will advance to the employes on the systems taken over and operated."

Mr. Robinson said the smaller roads had depended on the connecting lines for most of their rolling stock, and under the proposed operation of only the larger systems the necessary connecting links would go out of business. In such an emergency, he said, the expedition of freight would be retarded.

BERLIN FOOD SCARCER.

Population Forced to Keep to the Ration Quantity.

STOCKHOLM, January 15.—Food conditions in Berlin have become so bad, according to advices reaching here, that the population is compelled to exist almost entirely on the rationed quantities of bread, meat and potatoes. Virtually no vegetables or fruit are reaching the city and no game is to be had, owing to the beginning of the closed season.

Some of the greater Berlin municipalities, it is stated, have been forced to reduce the potato ration from seven pounds to six.

Snow and Rain in West Again Tie Up Roads; No Improvement in Terminal Congestion Here

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—In his report to the Director General of Railroads, A. H. Smith, as Assistant to the Director General, said that snow last night through the whole middle and northern section of the eastern half of the country, from the Atlantic to the Mississippi, had hampered railroad operations. The snow turned to rain along the seacoast early this morning, but it was still snowing over the entire interior section when his report was filed, and the downfall was so heavy as to obscure signals, interfere with the operation of switches, and break telegraph wires.

Two through passenger trains were stalled in the streets of Syracuse by snow, and freight there was being handled with difficulty. Mr. Smith said there had been no improvement in the congestion in terminals. Since the storm of last Saturday and Sunday many branch lines of railroad in Michigan, Illinois, and Indiana had not resumed operations.

RIVER STILL HOLDS COAL FROM CITY

SUGGEST HARBOR DICTATOR

Yesterday passed without a solution of the problem of getting coal into New York. With 360,000 tons reported at tidewater, of which 73,000 tons was in barges ready to be towed across the river, not more than 30,000 tons reached the city.

The controversy between railroad officials and Fuel Administration [illegible] as to [illegible] for getting the coal from New Jersey to New York continued, without anybody assuming the job of speeding up the work.

With ample coal for immediate needs only a few miles away, State Fuel Administrator A. H. Wiggin announced yesterday that a plan had been recommended to Washington to make Monday of each week a legal holiday for eight or ten weeks, to decrease coal consumption and help to catch up with the demand. This suggestion brought from business men who would be affected the criticism that closing industries for part of the week only postponed the day when there must be a national program for reducing the fuel delivered to industries considered nonessential to the war.

With the city suffering for coal while several hundred thousand tons lie near at hand and railroad men and Fuel Administrators at variance over responsibility for its transport across the harbor, a strong sentiment has arisen in favor of a summary ruling on the point by Washington or the creation of an official with authority to bring the coal from New Jersey to New York.

Reeve Schley, New York County Fuel Administrator, said yesterday that technically the authority of the Fuel Administration over coal began when it reached the middle of the river, or the State line.

No Mine-to-New York Tariff.

Railroad men, commenting on the statement that it was the duty of the carriers to put the coal into New York docks, said that of the hundreds of railroad tariffs promulgated by the Interstate Commerce Commission not one proided a tariff for coal from the mines to New York City. The tariffs all provided charges for transportation of coal from the mines to tidewater. For towing coal across the harbor an extra charge has been made, even by the Reading and the Pennsylvania, which have towing services to Manhattan.

The need for further control over harbor facilities was emphasized yesterday by the statement that there were 105 towing companies at this port, owning tugs over which the railroad administration had no authority. In breaking ice and towing coal the railroads have used railroad tugs, most of them not built for such work. In normal times most of the coal towing is done by commercial tugs. It is now for the owners of these tugs to decide whether or not they will bother with the ice, and many of them have accepted the task offered.

Mr. Schley said yesterday that there seemed to be a mistaken impression that the Fuel Administration had gone into the business of buying and selling coal. Pitt P. Hand, spokesman for Mr. Smith, said it should be borne in mind that the railroads were not in the retail coal business, but engaged in hauling things. Mr. Schley added that the duty of the Fuel Administration was to hasten the delivery of coal through the usual channels, and to see that it was equitably distributed. He said that while the authority of the Fuel Administration did not extend beyond the State, it has exceeded those strict limits by taking measures to hurry the movement of coal to tidewater.

Fuel Suggestions.

Explaining to reporters what had been done at the meeting of Fuel Administrators at the Union League Club which lasted until 1:30 yesterday morning, when the Monday holiday plan was passed on, Mr. Wiggin gave out this statement:

P. B. Noyes, representing Dr. H. A. Gar-

FREIGHT STALLED HERE ON ALL ROADS

MANY TRAINS SNOWED IN

Lackawanna and Erie Trains to Enter City Through Pennsylvania Tubes.

The transportation machine of the eastern part of the United States remains badly crippled as the result of the blizzard which tied up traffic in the Middle West for two days. A fresh snowstorm in the West yesterday added to the congestion. But with moderate temperatures the roads devoted their energies to digging out of the snow, and A. H. Smith, Assistant Director General of Railroads, said last night he looked for a much better movement of freight east of Chicago today. The situation did not show the improvement yesterday that had been expected. With the enforcement of the priority orders issued Monday night by Director General McAdoo New York is expected to receive an adequate food supply, and coal is arriving faster than it is being taken away from tidewater.

Among the orders promulgated by the National Railroad Administration yesterday was one calling for the sending of some trains of the Lackawanna and the Erie through the Pennsylvania tunnels into Manhattan to relieve the pressure in the New Jersey terminals and to make the movement of freight easier.

Although almost unprecedented tie-ups have resulted from the blockade at Chicago and Pittsburgh gateways for nearly three days, reports yesterday showed that more than normal the number of cars was waiting for handling through New York terminals. W. J. Fripp, Chairman of the Local Operating Committee of the Eastern Railroads, said this in a report:

Many Trains Stalled in Snow.

"The general condition of traffic moving into New England by way of Maybrook Junction continued abnormal. In addition to the cars which the Erie is holding at Port Jervis to go through this gateway, sixty additional cars have been stored on this line. The Lackawanna and Central of New Jersey are holding quite a number of cars for movement through Maybrook.

"The conditions also are abnormal on all lines of eastbound freight for handling through New York terminals.

"This is the day to 'dig out' of the snow. All possible equipment and power is being used to get freight trains started east again. Two trains are reported stalled in the streets of Syracuse. Passenger traffic continues to move, but all trains are from six to twelve hours late. Trains due here at 9 o'clock this morning will not reach terminals much before sundown."

Mr. Fripp also reported that the tide has risen in New York Harbor above the high water mark, and that floating ice was causing more trouble. Deputy Marine Superintendent Pollock said that ice conditions in the harbor were bad, and that in the morning because of the high east winds the men at Port Reading refused to go to work, but later agreed to do so, when the winds abated. The men feared to go out with barges because of the danger of the wind sinking the craft.

The reports of railroad Presidents gave promise of improvement today generally, although there was a note of discouragement in this report:

"State of Michigan—Tied up since Friday night, Jan. 11. No trains moving."

The report of the New York Central system said: "Weather moderating; light fall of snow. No wind. Prospects of gain in next twenty-four hours good if weather continues to moderate."

One Road Tied Up Sixty Hours.

The Detroit, Toledo & Ironton reported that lines had been practically paralyzed for the past sixty hours by severe weather conditions, and added: "Still unable to move trains account blocked by snow."

The Michigan Central line said that main line passenger trains were moving slowly, and that freight trains were beginning to move, and added that, in re-

DRASTIC ACTION PLANNED

Deemed Useless to Pile Up Goods That Cannot Be Transported.

EFFECT IN GERMANY FEARED

BIG STEELMAKERS WILLING

Decision as to Extent of Curtailment to be Made on Reports Expected Today.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Neither the railroad nor the fuel situation has improved in any material degree, and in addition to the personal discomforts caused by lack of coal there is danger of partial paralysis of industry in the whole eastern part of the United States.

New snowstorms with the ice formed by the cold weather that has continued for more than two weeks have added to the difficulties growing out of the previous transportation congestion, and the Federal authorities are considering the adoption of drastic measures to relieve the situation.

It became known today that Dr. H. A. Garfield, the Fuel Administrator, contemplates issuing an order requiring all industries least essential to the conduct of the war to close down a certain number of days each week until conditions improve. Consideration has been given to a proposal to suspend all industrial work for from three to ten days, to give the Railroad Administration an opportunity to clear away the present transportation congestion.

It is said that officers of great industrial plants have been consulted with respect to the proposal, and that some have agreed to it. The larger steel producers are credited with having given their promise to observe a request of the Government if it is decided to have a general closing down of industrial work.

That those in authority hesitate to put such a drastic policy into operation is attributed to fear that it would give an erroneous impression in Germany as to the state of the war preparedness of the United States. At this time, when Germany is supposed to be preparing for a great drive on the western front and probably hopes to make gains that will quiet growing disaffection among the German people, the psychological effect of news that America had been obliged to shut down all industry, it is suggested, might be a material aid to the German Government in placating its subjects.

Drastic Action Considered.

No information was obtainable at the office of the Fuel Administration as to the extent to which the contemplated order to shut down certain less essential industries for one or more days each week would go. It was well understood, however, that severe action was under consideration and that the scope of the order would be made known as soon as Dr. Garfield had fully informed himself of all the details that are being collected by P. B. Noyes, Chief of the Conservation Division of the Fuel Administration, who has been in New York and New England and is expected in Washington early tomorrow morning.

Mr. Noyes has been in constant communication with Dr. Garfield by telegraph, and has informed him sufficiently of the general aspects of the situation to show the necessity for radical action. Much more drastic steps than those contemplated by Dr. Garfield have been suggested as absolutely necessary to afford complete relief to the railroads, domestic consumers and utilities supplying transportation, heat, and light.

On official familiar with the conditions which the Fuel Administrator is seeking to overcome said today that in his opinion the only way in which a normal supply and distribution of coal could be resumed was by suspending all forms of business and industry, except the manufacture of munitions and the production of food, for a week or ten days, or even so long a period as two weeks. The railroads, he said, were choked with freight that could not be moved, and this congestion had caused a shortage of coal cars at the mines in Pennsylvania and West Virginia that amounted to not less than 45 per cent., and reduced the output of the mines by that percentage.

This enormous reduction in the production of bituminous coal has forced at least two of the railroads to burn anthracite in locomotives and has resulted in such a great curtailment of the supply of hard coal that the difficulties of supplying consumers have been increased.

One munitions factory with a Government contract has been forced to suspend operations. The Shipping Board received word today that three factories engaged in producing steel plates for Government merchant ships had been obliged to shut down on account of failure to get coal.

Futile to Shift Coal.

The official mentioned [illegible] tile for the Fuel Administration to attempt to relieve the [illegible] when it was constantly [illegible] shipments of coal by [illegible] loads first in one direction [illegible] another, diverting coal from one community in the effort to meet the need of another. Such methods, he said, not only failed to accomplish permanent good, but added materially to the difficulties of the railroads.

Most of those familiar with the details of the coal situation hold the opinion that relief depends upon a solution of the transportation problem, which is much more serious than the difficulties occasioned by the unusual severity of the weather.

One of the officials of the Fuel Administration said he did not expect traffic conditions to improve materially until the weather had moderated permanently. He explained that congestion of traffic invariably occurred during the Winter months, but that under normal Winter conditions more freight was sent over the lines during that season than in Summer, in spite of the fact that congestion rarely occurs at that time. This he said, was due to the fact that more freight had to be handled during the Winter months, and just as more water is forced through a spigot when there is great pressure behind it, so more freight is transported under stress of business. There must, however, be an uninterrupted circulation of coal cars between the mines and the points of delivery, in order to maintain the output of the mines at a sufficient amount to meet the demand.

Such a congestion of traffic as has existed during the past ten days at the points of delivery means a corresponding diminution in the supply of cars at the mines, and a consequent proportionate reduction in production.

Action by Fuel Administrator Garfield in shutting down less essential industries for a certain number of days each week would be in line with, but a drastic extension of his order of yesterday giving preference in the distribution of coal to householders, public light and heating plants, ships carrying supplies to the allied forces abroad, industries manufacturing war material, and other industries in the order named.

RAILROAD CONTROL OF TRUCKS URGED

DELIVERY OF SMALL LOTS

Commandeering of Trucking Facilities Would Permit Collection Also with Maximum Efficiency.

The organization of a city-wide trucking system to make store-door deliveries of less than carload freight immediately upon its arrival at railroad terminals and to make store-door collections of less than carload freight was considered yesterday at a meeting at the Grand Central Terminal of traffic managers of the railroads entering New York City, called by W. J. Fripp of the New York Central, Chairman of the New York District Operating Committee. The creation of such a machine was discussed last night at a meeting between the railroad managers and representatives of the business interests of the city. The discussions will be continued today.

The plan put forward was for the creation of an authority which would commandeer the trucking facilities of the whole city and use them for the movement of all small freight. It had been suggested that the railroads take over this work, and, instead of delivering less that carload freight at terminals to be held at the pleasure of the consignee, to deliver to stores and warehouses, making an additional charge to meet the added cost. This plan has been adopted in England, where it has worked well.

If the less than carload freight was delivered immediately upon arrival, and the carload freight disposed of promptly under the new embargo-permit system which went into effect, the managers said that congestion of domestic freight would be prevented. While the managers were not ready to go on record formally as indorsing the plan, there was a strong sentiment in favor of it. There are 100,000 tons of freight on the piers of the New York Central Railroad, and the accumulation of freight at the terminals of all of the roads entering New York amounts to hundreds of thousands of tons.

At present if a firm in the middle of Manhattan got an order for a shipment weighing 200 pounds, it is probable that a truck would be sent to a downtown pier with that shipment. This truck, with a capacity of 3,000 pounds, would make the trip downtown carrying one-fifteenth capacity, and would probably make the trip back empty. Under the proposed plan, this truck would take on a full load uptown before starting for the pier or railroad station, and, after unloading, would proceed to bring back a full load of freight for distribution.

While some business men are in favor, others are opposed to the new plan, but the majority told the railroad men they were of an open mind. The New York Board of Trade and Transportation has made a canvass of 500 business houses as to their attitude on the proposed delivery plan, the questionnaire stating that the proposition was for the railroads to take over the trucking work. A number of firms, typified by Wing & Son, piano manufacturers, thought there would be a danger to the handling of delicate machinery. Some, like Edward D. Depew & Co., said that the question of proper trucking charges would be a formidable one. Turstton & Braidich, drug importers, said that many of their shipments were made on telegraphic orders, and that in the proposed system there were dangers of delays. McCormick, Hubbs & Co. said the plan would not work in the matter of handling vegetables and fruit, pointing out that in zero weather the immediate delivery by truck of fruits and vegetables would mean a great loss. Many business houses canvassed took the stand of B. Altman & Co., who wrote:

"There are some features of the plan on which we would like enlightenment. What arrangements would be made concerning freight which appears to be pilfered or damaged? If such a shipment were returned it might result in further congestion. It would be manifestly unfair to ask the consignees to accept freight in such condition. The nature of our business requires that we receive freight only during certain hours of the day. It is a question whether this feature could be taken care of under the plan."

Railroad men said that under the present plan there is a system of notification of the arrival of freight which makes a day or more delay, and then consignees are disposed to send for their consignments when they need the goods. Leaving goods in railroad warehouses and on piers is about the cheapest from of storage consignees can obtain. The proposed plan, it was said, would end this abuse.

Roy D. Chapin, Chairman of the Highways Transport Committee of the Council of National Defense at a well-attended meeting of the Highway Traffic Association of the State of New York in the rooms of the Automobile Club of America, last night discussed practically the same trucking plan suggested by the traffic managers. Prof. Arthur H. Blanchard of Columbia University presided, and those present represented many of the large trucking and shipping interests in the city. Many of the speakers in their objections, said that the plan would work hardship and additional expense to the shippers, but the general impression was that it was a step in the right direction.

Prince, Hindenburg and Ludendorff are again in the capital, and, Dame Rumor has it, have become rampant. Kuehlmann's opponents go about with pleased expressions, as though the scalp of the Foreign Minister had already been definitely promised them.

Dr. Wolff describes with telling sarcasm how the members of the Polish Government were recently received in Berlin and officially banqueted and flattered, but left the city in complete ignorance that the German Government was endeavoring to win Vienna over to abandon the solution of a Polish union with Austria and to support a new scheme of partition of their country.

He also thinks that Kühlmann and Hertling will go, should the militarists, led by the Crown Prince, win the day. Indeed, it is not altogether improbable that the Polish question and the action by the Polish representatives have something to do with the state of affairs.

The Tageblatt, in another prominently displayed article, says that the conferences of the past few days have been mainly concerned with the Polish question, and that surprises are not improbable. It goes on to say:

"The Polish question appears to have taken a new course. In Berlin, at least, an Austro-Polish settlement has been given up. For that there are military and economic reasons, the military reason being that of the much-discussed strategic frontier. The holding of Lithuania comes in question; while the economic reason is the need for the incorporation in Prussia of the industrially valuable regions of Poland.

"In this connection there comes in question the Polish districts of Bendzin, Czensmochan, Wielum, and Sikuss; at least those regions, embracing a considerable part of the old Kingdom of Poland, have twice been characterized by the Oppeln Chamber of Commerce as urgently necessary for the future of upper Silsia."

Parleys Offend Pan Germans.

From the comments of other papers, it is now evident that the last few days' proceedings at Brest-Litovsk have been very displeasing to the Pan Germans. The Weser Zeitung speaks of the unedifying spectacle being witnessed there, and the Cologne Gazette attacks Trotzky as a doctrinaire with whom it hopes Russia will soon settle accounts.

After all, says the Tägliche Rundschau, mockingly, "the present Russian Government is composed of men who are much more Jewish than Russian, and they are using the peace negotiations not so much as a means to give their land peace as to forward a social world revolution."

Such comments are significant. The Rundschau also remarks that the German agreement with certain Russian demands, especially those of an economic nature, has drawn sharp objections from such influential men as Helfferich, who is now an extreme Pan German.

The Pan Germans clearly are out to smash the negotiations, and the proceedings at Brest-Litovsk have not given the democratic parties any too high an opinion of the capacity of the present Government.

Hertling and his colleagues, therefore, are in a difficult position all around.

Meanwhile the Pan German Fatherland party is redoubling its efforts to gain a victory, and its countless organizations are flooding the wires with messages to the Kaiser, Crown Prince, Hindenburg, and Ludendorff. Tirpitz, its moving spirit, stated significantly at a reception he gave in Berlin to Deputies, politicians, and journalists that recent events allowed him to entertain the firm hope that German interests in the East would be safeguarded.

The party is very keen on getting rid of Kühlmann and Hertling, too. These men are probably both too insincere to allow themselves to be driven out of office from the necessity of sticking to certain opinions or certain policies. If they go, a military dictatorship is the only alternative. Then, in Vorwärts' words, the German people and all the world as well will certainly know where they stand.

Dernburg Warns of Vain Hopes.

In a speech at Frankfort on Sunday, Dr. Bernhard Dernburg, formerly German Colonial Minister, bitterly attacked the "war-prolonging agitation of the Fatherland Party," and poured ridicule on the Pan German demands for annexation and indemnities. He pointed out the very close relation there was between a foreign policy based on force and reaction at home.

Was Germany's position before the war so unbearable, he asked, that approximate restoration of the status quo would be an evil? The claims of the Pan Germans for compensation in land and money he stigmatized as phrases and demands which cannot be realized. So much gold, he said, did not exist as would be equivalent by way of compensation for the enormous cost of the war, and Germany simply had not the power to compel the payment of long dated installments from England and America.

Turning to the annexationist demand that the French mineral producing regions of Briey and Longwy should be retained by Germany, Dr. Dernburg said that the districts had a probable value of £150,000,000, and he added that this amount was the cost of the war for twenty-five days. Though he is a great believer in colonies, Dernburg admitted that colonial gains as compensation for war costs scarcely came into serious consideration.

"The great capital outlay required from us by our colonies before the war," he said, "brought us in a yearly profit of £3,000,000. That is the cost of the war from 6 o'clock in the [illegible] night."

[illegible] the East, he pointed [illegible] create a hostile [illegible] by a permanent [illegible] on the urgent need for disarmament, showing that armaments were now so expensive that the aerial weapon alone was at the present day swallowing up as much money as did the whole army budget before the war. The cost of armaments on the new scale, he said, was therefore obviously unbearable.

Tirpitz Repeats Belgian Demand.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—The Matin's Zurich correspondent telegraphs that at a great demonstration in Berlin yesterday, organized by the German Patriots' League, Admiral von Tirpitz said:

"Germany's future is tied up with the coast of Flanders and the port of Antwerp. We have arrived at the most critical period of the war. England and America have begun a general peace offensive. If we would conserve our world position we must not take a renunciatory peace because England now is ready to demand it. At this critical moment we place all our hope in Hindenburg and Ludendorff."

Hertling's Program Uncertain.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 15.—The Cologne Volkszeitung reports today that Chancellor von Hertling's speech to the Reichstag Main Committee was postponed because it was considered necessary that he should have a few more days to deliberate. The paper further states that it is not yet known how far the Chancellor will go into the question of Lloyd George's and Wilson's war aims.

The press has published very conflicting reports about the reported Berlin Crown Council, many denying that it was held.

The Rhenish Westphalian Gazette says, referring to the Brest-Litovsk negotiations:

"When these lines are read Germany's fate will have been decided. The last word will be spoken in Berlin. Once again General Hoffman has rescued the situation and can continue to rescue it if the command comes from Berlin."

The paper proceeds to say that the Kaiser, Hindenburg, and Ludendorff really have the deciding word.

Socialists Break Up Meetings.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 15.—The breaking up of two meetings of the annexationist Fatherland Party by Independent Socialists is announced in German papers received here.

The Cologne Volkszeitung gives an account of a meeting of the party at Mannheim which was frustrated by the Socialists. After hours of pandemonium the meeting, which was attended by about three thousand persons, was dispersed by the police amid Socialist cheers.

The Leipsic Volkszeitung says that a gathering of the party at Jena was also overwhelmed by Socialists, who, after passing a vote for "a general peace by understanding," threw out the members of the Fatherland Party.

While Pan German petitions and resolutions are being rushed to the Emperor by the militarists, other currents are active. This is instanced by a meeting at Frankfort-on-the-Main Sunday of the Free Citizens' Committee, which adopted a resolution setting forth that a lasting peace which would really safeguard Germany's vital economic interests would be possible only on the basis of a policy of conciliation in the sense of the peace resolution adopted by the Reichstag.

The committee expressed the hope that from the negotiations with Russia might result a peace which, by honest adherence to the principle of self-determination of peoples, might exclude the danger of new conflicts. Dr. Bernhard Dernburg, former Colonial Minister, addressed the meeting.

The Munich Post attacks the Fatherland Party and supports the attitude taken by President Wilson in regard to recognition of the demands for autonomy on the part of the Slav population of the Central Empires.

"The Russian revolution has stirred the nationalistic feeling among the Slavs of Austria-Hungary to the boiling point," it says. "The whole Slav world will rise up against us if we attempt to impose humiliating terms on Russia."

Savage Attacks on Kuehlmann.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—No authoritative information has reached London on the progress of the political struggle in Berlin, but it is plain that Hertling's speech before the Reichstag Committee has been postponed a few days. According to a Reuter dispatch from Amsterdam, the crisis continues to rage around the fixing of Germany's attitude in the new phase of the Brest-Litovsk negotiations.

The correspondent in Berlin of the Cologne Volkszeitung believes that a satisfying compromise will be reached and that it will avert any political or military changes.

Pan German newspapers continue to attack von Kühlmann violently. The Rheinische Westfälische Zeitung remarks, ironically:

"Von Kühlmann would win the prize for showing how a brilliant military position may be utterly ruined. The question is whether the struggle at Brest-Litovsk will be a victory for Germany or for the clever advocate Trotzky, who fully reveals his intellectual superiority over the representatives of the Central Powers. * * * General von Hoffmann alone saved the situation, but it can only be saved permanently if he is supported from Berlin."

Count Reventlow in the Tageszeitung admits the strength of the peace movement, and says it would inevitably ruin Germany's future. He says it is no secret that the entire body of Social Democrats, with a considerable proportion of the Liberal and Centre parties and a still more considerable part of German diplomacy, hold that the submarine war cannot accomplish its aim and can only delay peace. He adds that the so-called majority are exerting every effort to force from the leaders of the empire a fresh German peace offer as a reply to the speeches of Wilson and Lloyd George

GERMANS EAGER FOR TRADE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—The Matin will print tomorrow the following from its Zurich correspondent:

"The Hanseatic League, representing great industries throughout Germany, has distributed a circular throughout the empire declaring that the future peace terms must place Germany in the most favorable commercial position of all countries in the world, and, above all, must place her above France, England, and America. The circular says:

"'It is necessary after the war for our commercial men to install themselves in Paris, London, and New York to work strongly together for the effacing of the products of those countries.'"

CLYDE SHIPWORKERS THREATEN TO STRIKE

Geddes's Rebuke Is Indorsed, but Fear Is Expressed It May Embitter Men.

OBJECT TO MAN-POWER BILL

Demand Its Withdrawal Before the End of January and Want Peace Conference Called.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The reference made in the House of Commons yesterday by Sir Auckland Geddes, Minister of National Service, to the engineers attempting to force the Government to conscript their fathers and return wounded men to the front has focused attention on the attitude of engineering and shipbuilding employes along the Clyde, where the trouble has been most active. Sir Auckland said that many young men in essential industries had acted as if they held a privileged position, and he added that they must share the burden with the others.

At a meeting in the Clyde district on Sunday, the engineers and shipbuilders decided to strike if the Government Man Power bill were not withdrawn before the end of January and a peace conference called.

The rebuke given to these men by Sir Auckland is indorsed generally by the press and Members of Parliament, but in some quarters the Minister is condemned as lacking sagacity, since the temper of the men is strained and persuasion is more likely to be effective than menace.

J. Ramsay MacDonald, labor leader, who has just returned from the Clyde, said in an interview that the situation needed very careful handling. He thought that the reference to fathers was most unjust, and feared it would have a bad effect on the men, already supersensitive owing to long hours of unbroken work.

Mr. MacDonald said that the view of the workmen was that they had a definite bargain by which it had been agreed to give the Government certain support, and the Government was now trying to repudiate its side of the bargain. He did not say that the Government had any other alternative in the circumstances, but that no good could be done by making unfair charges.

On the other hand, the press condemns the malcontents warmly, The Daily News describing the threat to strike as a betrayal of freedom and a stabbing of sons and brothers in the back. A Liberal Member of Parliament is quoted as saying:

"The men want an excuse to end the war, and this excuse is as good as any other. They want to cause a general strike so as to stop the output of munitions and make war impossible. They are also talking of delivering an ultimatum to the Government to provide industrial districts with plenty of food or have a general strike."

In the lobbies of Parliament, the opinion is expressed that if a strike takes place it is not likely to last long, owing to the strikers lack of funds. Labor Members of Parliament generally will not talk of the situation, as their conferences with Sir Auckland Geddes are not yet finished.

Admiral Billings's Wife Found Dead.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 15.—Mrs. Laura Elizabeth Billings, wife of Rear Admiral Luther G. Billings of the Paymaster Corps, U. S. N., was found dead tonight in her bathroom at the Marlborough Apartments.

Evidently she had been stricken with heart disease. Her body was found by a maid. Her husband was in Washington. Coroner Wiltshire gave a verdict of death from natural causes. Mrs. Billings was a Miss Tremaine of Brooklyn, N. Y.

HEARS THAT WILLARD SEEKS TO BE RELIEVED

Baltimore Newspaper Has a 'Widely Credited but Unconfirmed' Report.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 15.—A Washington dispatch to The Baltimore Sun says:

"Daniel F. Willard, President of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad has asked President Wilson to relieve him of his duties as Chairman of the War Munitions Board, according to unconfirmed but widely credited reports.

"Mr. Willard himself left the city late today for the West, it was said at his office in the Council of National Defense, presumably to make an inspection of the railroad properties. The White House was silent upon the matter, as were other sources of official information.

"Friends of Mr. Willard, however, were informed this afternoon that he had sought retirement from the service of the Government in order that he might return to the B. & O. and assist actively in readjusting the affairs of that company to the control which the Government now exercises over all the railroads of the country.

"No other reason, it is said, has been assigned by Mr. Willard for desiring to withdraw from the Chairmanship of the Federal Board, although many of his intimate friends have known for some time that he felt he was not in a position to render the greatest service to the Government as long as the War Munitions Board has no legal standing and has no authority to enforce its rulings.

"The further report that John D. Ryan of New York, for the time being associated with the National Red Cross in Washington, had been recommended as Mr. Willard's successor, seemed to bear out the story that Mr. Willard had asked to be relieved."

CAPT. WHISLER GOT $62,826.

Kansas City Banker Will Make Good Loss at Camp Funston.

CAMP FUNSTON, Kan., Jan. 15.—An official check of the funds of the Army Bank of Camp Funston shows Captain Lewis Whisler stole $62,826.21 when he robbed the bank last Friday night, slaying four men with an axe and injuring a fifth. The accounting is final, and was given out at Division Headquarters this afternoon.

No trace of the missing money has been found, so far as can be learned here. William Huttig of Kansas City, Mo., President of the National Reserve Bank of that city, of which the Army Bank was a branch, announced through Divisional Headquarters that the money would be replaced by him as owner of the bank. He already had made good on deposits of $50,000, he said.

Two notes which it is alleged Whisler wrote before he committed suicide were among the things found in his room, it was said here. One note previously given out said that he had "made a reason" for killing himself. Another, according to reliable information, was addressed to a young woman and read:

"Don't blame yourself in any way. I simply got tired of living and thought I would become a pirate right. I came very near committing suicide so many times and I hated to do so without staking it on something. As for the consequences, that is nothing but what we are all trained for. Hope you can soon forget me and realize how lucky you were to escape me."

YARMOUTH SHELLED BY GERMAN RAIDER

SHIP UNSEEN IN THE DARK

Brief Bombardment Preceded by Illumination of Sleeping British Port with Star Shells.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—For five minutes last night a German warship—submarine, destroyer, or light cruiser—bombarded Yarmouth, killing three persons and injuring ten, two of whom died subsequently.

The bombardment, which took the inhabitants completely by surprise, was preceded by illumination of the town by large star shells. Owing to the blackness of the night the enemy was not seen. He fired twenty to twenty-five shells in rapid succession. Many windows were shattered, and a number of roofs and chimneys were wrecked.

Yarmouth was bombarded from the sea last night. Fire was opened at 10:55 P. M., and lasted about five minutes, some twenty shells falling into the town.

Most of the inhabitants were in bed at the time of the attack. One of the three persons killed was a sailor aboard his ship, who had escaped submarines in mid-ocean. The other two were killed in the street. There were many narrow escapes among the occupants of the damaged houses.

Attacks by German naval forces on English coast towns, of which there were a number early in the war, have been infrequent in recent months. The last previous occurrence of the kind officially reported was on Sept. 4 of last year, when a German submarine bombarded Scarborough, causing the death of three persons and the injury of five.

Yarmouth is on the North Sea, 115 miles northeast of London. It is a city of about 50,000 inhabitants, with important shipbuilding and fishing industries.

HOLDS ALL BLAMELESS FOR CAMBRAI SETBACK

Bonar Law Says Investigation Shows Preparations Were Made for the German Attack.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced in the House of Commons today that as a result of Field Marshal Haig's inquiry the General Staff, War Cabinet, and the Government considered that the British higher army command had not been surprised by the German attack in the Cambrai region Nov. 30, and that all proper and adequate dispositions had been made to meet it.

The Chancellor said it was not necessary to dispel the rumor that Field Marshal Haig was being relieved of his command.

Bonar Law said Field Marshal Haig's inquiry was instituted before instructions had been received by him from the War Office. His report had been carefully examined by the General Staff, and the War Cabinet considered that it would be highly detrimental to the public interest to have a public discussion on the breakdown which undoubtedly had occurred. The Cabinet, added the Chancellor, was satisfied that proper measures had been taken to deal with any similar situation in the future.

Answering a question by Arthur Lynch, Nationalist member from West Clare, as to whether unity of command had been obtained on the western front in the sense that a Generalissimo had been appointed to direct operations, Bonar Law said "No," and made the same reply regarding the Italian front.

Asked by James Myles Hogge, Radical member for East Edinburgh, whether any one had been sent home as a result of the Cambrai incident, Bonar Law said that the answer he had given made it plain that the War Cabinet held the higher command blameless.

Noel Pemberton Billing, member for East Hertfordshire, asked the Chancellor if he could dispel the rumor that Field Marshal Haig was being relieved of his command in France. It was then that Bonar Law replied that it was quite unnecessary for him to do so.

Nine days after the victory of Sir Julian Byng's tanks the Germans attacked the new British salient and forced Byng's troops back for a distance of two miles.

ENGLAND SENDS COAL HERE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The scarcity of coal in the United States has become so great that coal is being brought from England to supply English ships in Atlantic ports. Ships which otherwise would have been light have transported coal to the United States to vessels lying at Newport News and New York, within a comparatively short distance of the coal fields of West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

When the coal problem became most acute in New York and Newport News ships were instructed to touch at New Orleans in the hope that they might obtain coal at that point. The belief existed that the Southern railroads were not so congested, and that freight and fuel could be obtained there without such long delay. The situation there has not been much better. As the result it is reported that more than a hundred vessels are lying idle at New Orleans without steaming coal.

field, United States Fuel Administrator, returned from Boston late last evening, and I am advised left Washington today. While in consultation with Mr. Storrow and while here he discussed various plans for conservation. He is giving most careful study to the subject and has had suggested to him many plans, including the making of a holiday once a week for a certain period of time, the curtailment of industries according to their importance to the war, the curtailment of business hours and amusement hours along lines that have been adopted in Boston, the curtailment of all industries to a certain number of hours each week, and, in fact, many other plans as well. I am not informed as to what Mr. Noyes's definite recommendations will be, nor can Mr. Noyes at this time advise what the recommendations of Dr. Garfield's office will be.

The position taken by the office of the New York State Administrator is quite simple. We realize that conservation measures will be necessary, but insist that, as the situation is serious in this entire section of the country, any orders for conservation should be general and in regard to the territory affected, and not such as would discriminate against New York in any way.

The local situation was slightly improved today, the movement at the docks yesterday being better than on Sunday.

Those who attended the meeting, besides Mr. Noyes and Mr. Wiggin, were Mr. Schley, Harry T. Peters, Chairman of the Coal Conservation Committee; G. M. Dahl, Deputy Fuel Administrator; J. J. Starrow, Fuel Administrator for Massachusetts; G. E. Cobb, statistician of the Massachusetts Administration; Fuel Administrator Ellis of Boston, and G. E. Allen of the New England Conservation Committee.

Mr. Noyes left for Washington at noon, taking to Dr. Garfield the suggestions decided upon at the meeting. Mr. Schley gave this statement of the results of the conference:

"It was agreed by Mr. Starrow and the New York representatives that conditions were equally bad in New York and New England and that something drastic should be done, and done quickly. So the suggestion was made, and it was agreed to, that the most effective way for saving coal would be to declare a national holiday each Monday for a period of eight or ten weeks.

"This is not a conservation measure, but a war measure, and if the President should issue a proclamation to that end it is going to be strictly enforced. The people must realize that we are at war and that we must bend all of our energies to win it."

Would Close All Business.

Mr. Schley said that all industries, including war industries, theatres, moving pictures, schools banks, and all businesses, would be closed. He said it could be done only by a proclamation by the President, and would be effective in such districts as the President might specify.

It was pointed out to Mr. Schley that the closing of munition plants and factories which have Government contracts might delay the winning of the war. He said in reply that while it was true that the proposed holiday would reduce output, what was the use of maintaining high production only to add to the growing piles of goods awaiting shipment for lack of coal at this and other North Atlantic ports. He thought it would be much better temporarily to halt production, coal waiting ships, send goods abroad, and clear the way for quick transportation of munitions in future. Mr. Schley estimated that each holiday would save 450,000 tons of coal, and that after ten weeks 4,500,000 tons would have been gained.

The proposal to away with the present priority order giving New England 500 cars of coal a day and to give New England the same share of arriving fuel as in January, 1917, was discussed at the meeting. This is said to be one suggestion which Mr. Noyes will lay before Dr. Garfield.

E. H. Outerbridge, President of the New York Chamber of Commerce, when asked what he thought of the Monday holiday plan, said there was no use postponing a determination of essential and non-essential industries. He said that if this country were guided by the experience of the Allies it would be able to work out a plan that would not bring great hardships to American business.

"In England," he said, "they constituted a commission with a very able organization. After deciding what were essentials and what non-essentials, the transition was not hasty, and wherever those employed in non-essential industries were to be thrown out of work they were trained for the essential industries.

"If the proposal to have one more holiday a week is meant to do the thing most seemingly equitable, then I do not think it has a sound basis, though it may be the easiest way out of the dilemma. Above all things we must turn to the work of the war and everything pertaining to it. In December, when Mr. Wiggin was appointed Fuel Administrator, I called upon him, in the interest of the Chamber of Commerce, and pointed out that we were running along then on a two or three day stock of coal."

Preparation Lacking.

Mr. Outerbridge said he did not want to take the position of criticising any one, but that there had not been sufficient preparation to meet the war emergency and the unprecedented cold weather. He concluded with the declaration that war industries must be kept going twenty-four hours a day.

Arthur F. Rice, Commissioner of the Coal Merchants' Exchange, said he was opposed to the holiday suggestion.

"When we have an enormous amount of coal at tidewater, only a few miles from the city," he said, "Fuel Administrators and others should exhaust every effort to get the coal to the city. I have said all along that we should have ice-breakers in the harbor. You cannot break ice with small tugs. When the Government has vessels lying idle, there is no reason why the ice should not have been broken up and this coal at tidewater brought to the city."

William Fellowes Morgan, President of the Merchants' Association, said last night that he would make no comment on the coal situation. He said he had conferred with the Fuel Administrators on plans for protecting the interests of New York manufacturers.

Restaurants Protest.

The fourth annual meeting of the Society of Restaurateurs of New York City sent a telegram to Dr. Garfield yesterday, saying it would not accomplish much to close the restaurants two or three days a week, inasmuch as it would be necessary to keep pipes from freezing, and that little fuel above that needed to warm their houses was being consumed to carry on business.

In the financial district the Monday holiday suggestion was disapproved. Bankers pointed out that this was not a time for relaxation, and that war conditions demanded that all plants run at maximum.

The daily statement of coal arriving at tidewater given out by the railroads yesterday used the car as the measure. Heretofore the figures have represented tons, but owing to a dispute as to whether fifty tons should be allowed for each car, or forty-five tons, Mr. Smith decided to give the number of cars, so as to leave no room for controversy. The statement gave these figures:

	Anthracite. Cars.	Bituminous. Cars.	Total. Cars.
Dumped in pockets	919	629	1,548
In barges	859	638	1,497
In cars	3,122	1,496	4,618

The statement also showed that there was within twenty-four hours of tidewater 2,055 cars of coal.

Translated into tons, at fifty tons to a car, the statement showed this:

	Anthracite. Tons.	Bituminous. Tons.	Total. Tons.

This means a total of 376,150 tons of coal at tidewater, with more than 100,000 tons due today. This is the best showing made by the railroads in two weeks. The amount of coal in barges, 74,850 tons by the railroad figures, or 67,365 tons according to Fuel Administration figures, represents what was ready to be towed. Fuel Administrator Wiggin said that between 25,000 and 30,000 tons reached the city yesterday. In addition 18,000 tons was furnished to ships, showing again a high figure for movement away from the coal slips. Mr. Wiggin said last night that the movement of coal from New Jersey yesterday was better than it had been.

G. M. Dahl, Deputy Fuel Administrator, said the great trouble now was harbor conditions, and shortage of tugs and barges. It was brought to the attention of Mr. Wiggin yesterday that many persons wanted to know the real reason why coal was not being brought over in larger quantities from New Jersey.

"Some railroads have their own tugs and barges and move the coal to the city and are responsible for bringing it here. Others are responsible for the coal only to tidewater. It must be moved from there by the dealers to whom it is consigned. Some of these dealers have their own barges, but depend on towing companies. And, as has been explained, just at present there is a shortage of available tugs because of the damage done to them by ice."

Nineteen Ships Coaled.

It was stated yesterday at Mr. Smith's office that nineteen ships had been coaled in the preceding twenty-four hours. Shipping men expressed the opinion that the situation of waiting ships was improving.

Mayor Hylan took steps yesterday to have the city acquire coal that he believes is being needlessly stored here. The Mayor sent this message to the Board of Aldermen:

> To the Honorable the Board of Aldermen:
>
> Gentlemen—I feel that your honorable body has had brought to its attention the serious consequences to the life, health, and welfare of the community resulting from the shortage of coal.
>
> One of the reasons for it, which seems to be within the power of the city to remedy, is the question of distribution. Great quantities of coal are within sight of our people, but the city is lacking in the power to take it for general distribution. This it should be permitted to do without loss or inconvenience to the owners.
>
> I would therefore recommend that your honorable body vest the power by ordinance to acquire surplus supplies, making provision for compensation to the owners, and providing further for its distribution through an agency of the Government.
> Respectfully, JOHN F. HYLAN, Mayor.

Following the reading of the message, Vice Chairman Moran offered an ordinance authorizing the Mayor, through such persons as he may designate, to acquire in the name of the city "by whomsoever the coal may be owned, in such quantities as may be determined for the preservation of public health, safety, and the relief of the poor of the city."

The proposed ordinance provides that the Corporation Counsel shall apply to the Supreme Court to determine the compensation to be paid to owners. The ordinance will come up next Tuesday.

About 300 members of the Greater New York Coal Dealers' League called upon Mayor Hylan in the afternoon. Nicholas Selvagi, counsel for the league, told the Mayor that small dealers had gone to yards and had been asked $3 in excess of the prescribed price.

The Mayor asked for names and dates, and said he would turn the information over to City Chamberlain Johnson, who is handling the coal situation for the city.

Coal Yards Violate Order.

In this connection Mr. Schley said later that the Fuel Administration had received complaints that many yards were selling coal in small lots. As the small dealer is allowed to charge 60 cents a hundredweight, this gave these yards $12 a ton instead of the $8.57. He said it had not been intended that yards should sell in 100-pound bags, and that the price of 60 cents was only fixed for the small dealers who bought from the yards. The Fuel Administration, he said, would consider that all yards doing this small order business were violating the Garfield order.

Of the 30,000 tons arriving in this city yesterday about 14,000 tons went to Brooklyn, the Fuel Administrator announced. Joseph F. Ahern, Deputy Administrator in the Bronx, said yesterday morning that the Bronx was getting more conversation than coal. He said that 200 apartment houses in the Bronx were without fuel yesterday and that a score of bakeries had appealed for coal.

In Brooklyn 135 schools were closed yesterday. They will remain closed until the end of the present term, on Feb. 4. In Manhattan three schools were closed because of broken pipes.

Mayor Hylan's committee distributed fifty tons of coal to the poor yesterday. Ten tons went to Brooklyn, twenty tons were distributed by the Salvation Army, and the remainder went to Jewish charitable institutions.

sponse to Mr. McAdoo's priority order, it has started some preference coal trains from Toledo.

The Lehigh Valley report said that movement was hampered by water shortage at Jersey City and in the Mahoning and Hazleton coal regions and adverse weather conditions at Buffalo. The Virginian Road reported that a shortage of men in the mechanical department resulted in engines not being kept up to normal conditions. The Wheeling & Lake Erie officials said that road and yards were badly frozen and men were unable to do much work because of the cold. The Wabash reported that practically no freight had moved in the preceding twenty-four hours, but that all lines west of Detroit were open.

The reports of local committees in various centres showed a general promise of better movements today. St. Louis reported that freight movements eastward had started slowly. Chicago reported this: "Iron and steel mill situation bad on account shortage of fuel due to storm conditions. Since Friday no empty box car deliveries have been made to the Western roads. Car movements into Chicago stopped until weather abates."

A later report from Chicago said that the railroads were trying to dig out the snow from their yards, and expressed the hope that by today there would be a movement of live stock and ample coal. Indianapolis reported snow through its entire territory. It was said that eastbound freight movement was not being handled currently because Eastern roads were not able to receive it.

Not Much Improvement.

Cincinnati reported weather moderating, but snowing. The committee said the general transportation situation was not improving much. The total northbound movement was given as 108 cars. Cleveland reported that the general situation showed some improvement, due to moderated weather. Pittsburgh reported a brighter outlook for today. Buffalo committee said that the Lackawanna was blocked on both tracks by a derailment accident. It reported a movement of 715 cars east, as compared with none the day before, and 340 west, as compared with none the day before. Buffalo had 6,451 cars on hand for movement east and 2,944 for movement west. Freight was stored in Buffalo to the amount of 11,061 carloads. Philadelphia reported a continuance of terminal congestion.

Reports made to Mr. Smith yesterday showed that the number of cars at anthracite coal mines was almost normal.

The first day of the embargo-permit system for domestic carload shipments to New York worked well, according to reports made to the Freight Traffic Committee, North Atlantic ports, last night. Many applications for freight were received at railroad stations and a larger number were received by mail. These applications will be passed on at once by the committee, headed by George D. Ogden, and the permits issued or denied. To obtain a permit, promise must be made of prompt disposal of freight at arrival. Failure to unload promptly will be met with a curtailment of transportation service to the offending consignee.

200,000 Cars Behind.

No definite estimate of what had been accomplished in the first two days of "Freight Moving Week" could be obtained last night. It was stated at the office of Mr. Smtih that the situation at the terminals in the New York district showed a general improvement over those of a week ago when 11,500 carloads awaited disposal. The chief effort of the railroads was diverted by the blizzard from pushing the clean-up of the terminals to getting their lines open from the Middle West. It is hoped that the interruption of car arrivals here will mean that the terminals will be in better shape when something like normal eastward movement is again restored.

The Middle West tieup sets the Eastern roads about 200,000 cars behind in movement, it was stated yesterday by a traffic expert. The movement of domestic freight from the terminals, together with the installation of the permit system, is hoped to be a guarantee against future congestion of domestic freight here and the coaling of the ships waiting in the harbor would clear out of the terminals and warehouses and yards much of the export freight in this district.

Western train service, inbound and outbound, both at the Pennsylvania Station and the Grand Central Terminal, showed slight improvement yesterday. Trains from Chicago were still from four to seven hours late and trains from further west still later. Snowdrift and freight car congestion were given as the chief reason for delay. The Pennsylvania system continued yesterday to sell tickets for the West subject to delay.

Mr. Smith does not believe that it will be necessary to issue further priority orders than those issued Monday night by Mr. McAdoo at his suggestion, but that with the return of moderate weather the greatest progress can be made by a general movement of freight in a steady stream. He expects widespread improvement today.

A. W. THOMPSON REPLACED.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Director General McAdoo spent nearly two hours today discussing the mid-Western storm conditions with R. H. Aishton, President of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway, who had been summoned here for a conference, and there were reports that Mr. Ashton would be named formally as Mr. McAdoo's representative about Chicago to supervise transportation as A. H. Smith is doing in the East.

In his determination to clear up congestion about the Washington terminals, Mr. McAdoo replaced A. W. Thompson, Vice President of the Baltimore & Ohio, with George R. Loyall, Assistant Vice President of the Southern, as transportation director in charge, with instructions to do anything necessary to get results. Mr. Thompson's heavy duties in connection with his own road, it was explained, prevented him from devoting all his time to the Washington situation.

Tomorrow Mr. McAdoo will confer with a number of State Railroad Commissioners who wish to give assurance of their co-operation under Government ownership and inquire about the railroad administration's intentions toward State rate regulations and maintenance of State commissions' authority. The Director General also will meet a delegation from the National Industrial Traffic League, an organization of shippers, who are prepared to assist clearing up the prevailing congestion.

Mr. McAdoo expects to announce tomorrow or Thursday the personnel of the board of four to investigate the brotherhoods' wage demands, and as soon as possible wants to take up other pending labor questions. Petitions are beginning to come in from train dispatchers all over the country asking higher pay. These employes are not formally organized.

ITALIANS STRIKE ON TWO FRONTS

Capture 291 Prisoners Near Monte Asolone and Considerable War Material.

RUSH TRENCHES ON PIAVE

Surprise Attack Near Capo Sile Nets Gains in Positions, Prisoners, and Booty.

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN NORTHERN ITALY, Jan. 15, (Associated Press.)—The Italians delivered an unexpected hammer blow last night against the enemy's positions on the heights just to the east of the Brenta River. Heavy losses were inflicted upon the enemy and several hundred prisoners were taken, including an Austrian Lieutenant Colonel and seven other officers. The Italians likewise captured a large amount of war material.

ROME, Jan. 15.—By an attack in the Monte Asolone region, on the northern front, the Italians have gained considerable advantages, including the capture of 291 prisoners, and inflicted very heavy losses on the enemy, the War Office announces.

A surprise attack on the Lower Piave front, east of Capo Sile, enabled the Italians to extend their bridgehead. Repeated enemy counterattacks on the captured trenches were repulsed.

The statement reads:

> In the Monte Asolone region fighting took place yesterday afternoon. Our troops, effectively supported by artillery, advanced gallantly to rectify their line from north of Osteria il Lepre to the head of the Cesilla Valley. In spite of the enemy's bitter resistance and very lively reaction, considerable advantages were gained and very heavy losses were inflicted on the enemy. We captured eight officers, including one Lieutenant Colonel, and 283 men of other ranks.
>
>
> To the east of Capo Sile, by means of a surprise action carried out with admirable spirit, we extended our bridgehead, wresting some trenches from the enemy and repulsing sanguinarily his repeated counterattacks. Two officers, forty-three men of other ranks, two trench mortars, and a few machine guns were captured.
>
> On the remainder of the front there were artillery actions, which were more severe astride the Brenta Valley. Patrol encounters, resulting in our favor, occurred in the valley of the Ponte della Priula.
>
> Four enemy airplanes were brought down by our airmen. Our artillery accounted for a fifth machine. Two other airplanes were downed by British aviators. In the afternoon seaplanes effectively bombed enemy forces in movement along the Lower Piave.

Italians Repulsed, Berlin Says.

BERLIN, Jan. 15, (via London.)—Italian attacks on the Austrian lines in the Monte Asolone and Monte Pertica sectors yesterday broke down with heavy losses, Army Headquarters announced this afternoon.

Following is the official statement:

> Violent attacks, which the Italians launched against Austro-Hungarian positions on Monte Asolone and Monte Pertica, broke down with heavy losses.
>
> Artillery duels were carried on throughout the day along the sectors on which the attack was made. They spread at times to the west, across the Brenta, and to the east, as far as the Piave.
>
> Along the Lower Piave also the artillery was active, the fire increasing frequently in support of Italian attacks in the delta of the river.

The supplementary report from General Headquarters tonight says:

> Between the Brenta and Piave there were frequent violent artillery engagements.

> Between the Brenta and Monte Pertica the Italians advanced to the attack after strong artillery preparation, which increased sometimes to drumfire. After very violent hand-to-hand fighting the enemy succeeded at a few points in penetrating our trenches, but was expelled by counterattacks. At many of the points of attack the first battle line is completely in our possession. The enemy suffered heavy losses.
>

British Downed Six Airplanes.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Operations of British forces on the Italian front during the last week are reviewed in an official statement today. The Italian successes in carrying out operations in the Monte Asolone region, as well as in the vicinity of Monte Spinoncia, and near Capo Sile, on the Piave River front, are noted in the announcement, which reads:

> In Italy during the last week our airplanes have destroyed six enemy machines and driven down others out of control. Our artillery made several successful shots, and our infantry patrol activity continues.
>
> The Italians successfully operated yesterday in the vicinity of Monte Asolone, Monte Spinoncia, and Capo Sile, capturing many prisoners.
>

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Jan. 14, (Delayed.)—The severe Winter weather prevents for the most part even small local operations in the mountain regions. It was expected that the comparative mildness of the season in the plains would induce fighting activity on the Piave, but so far the enemy has left the Italian lines unmolested, except for small skirmishes between patrols.

The Austro-Germans have kept their forces intact on the lower Piave, evidently not wishing to find themselves unprepared for an Italian offensive, or desiring to be always in condition to initiate one themselves.

The allied aviators are active. Recently an aerial combat took place in very exceptional circumstances, owing to the height reached by the enemy aviator. He was merely a speck in the sky, almost invisible, when Ranza, an Italian aviator, sighted him and flew to the same altitude. His barograph marked a height of 16,500 feet.

As soon as he was within machine gun range, Ranza attacked, and after a few minutes the enemy machine fell near Campo San Piero, with the dead body of its German pilot.

URGES GERMAN DRIVE BEFORE WE CAN FIGHT

Decisive Victory Within Six Months Would Eliminate America, Frankfurter Zeitung Says.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 14, (Delayed.)—The Frankfurter Zeitung, discussing the strategical outlook, speaks openly of a coming big offensive in the west, dwelling upon the propitious circumstances and the fact that if a decisive victory should be won within the next six months it would be unnecessary to reckon seriously with the American Army.

"The American troops are not yet in France," says the writer, "and they cannot yet arrive in considerable numbers."

He remarks that the American Government's recent statement on the shipping of grain confirms the German understanding of the situation, namely, that grain is more important than an auxiliary army.

"The difficulty with America's political and military situation," he says, "lies in the fact that, now that it is imperative to give the Entente Powers decisive help, she cannot keep her promise. The nimbus of America's world power has been thrown in the balance, and now that America has shown what she really can do, she is seen to have failed. This, perhaps, is one of the reasons why Wilson is more inclined for peace."

Then, taking another tack, the Zeitung warns Germans that, although the enemy's difficulties are enormous, they must not deceive themselves as to the work and sacrifices needed for a big offensive in the west. Even if the coming attack succeeds in piercing the allied front, it says, in order to turn such a victory to practical account it must be followed by the most rapid movement of troops and artillery.

GERMANS GET TRENCHES FRENCH OUST THEM

Raiders Attack Northeast of Verdun—French Capture a Score in Lorraine.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—German troops who attacked the French lines on a front of 200 meters in the Chaume Wood, northeast of Verdun, today succeeded in gaining a footing in some advanced elements, from which they were driven out by the French, says the official statement from the War Office tonight.

In Lorraine a French raid resulted in the capture of twenty Germans.

Violent artillery fighting on the Verdun front was reported in the afternoon's official communication, which said:

> On the right bank of the Meuse there were violent artillery actions late in the night in the sector between Haumont and Caurières Wood.
> In Alsace French patrols brought back prisoners. Everywhere else the night was calm.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—"Early yesterday morning a strong hostile raid northeast of Armentières was repulsed," says the War Office afternoon report. "During last night we raided the enemy's trenches north of Lens, bombing his dugouts and securing some prisoners and a machine gun.

"Otherwise there is nothing to report."

The report from Field Marshal Haig's headquarters in France tonight says:

> Beyond the usual artillery activity there is nothing of special interest to report.

BERLIN, Jan. 15, (via London.)—The afternoon statement issued by the War Office regarding operations on the western front says:

JEWS SUFFERING IN CHINA.

Sickness and Want Among Refugees from Russia America-Bound.

The State Department transmitted yesterday to John L. Bernstein, President of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, a cable message from Yokohama telling of suffering and sickness among the thousands of Jewish refugees from Russia stranded at Yokohama and Harbin. The message, from Samuel Mason, who was sent by the society to investigate conditions and remedy them, read:

The first word that Jews fleeing from Russia to relatives in this country were in distress in the Far East was received here in a letter from B. M. Fleischer, publisher of The Japan Advertiser of Yokohama, to Jacob H. Schiff. Three thousand dollars was cabled with which to obtain a suitable home for the refugees. The State Department directed the American Consul in Yokohama to investigate, and he reported that 1 man, 156 women, and 170 children, Jewish refugees awaiting transportation to the United States, were poorly fed and living in crowded quarters. He added that more than 2,000 immigrants en route to Yokohama were held in Harbin, lacking accommodations.

There are now reported to be 11,000 refugees in Harbin, 4,000 in Yokohama, and about 11,000 stranded between those places. The message of Mr. Mason will be considered at a meeting of the society, and further measures for relief will be taken.

Raise French Fighters' Pay.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—The Cabinet has approved the bill raising the pay of soldiers for the time they are actually engaged in fighting from 1 franc to 3 francs a day.

PETROGRAD ENVOYS CLASH WITH LENINE

DEMAND THEIR RELEASE

PETROGRAD, Monday, Jan. 14.—The entire Diplomatic Corps, including the neutral representatives, met at the American Embassy this morning and determined to go in a body to Premier Lenine and demand the imediate release of Constantine Diamamdi, the Rumanian Minister. Ambassador Francis, as Dean of the corps, telephoned Premier Lenine, asking for an immediate appointment. The diplomats considered the arrest of the Rumanian Minister as a most flagrant violation of the rights of Envoys, necessitating the most urgent action.

The Diplomatic Corps has been unable to ascertain the reasons for and the details concerning M. Diamamdi's arrest, and is taking the position that the cause of his arrest is of no consequence.

The Bolshevist Government authorities at the Smolny Institute declined to explain the arrest of the Rumanian Minister to The Associated Press, saying that details would be given out later.

The receipt of a telephone call from the American Embassy, together with the promise of the appearance at the Smolny Institute of the entire Diplomatic Corps, which up to this time has scrupulously avoided any semblance of recognition, has created a stir and caused unusual activity on the day set aside for the celebration of the Russian New Year.

Foreign Minister Trotzky's absence at Brest-Litovsk caused the diplomats to appeal to Premier Lenine instead of the Deputy Minister of Foreign Affairs. After a long conference with his subordinates, Premier Lenine agreed to receive the corps.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Announcement that the Rumanian Minister at Petrograd and his entire staff had been arrested by the Bolsheviki was made by the Rumanian Legation here today. The arrests are believed to to have been made in reprisal for the arrest of a number of Bolshevist agitators at Jassy, Rumania.

The correspondent of The Times says that the feeling of Rumanians toward the Russians is embittered greatly. The Rumanians feel that they have been thrice betrayed by Russia—first by the Czar's Government, next by the Provisional Government, and now, worst of all, by the Bolshevist Government.

A Reuter dispatch from Petrograd telling of the protest of the diplomats, says that "they expressed their profound indignation at the breach of diplomatic usages and demanded the immediate release of the Rumanians.

"Lenine sought to justify the arrest on the ground of Rumanian action against the Russian troops, but promised to call an immediate council of the commissioners to decide the question."

The Bolshevist Government announced on Jan. 2 that a committee of Bolsheviki visiting Rumania had been arrested, and would have been shot except for intervention by Cossacks. Several clashes have occurred on Rumanian territory between Russian and Rumanian troops.

LENINE ULTIMATUM TO THE ASSEMBLY

Will Demand Proclamation of Socialist Republic and Expropriation of All Property.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 15.—A Petrograd dispatch to the Bolshevist paper in Stockholm states that it is reported from the Smolny Institute that the Government at the meeting of the Constituent Assembly on Jan. 18 will present an ultimatum that Russia shall be proclaimed a Socialist republic and all land and property expropriated.

The Constituent Assembly must either accept this proposition, or it will come into open conflict with the Soviets, who stand on the side of the Government. In such a conflict, the correspondent says, the Constituent Assembly will come off the loser.

The same correspondent says the feeling among Kaledine's troops is weakening. Cadets and anti-revolutionary officers are still joining the army, but the soldiers are becoming less and less dependable, and for this reason Kaledine's operations are paralyzed. Deputations from the Donetz district have arrived in Petrograd in order to obtain information, which is regarded as a step toward reconciliation. In the Smolny Institute an optimistic view is taken on the subject of the fight with Kaledine.

The Government is organizing a system of barter with the peasants, who will not accept money but demand commodities in exchange. Last Friday 200 railway cars loaded with clothing were sent to different parts of Siberia to be bartered against corn.

A dispatch from Haparanda says that a number of German commercial travelers have arrived at Kiev, Odessa, and Moscow in order to establish connection with Russian commercial houses.

Lenine is said to be at a sanatorium in Finland, where he receives couriers with messages keeping him him informed as to the development of events.

WORRIED AT PEACE PARLEY.

Bolsheviki Fear They Will Not Be Able to Agree with Germany.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Deep apprehension and alarm are felt by the Russian Maximalists at the dangerous turn taken by the peace negotiations at Brest-Litovsk. Official advices received here today say the belief is spreading among the Bolsheviki that it is only possible to treat with Germany as victor or vanquished.

It was because of the growing feeling that the Russian negotiators were completely in the hands of the enemy in the fortress at Brest-Litovsk that the effort was made to transfer the conference to another point. Profound differences of opinion already have developed at the conference in regard to the political future of the Poles, Lithuanians, and Letts, and the conviction has followed that the German feeling that they could more readily enforce their will in regard to those matters at Brest-Litovsk, prevented a transfer of the negotiations to a neutral country.

EX-CZARINA INSANE, TATIANA NURSES HER

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Jan. 15.—News received by Maximalists here, friends of Lenine and Trotzky, gives interesting information concerning the Romanoff family.

The Czar seeks only oblivion and silence. The Czarina has become a religious maniac. The Czarevitch is seriously ill, suffering from his original consumptive disease. The Princess Tatiana, who was reported to have escaped to America, has never left Tobolsk, where the whole family are practically prisoners, and is taking the greatest care of her mother.

The Romanoffs are awaiting a stable, recognized Government at Petrograd or Moscow in order to appeal formally for exile to America or England.

WHITMAN FOR FARM DRAFT.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 15.—As a solution to the question of increased production, Governor Whitman said tonight at a meeting of the New York State Agricultural Society that he had framed an amendment to the military law giving the Governor power to draft men for service on the farms of the State.

"There may be a question in the minds of some," said the Governor, "as to whether we can compel labor on farms; but the United States Government has compelled the best boys God ever made to devote their lives to the service of their country, and, if those men may be drafted, why not the State draft men for farm labor, which is so essential to winning the war? There are many able-bodied men who for some slight physical defect have been rejected for army service who could do great service for the State in assisting in greater production on the farms."

The Governor said Attorney General Lewis had assured him the proposed act was constitutional.

CALLS ALL TO DRAFT AS THEY REACH 21

SHUTS ALIENS FROM BASES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—To keep the ranks of the war army filled the Government has decided on draft registration of all young men as fast as they become 21 years old. It has decided against raising the draft age limit above 31 years.

An Administration bill was introduced today at the request of the War Department by Chairman Chamberlain of the Senate Military Committee to register for draft all men who have reached 21 since June 5, 1917, when the draft law became effective. The Administration's support seems to assure its prompt passage. The bill agrees with the recent recommendations of Provost Marshal General Crowder. Registration of men of 21, it is estimated, will add about 700,000 men to the draft availables each year.

Other Administration bills introduced today by Chairman Chamberlain, at the request of the War Department, will supplement the draft law, to make it workable under conditions that have developed. One would permit furloughing of national army troops for harvest work or other civilian duty; another would eliminate enemy alien population from bases of calculation for draft quotas by making the basis for each State the number of men available in Class 1.

Enemy aliens were included in the basis for the first draft, and there was much complaint. Heavy enemy alien populations in some congested districts forced Americans to army duty, regardless of exemption claims in order to make up district quotas.

The bill to permit troops to go to agricultural work merely would authorize the Secretary of War to furlough men for civilian duty. It is known, however, that the War Department intends to use the authority principally to provide men for harvest time and other agricultural work vital to the food supply.

Another bill introduced by Senator Chamberlain would provide a distinctive badge or button for exempted men.

To facilitate collection of private insurance policies held by soldiers, another bill would require private insurance companies to accept the official army record as proof of death. It is designed to meet the cases of men reported missing in which there is no actual proof of death. In case of payment by insurance companies upon policies held by men reported missing and who later appear, the bill provides for reimbursement to the insurance companies by the Government.

Exemption of the Government from payment of the new war tax on automobiles is the purpose of still another bill introduced by Senator Chamberlain.

Arrangements have been made by the War Department to fill from the second draft some time this Spring the extensive vacancies in the Coast Artillery caused by the organization of provisional regiments of mobile heavy artillery for service in France. A limited number of men of particular aptitude for the special work of the corps were obtained from the first draft. There is still a deficiency of several thousand. Unless unforeseen emergency develops, organization of regiments for foreign serivce from the corps will not be carried further than to complete the units now in process of development.

MORE DEPTH BOMBS USED, GERMANS SAY

Press Reports Anti-Submarine Weapon Perfected Since American Destroyers Arrived.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—German newspapers, in referring to the Anglo-American measures against submarines, indicate that the employment of the depth charge has been greatly increased and perfected since the American destroyers arrived in European waters.

In the old days the destroyer was content to drop two or three depth charges in the vicinity where the submarine was last seen, but now, according to the German accounts, it is not unusual to find the destroyers persisting in the business of dropping depth bombs until as many as forty have been exploded, thus covering a large area where the submarine is likely to be hiding.

The Germans admit that this is a very unpleasant business for the operators of the U-boats. Thus the Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung contains the following account of the experiences of a U-boat man in the water patrolled by the American destroyers:

"One of our submarines shot a heavily laden steamer of 5,000 tons out of a convoy. A violent enemy counterattack followed. The destroyers left the convoy and followed the submarine, and in the course of a few minutes dropped thirty-nine water bombs around the spot where the U-boat was supposed to be submerged. Luckily they failed to hit her, and our U-boat escaped unscathed.

"The same submarine was previously followed by two airplanes from midday until evening, and pelted with twenty-three bombs, but escaped."

The same newspaper contains an account of a submarine cruiser which had a narrow escape from destruction in the explosion of a munition ship which she torpedoed from too close a range. The steamer, runs the account, blew up "with a terrific detonation, wrapped in a column of flame, and the next second the flames disappeared and the steamer was gone."

The force of the explosion upset the submarine's steering apparatus and did other damage, but the crew finally effected repairs so that the U-boat got into port.

WAR COUNCIL TO MEET.

Plenary Session of New Body to be Held at Versailles Soon.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—A plenary meeting of the Supreme War Council, with the Premiers and military representatives of France, Great Britan, and Italy in attendance, will be held at Versailles to discuss and plan military operations on the western front, which now includes Italy.

Arthur H. Frazier, Second Secretary of the American Embassy in Paris, has been designated by the State Department to attend the council as diplomatic representative of the United States until the permanent delegates arrive. Mr. Frazier will take no part in the deliberations, but will merely report the proceedings to his Government.

WANT JEWS TO QUIT POLAND.

Ministers Disinclined to Accede to Demand for Full Freedom.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 15.—The Jewish Correspondents' Bureau learns from Berlin that the Polish Ministers of Justice and Social Affairs have conferred with Jewish leaders and members of Municipal Councils regarding the settlement of the Jewish question in Poland.

The Jews told the Ministers that there must be more than a statement by the Premier promising freedom and justice. It was absolutely necessary, they said, that special laws affecting Jews be abolished, as the Jews in Russia had been emancipated by the revolution. Expulsion of Jews from villages must cease. Jewish quarters in the markets must be abolished, as well as the double tax for hospitals which is demanded of Jews.

The Ministers replied that the emigration of Jews from Poland seemed desirable, and asked the leaders whether they would co-operate in such a project.

FRANCE LENDS TO UKRAINE.

French Mint Also Said to be Printing Paper Money for Republic.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—France has lent the Ukraine 2,000,000 rubles in gold, according to a dispatch from the Odessa correspondent of The Times dated Friday. The French mint also has printed a large quantity of Ukraine paper money.

General Vinnichenko, President of the Ukraine Secretariat, it is added, in the course of a long report to the Rada, declared that France, the United States, Great Britain, Belgium and Rumania were interested greatly in the organization of the Ukraine Republic. He added:

"As circumspect people they hesitate to recognize the republic completely, but when they find it expedient they will extend us their hands, which we will accept if we think it necessary."

General Vinnichenko described the Ukraine as an oasis of order and constitutional policy, saying:

"One constantly hears that the regeneration of the Muscovite monarchy is impossible, and, therefore, perhaps the Ukraine will appear also as an oasis of revolutionary conquest."

SENATORS INDORSE ONE-MAN CONTROL

House Republicans in Caucus.

At a caucus tonight of the Republican members of the House of Representatives a proposal was made to indorse the creation of a Department of Munitions, but no action was taken because objection was made to including the Navy Department's purchasing system under the new authority, Congressmen declaring that Paymaster General McGowan of the navy had performed his duties in a way to give entire satisfaction.

It is now reported that the Senate Committee now favors such a plan as Mr. Willard and others propose, and that the Chamberlain bill may be so amended.

In his testimony before the Senate Committee today Mr. Gifford bluntly asserted that the War Department's efforts up to now had not been sufficiently concentrated. He had no criticism to make of the navy's system, but said co-ordination of all branches of purchase for army and navy was needed.

In his testimony Mr. Gifford said:

"The War Department must now let the manufacturers of the country know what the needs of the country are to be in the next year and a half. The Council of National Defense has no authority to carry on the work of supplying equipment. It can only advise.

"This country is going to have a tremendous strain put upon it. A system must be established that will meet the crisis."

"What is lacking in the program now being carried out?" asked Senator Chamberlain.

"The War Department needs one policy, one program, one head of its vast purchasing work," replied Mr. Gifford. "Without that the output of our tremendous industries will not be concentrated. The army will lose the advantage of co-ordination. What is needed is centralized authority."

"You favor one-man control of the supply work?" asked Senator Chamberlain.

"Yes," replied Mr. Gifford. "The fault now is that the Secretary of War has no one man upon whom he can rely to handle that work."

Asked if he favored a separate Department of Munitions, Mr. Gifford replied that it would not be necessary, but that one man ought to have control, with power to see that the maximum result was achieved.

Mr. Gifford urged an immediate census of the essential industries of the country. He produced figures to show that the Council of National Defense has saved $3,112,000,000 to the Government through reduction in prices of coal, pig iron, plates, and other war supplies.

Mr. Gifford presented the following table of savings:

	Old Price. Per Ton.	Govt. Price.	Saving.
Coke	$16	$6	$380,000,000
Pig iron	58	33	1,000,000,000
Bars	110	58	312,000,000
Shapes	120	60	180,000,000
Plates	225	65	640,000,000
Other products			600,000,000
Total			$3,112,000,000

In endeavoring to mobilize industry, Mr. Gifford said, prevention of waste was one of the first efforts.

"We even went so far," he said, "as to change the Paris styles of women's dress to save cloth, by taking it up with Ambassador Jusserand, and arranged to reduce cloth consumption next year about 33 1-3 per cent."

Twenty million dollars alone was saved, he said, by changing plans for the army cantonment buildings from one to two stories. Other savings Mr. Gifford cited in detail as follows:

Oats for army horses, $1,000,000; cotton duck, $1,226,000; leather options, $4,000,000; shoes, $1,632,000; airplane motors, $750 to $900 on each one; spruce for airplanes, $2,850,000; lumber for army cantonments, $2,000,000.

Willard Explains.

In a letter to Senator Chamberlain today Daniel Willard, Chairman of the War Industries Board, wrote that he did not intend in his evidence before the Military Affairs Committee yesterday to give an impression that he favored abolishing the Council of National Defense. He had been told, he wrote, that some members of the committee had gained that idea.

"What I meant to say was that certain activities of the Advisory Commission in connection with the purchase of supplies should now be discontinued," wrote Mr. Willard. "As a matter of fact, the matters in mind have already been discontinued. These activities were undertaken because of the very great demands made upon the purchasing departments of the army before they could be sufficiently expanded to take care of the increased work. That arrangement was, to my mind, justifiable under the circumstances, and I believe that upon the whole the work done by the subcommittee of the Advisory Commission has been creditable and of much value."

Baker's Statement.

"The reorganization described by the Secretary of War to the Senate Committee on Military Affairs is in effect the completed result of a series of steps which have been taken from time to time. This result may be described as follows:

"The five purchasing divisions of the War Department are co-ordinated and their conflicting needs reconciled through the Director of Purchases. In the Navy Department the various supply divisions reconcile their conflicting needs through the Bureau of Supplies. The Shipping Board, of course, speaks through its Chairman, and the purchases for allied Governments made in this country are under control of the Allied Purchasing Commission, which speaks through its Chairman.

"There are thus four agencies of the Government purchasing war supplies either for ourselves or our allies and dealing in raw materials and commodities of which the supply is either less than the demand or so nearly equal to the demand that priority is necessary to be determined as to the order in which the several Governmental departments should be furnished. The War Industries Board becomes the clearing place for such conflicts as may arise among these four Governmental agencies, and by keeping in constant touch with the manufacturing facilities and raw material supplies of the country will be able to prevent conflict and to assign priorities among the respective agencies. In addition to this, the War Industries Board will assist the several purchasing departments to convert factories from one form of industry to another and will supply information as to possibilities of increasing the raw material and manufacturing facilities.

How Work Is Divided.

"So far as the reorganization affects the War Department alone, the plan affects chiefly the Ordnance Department and the Department of the Quartermaster General. In the Ordnance Department, as soon as the number of officers brought in from civil life and trained to deal with ordnance questions sufficiently well permitted, a functional organization was substituted for the old specialized plan, that is to say, instead of having a bureau to deal with small arms, another dealing with guns, another dealing with explosives, the new plan has a Division of Procurement, which makes contracts for all kinds of supplies; a Division of Production, which takes completed contracts, follows them through the factory, assures the Government that proper progress is being made and that deliveries will be on time. The third sub-division, which works concurrently with the Production Division, inspects material in process of manufacture and for acceptance, and finally, when the material has been manufactured, inspected, and accepted, it is turned over to the Storage Division, which, having a knowledge of dates of anticipated deliveries, has made provision for storage, and thereafter has the custody and distribution of all ordnance supplies.

"In the Quartermaster General's Department the reorganization is primarily for the purpose of dealing with great storage and transportation problems, which apply to all of the War Department's divisions. The Acting Quartermaster General, in addition to the functions of procurement and inspection of supplies, becomes the Director of Storage and Traffic, and his bureau is reorganized so as to bring under his direction the whole question of inland transportation, storage, and overseas transportation for all War Department men and material. This unifies the whole question of overseas transportation and puts in a single officer the power and responsibility of the balanced program of shipping and for the full maintenance of equipment and supplies for the men both overseas and in the camps at home.

"These reorganized divisions are in part already manned by experts drawn from civil life to administer the newly segregated functions, and additional civilians of special competence and experience are being brought in, so that, when the divisions have been thoroughly manned, the best ability in the country will have been drawn from civil life, each man being in charge of work with which he has become familiar and with which he has made success in industry or commerce, and the organizations of which they will be parts are all so usual and normal in great business enterprises that they will be accustomed to co-operate with their associates in such an organization.

"It is believed that the organizations above described, both of the bureaus of the War Department and the relations of the several departments, will provide a businesslike and efficient plan for the co-operation of the several Governmental departments and for making easily available the full manufacturing facilities and raw materials and supplies of the country for service to the nation in the war."

Senate Committee Reported Agreed.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Legislation to be pressed by the Senate Military Committee for one-man control of war supplies probably will provide for an administrator with broad powers under the President instead of creating the new department and Cabinet officer to which President Wilson and Secretary Baker objected. Chairman Chamberlain and other members of the committee indicated tonight that the Chamberlain bill proposing a Secretary of Munitions would be so amended before it reached

HOUSE REPUBLICANS MOVE.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Republican members of the House conferred tonight upon a resolution offered by Representative Medill McCormick to pledge the minority to support a bill to create a Minister of Munitions. The conference, which was participated in by more than 125 members, failed to reach a conclusion, and action was postponed until a further meeting. Republican leaders want to force a reorganization of the War Department along broad lines, and most of them, judging from the speeches tonight, favor a department for the purchase of war supplies.

Mr. McCormick said that he did not believe that there should be created a new department of the Government, but that a Minister of Munitions should be appointed for the period of the war. This Minister, he held, should not be a member of the Cabinet, but should devote himself to the direction of supplies. He said that the breakdown in the Quartermaster's Department and the failure of the Ordnance Bureau had shown the need of a Minister of Munitions.

SPY'S FATE RESTS AT WASHINGTON

OTHER ARRESTS REPORTED

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 15.—Facing a possible sentence of death by court-martial as a spy, Walter Spoermann, the German who was caught in an alleged attempt to blow up a powder magazine at Camp Morrison, the new aviation base near Newport News, Va., arrived here in custody this afternoon, and, after being questioned in the office of the United States Marshal for several hours, was locked up in the Baltimore city jail.

With the Department of Justice rests the decision whether he shall be tried under civil or military law. Conviction as a spy by court-martial carries the penalty of death. If tried in the civil courts under the Espionage Act he might escape with an alternative penalty.

In reply to questions put to him while on his way here Spoermann said he had no regular place of residence, having lived in New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore in recent years. When asked where he stopped in Norfolk, he said he "always put up at the Monticello." He apparently had forgotten that the hotel recently was destroyed by fire.

When it was suggested that he might have been one of the crew of the Deutschland, the submarine that made two trips to America, he thoughtfully frowned.

"That sets me thinking," he said. "I was in Baltimore when the U-boat arrived and met several of the crew. Perhaps they think I may resemble one of them."

The Woman in the Case.

The arrest of Spoermann has resulted in the disclosure of the identity of the woman referred to in letters found in his possession. This woman is his fiancée, Miss May Stoop, a violin soloist of this city, now filling engagements in Washington hotels. She believes Spoermann innocent, but says she will renounce him if the charges against him are proved to her satisfaction.

It was through the woman in the case that Spoermann was traced from Baltimore to Washington, and finally to Newport News, where he was arrested. Skillful interception of her mail resulted in the Naval Intelligence operatives finding Spoermann in the employ of a construction contractor at the aviation field.

Miss Stoop, an attractive brunette of 23, is greatly agitated over the arrest. She says she met Spoermann in this city while she was playing at one of the hotels; they intended to marry when the war ended. She was horrified, she said, when she read today that he had been arrested as a spy. She had opposed his employment at military camps because he was a German. She says she does not believe the reports about his receiving large sums of money, for at times he was very much in need of funds.

"I am an American girl and would not do anything against my country," said Miss Stoop. "I would break my engagement with Walter and never speak to him again if he was a spy, but I know he is not. I am sure he can prove he is not."

Another development of the day was the arrest of Marius Aisch, 31 years old, an old friend of Spoermann. Aisch, a German who has taken out his first naturalization papers, says he is an ardent American and a subscriber to the Red Cross.

Spoermann three weeks ago visited Aisch, who was his boyhood chum in Bremerhaven, Germany. He left at Aisch's home on Fayette Street two trunks. Aisch, on reading this morning of Spoermann's arrest, went immediately to the Western Police Station and surrendered. He was patriotic in his utterances, and freely gave information about Spoermann. He said he wanted to be an American and had severed his friendship with a number of Germans because of their sympathies for the Fatherland.

"I am willing to fight for Uncle Sam," he asserted. He gave the authorities a list of those Germans, who, he declared, were constantly violating the barred zone regulations.

Aisch, it developed, held some papers belonging to Spoermann. Little, apparently, of any incriminating nature was discovered among the papers. Aisch explained that Spoermann left the papers with him for safe keeping.

Another man sent to jail today was the alleged spy's brother, Frederick H. C. Spoermann, who was arrested here last night. He is held on the charge of violating the regulations applying to the barred zone. His wife saw him at the office of the United States Marshal, and was allowed to speak with him for a brief while. He told his wife not to worry, that he had committed no crime and ultimately would be freed.

Possibly Seven or Eight Arrests.

There is a vast amount of secrecy among the Government officials as to the number of persons arrested in connection with the Spoermann case, although reports to Washington indicate seven or eight are in custody.

Records at the local Federal office show that an enemy alien permit was issued to Spoermann several months ago, and the record showed statements from Spoermann that he came to America with his brother Frederick in 1910. These statements, so far as could be ascertained, were never verified by Federal agents.

Papers seized in Spoermann's rooms here in Baltimore last week, along with those indicating dealings with both Bernstorff and Boy-Ed, indicated that he had "reported for service" in Germany after the war began in August, 1914. This would apparently dispute Spoermann's statement as to his alien record in 1910, except that he could have returned to Germany surreptitiously, reported for service there, and later reentered the United States without detection.

Law on the Trail of Spies.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—In a high official quarter the statement was made tonight that the evidence which the Government had obtained in connection with the arrest of Lieutenant Walter Spoermann of the German navy inspired the conviction that he was a most dangerous alien enemy, that it seemed reasonably certain he was in the pay of the German Government, and that the case was one of the most important developed since the country entered the war against Germany.

Department of Justice officials and officers of the navy were extremely reticent regarding the case, but this is understood to be due to the fact that the arrest has resulted in several important new lines of investigation. Secretary Daniels would not discuss the case further than to say that the Navy Intelligence officers in charge of the case were co-operating with the Department of Justice, and that no final decision had been reached as to whether the accused would be turned over to the civil courts for trial, or would be dealt with otherwise.

There appeared to be considerable confusion regarding the law applicable to the case. When it was pointed out to Secretary Daniels tonight that if Spoermann were turned over to the civil courts for trial under the Espionage or some other law he might not receive adequate punishment, the Secretary replied that the surrender of Spoermann to the civil authorities would not necessarily deprive the Government of the right to have the prisoner transferred back to the proper military authorities, if that should be deemed wise later.

Section 1,343 of the Revised Statutes, in the opinion of some officials, would provide adequate punishment if the facts in the case warranted its application to the case of Spoermann. This section, dealing with spies, has been on the statute books since 1806 and was revised in 1862 and 1863. It provides:

"Section 1,343. All persons who, in time of war, or of rebellion against the supreme authority of the United States, shall be found lurking or acting as spies in or about any of the fortifications, posts, quarters, or encampments of any of the armies of the United States, or elsewhere, shall be triable by a general court-martial, or by a military commission, and shall, on conviction thereof, suffer death."

This section of the law was included in General Order 100, drafted by Francis Lieber, Professor of International Law in Columbia University, by direction of President Lincoln, for the Government of Union armies in 1863 in the civil war. It was designated as Paragraph 88 of General Order 100, which has since been used for the Government of American armies in time of war.

There was a disposition among some officials to question the wisdom of turning the prisoner over to the civil authorities for a hearing, because the Espionage act and the civil statutes were not thought to provide adequate punishment for a spy such as Spoermann is alleged to be, and that the proper course to pursue would be for the navy or the army to retain possession of the prisoner until it was determined whether Section 1,343 of the Revised Statutes, and the Articles of War, covered his case better than the Espionage act.

Both the military and naval codes were left intact in the Espionage act, and both carry the death penalty for spying in a zone of operations. An alternative sentence of up to thirty years' imprisonment and $10,000 fine is allowed under the Espionage act.

ASSERT SPIES DELAY THE LIBERTY MOTORS

Detroit Manufacturers Protest to City Officials That Germans Infest Factories.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 15.—Detroit is a nest of German spies who are holding number of munition manufacturers who appeared before the Common Council committee today to protest against the passage of a law licensing private detectives.

It was stated that thousands of the Kaiser's best soldiers were here in Detroit and that every big Detroit factory had its German fighters who fought by keeping back the production of ammunition and thus far had been highly successful.

J. M. Eaton, Superintendent of the Lincoln Motor Company, engaged in making motors for airplanes, declared that his company should have been sending motors to France two months ago, but shipments had not yet started because of the Germans.

"Our tools, which we use in the manufacture of these motors," said Mr. Eaton, "are made in twenty-nine different factories in Detroit. The tools are delicate and must be exactly right, or they are worthless in our work. Most of them are delivered to us damaged beyond repair, so that we cannot use them. The result is that we are two months behind on our schedule. That is helping the Kaiser with a vengeance, for we have learned beyond question that these tools were damaged by German spies which infest the factories."

SPIES REPORTED AT LARGE.

Names Known to Authorities, but No Intimation of Arrests.

The arrest of the alleged German spy, Walter Spoermann, near Newport News, Va., Federal Secret Service agents in New York would not discuss yesterday, pending certain investigations. A man formerly high in the American Diplomatic Service said two other Germans known to be spies were now at large in the United States. The names of these men are known to the authorities, but it was said there was no reason for saying that the arrest of either was imminent. It was even said that one of the men has been visiting cantonments under official sanction, and that he has taken a large number of photographs at these camps.

One of these men arrived in Berlin from the United States a few months before Congress declared war on Germany. He immediately thereafter left for the front in Silesia, where he conferred with the Kaiser. He returned to the United States several months ago, and is now free to go where he wills. He has taken out citizenship papers.

At the present moment in this city four Germans who were intimately associated with German Embassy affairs in this country during the Bernstorff regime are at liberty. These men are Adolf Pavenstedt, the confessed go-between in the Bolo Pacha conspiracy case; Hugo Schmidt of the Deutsche Bank, who was the paymaster of the Bolo-Bernstorff plot; Carl Buenz, who stands convicted of conspiracy against the United States on behalf of Germany, and Colonel Piorkowski, the former Krupp agent and intimate friend of Boy-Ed.

Schmidt makes his home at the German Club, which is also frequented by Pavenstedt. There they can meet, whenever they desire, any German or German sympathizer with whom they wish to confer and always can be assured of privacy so far as the American Secret Service is concerned. Colonel Piorkowski reports twice a week to a custodian. Supreme Court Justice Hotchkiss.

William Mershermer, formerly of 308 Magnolia Avenue, Jersey City, but for the last few months a resident of New York City, said to be the son of the Inspector General of Prisons of Germany, after spending the night in the Hudson County Jail, was taken to Newark yesterday by Deputy United States Marshal Duff and arraigned before United States District Attorney Lynch. It is said there is evidence which is expected to connect the young man with a waterfront fire in Brooklyn.

Mershermer was closeted with Agent Stone of the Federal Department of Justice for almost an hour and a half. At the end of the examination Mr. Stone said he had ordered the prisoner sent to Ellis Island. He added that the investigation was continuing. Affidavits are in the hands of the authorities accusing the young man of uttering disloyal sentiments. "Information from another source," besides these affidavits, influenced Mr. Stone, he said.

Before he was sent to Ellis Island the prisoner told a reporter that his arrest was a mistake. He said he was pro-American.

TWO CAUGHT IN SYRACUSE.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 15.—United States secret service agents today completed the investigation of twenty-two cases of local individuals suspected of being German sympathizers. In two cases, those of Adolph Launert and Frank Hardmann, recommendation was made that they be interned as enemy aliens.

Launert was formerly a hotel waiter here. He was arrested for pro-German utterances. His picture in the uniform of a German officer was found among his effects. Letters were also found addressed to a German friend employed as a waiter at the Hotel St. Regis in New York. Hardmann was working in a local steel plant. He admitted having escaped from the interned German ship Neckar.

Women Held Under Espionage Act.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 15.—Two women were held here yesterday by Federal officials, charged with acts detrimental to the conduct of the war. Miss Amelia Ventrone, who was arrested yesterday under an indictment in the Federal Court, is alleged to have said at a public meeting: "I hope the mothers whose sons go to war will never see them again alive." Miss Marie E. Clarke, arrested under the Espionage act, is alleged to have threatened the life of the President.

WILSON LETTER CHEERED

President Expresses Confidence That the Men "Will Rise to the Occasion."

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 15.—Whole-hearted support of the Government in the war and criticism of Federal courts for decisions adverse to the union, expressed in the reports of officers, received the vigorous approval of the 1,500 delegates attending the biennial convention of the United Mine Workers of America, which opened here today. They also cheered enthusiastically a letter from President Wilson.

The President's letter, dated Jan. 8, as read by Frank J. Hayes, President of the miners, follows:

> If it were possible for me with a clear conscience to leave Washington next week, you may be sure I would accept with real pleasure the invitation so kindly conveyed by your letter of Dec. 30, to address the international convention of the United Mine Workers of America; but, in view of the many things that are daily demanding my attention and which it would be absolutely wrong for me to turn away from, it is impossible for me to come, and I can only ask you if you will not convey to the assembled delegates a very warm and cordial greeting from me for the new year, and say to them that I would like to be present to say something, if I could, which would make them realize how much the safety of America and the whole honor and dignity and success of her action in the present crisis of the world depend upon their fidelity and energy and devotion.
> I do not doubt that they will rise to the occasion, but I do want them to realize how deeply and sincerely interested the Government is in their welfare, and how anxious it is to be instrumental in doing anything that it is possible to do to further it.

Governor Goodrich, of Indiana welcomed the miners in a patriotic speech, in which he told them that the men who go down into the earth to dig coal in the present crisis are just as important as the men who are "going over the top."

20,000 Miners in Armed Forces.

President Hayes, in addressing the convention, said:

"There must be no half-way allegiance on the part of the coal miners in giving the best that is in them for the preservation of the ideals and principles of a democratic people. Let us in this convention firmly resolve that every atom of energy we can contribute to the winning of the war will be given gladly, freely, and in the same loyal spirit as those who go out to give their lives. It is a matter of particular pride that approximately 20,000 members of our organization have enlisted in the military forces of our nation."

Loyal speeches were also made by other leaders of the union.

Both President Hayes and Secretary-Treasurer Green devoted considerable space in their reports to the legal fights against the union. In one case, the Coronado Coal Company won a $600,000 verdict against the union in the Federal Court at Fort Smith, Ark., for alleged violation of the anti-trust law, it being charged that the union had conspired to prevent the production of non-union mined coal. In the other case the miners were enjoined in West Virginia from soliciting men to join the union.

The miners' President said that while the Government is setting aside the Anti-trust laws to permit the formation of exporting trusts and pools "it seems to be declared an open season by the Federal judiciary for hunting labor unions."

Denies Shortage of Labor.

The report of John L. Lewis, Vice President, stated that since the beginning of 1912 the United Mine Workers had obtained wage advances ranging from 30 to 104 per cent. on different classifications of labor.

Lewis presented figures to show that the coal shortage in the bituminous and anthracite fields was due to the lack of railroad facilities. Basing his figures on a car shortage questionnaire sent to local unions, he said the loss of time due to railroad congestion was equivalent to 36,760,716 tons.

The report refers to the labor shortage as a "bugaboo," and states that the cry of lack of labor is due to those who seek to hold down wages to the lowest level.

BERGER'S PAPER LOSES.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The District Supreme court here today upheld the right of the Postmaster General to exclude from the second-class mailing privilege the Milwaukee Leader under the terms of the Espionage act.

The proceedings brought by the Milwaukee Social Democrat Publishing Company, which prints the paper, and of which ex-Representative Victor Berger is a member, were dismissed. It was the first test case of the right of the Government to exclude a newspaper from the mails for violating the new law.

GERMAN FLIERS STRIVE TO BOMB OUR AIR CAMPS

Sail Low Over American Aviation Centres, but Aim Is Bad and They Do No Damage.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Jan. 15, (Associated Press.)—German air raiders are showing an increased interest in the American aviation centres, especially those nearest the lines. During one of the most recent incursions the German airplanes descended within 200 feet of the ground, endeavoring to make sure that the several bombs which they dropped should hit their targets, which in most cases were buildings in which men were billeted. The German aim, even at such close range, was poor, for no Americans were killed.

Another German machine which flew over the position later dropped a bomb from a higher altitude at a hangar. The bomb missed its mark, but dug a great hole in the adjoining field.

At a certain place near by a German squadron descended to within 300 feet of the earth and sprayed an anti-aircraft machine gun position with a hail of bullets, but did not hit any of the gunners, all of whom were French.

The Americans at the most advanced aviation camp have found a novel mounting for the machine guns used for defense against enemy airplanes. When the guns for the newly dug pits arrived it was discovered that only field carriages had been provided. These were unsuitable for aircraft defense work, so swivels were constructed from old motor truck springs. These improvised mounts are said to be as good as any used.

KAISER'S DEGREE REVOKED.

U. of P. Trustees Take Similar Action on Count von Bernstorff.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 15.—The University of Pennsylvania Trustees yesterday revoked the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws which was bestowed upon the Kaiser in 1905 and upon Count von Bernstorff in 1910. The Trustees' resolution follows:

> Resolved, That the roll of honor of the University of Pennsylvania, which contains the names of all those upon whom the honorary degrees have been conferred, should be purged of the names of any who have subsequently been guilty of high crimes and misdemeanors and of offenses against civilization and the humanities.
> Resolved, That in pursuance of the foregoing resolution the names of the German Emperor and Johann H. von Bernstorff be stricken from the roll.

The board postponed action on the proposed admission of women to the Academic, Wharton School and Towne Scientific School. It was decided to refer the question to a special committee to be appointed by Provost Smith. Failure of the Trustees to decide on the admission of "co-eds" is believed to have been due to the stand taken by the Alumni and undergraduates, who are vigorously opposed to opening the doors of all the departments to women.

BRITISH TRADE INCREASES.

Net Gain in Imports and Exports Last Month Was $33,000,000.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The Board of Trade returns for December show that imports increased over the corresponding month the previous year by £9,415,000, ($47,075,000) while exports decreased £2,787,000, ($13,935,000.)

For the year 1917 the total imports were £1,065,256,000, and the total exports, £525,308,000.

RISKS OF RED CROSS MEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Jan. 15.—The dangers under which the American Red Cross members at the Italian front are working are illustrated by two episodes.

At Christmas time Major Vernon S. Prentice of New York, in charge of the ambulance service, distributed cigarettes and chocolate to the soldiers in the Piave first lines. In one of the trenches an Italian Colonel observed that the Austrians were setting up a battery on the opposite side of the river. At his orders the Italian gunners smashed it.

An officer who accompanied the Americans suggested that they move on, since the Austrians would surely retaliate. No sooner had they turned a bend in the trench than they heard a fearful explosion. The part of the trench they had just left had been destroyed. The Americans turned back and helped to extricate the soldiers from the débris. One of the party picked up an Austrian hand grenade which had been thrown from the enemy's line, less than thirty yards away, and tossed it into the river, where it exploded.

Major Guy Lowell of Boston of the permanent mission to Italy, was dining in his hotel in Padua when it was struck by an air raider's bomb. Hearing groans in the next room he rushed to the assistance of the victims whom he found under a mass of débris which had killed several in its fall.

NO SLACKERS IN RED CROSS.

Americans in France Are Quakers or Otherwise Ineligible for Fighting.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—The Red Cross today issued the following statement:

"The American Red Cross in France does not admit to its staff any Americans of draft age unless they present the proper credentials from the United States military or naval authorities, giving the reasons why they are not qualified for military or naval service.

"When the organization was first brought together there were in it a number of Americans of conscription age, but these either satisfied the military authorities of their disability or left the Red Cross service and joined the service of the army or navy.

"On all such questions the American Red Cross is working most conscientiously with the military authorities in France and at home."

It was announced that a very small percentage of the Red Cross personnel in France consisted of young men. Most of the young men belong to the Society of Friends and claim exemption as conscientious objectors. They are engaged largely in reconstruction work in the war zone.

NOTED GERMAN FLIER DEAD.

Vice Sergeant Muller, Killed by Fall, Claimed 38 Victories.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 15.—The death of Vice Sergeant Max Muller, one of the most successful German airmen, is reported in a Munich dispatch to the Lokal-Anzeiger of Berlin.

Muller was killed in a fall resulting from a defect in his engine. He claimed thirty-eight victories in aerial engagements.

"Gieve" Life-saving Waistcoats

for insuring safety at sea.

This should especially interest Americans about to embark for war service in Europe, inasmuch as the "Gieve" Waistcoat is conceded to be the most practical and effective life-saving device yet invented, and is in general use among the officers of the British Navy. Made on the same lines as an ordinary waistcoat, it is worn in similar fashion, while its mechanism —simple but ingenious— is readily available for immediate use.

B. Altman & Co. are the authorized distributors of the "Gieve" Life-saving Waistcoats in the United States.

BAGLEY DESCRIBES LOSS OF DESTROYER

ROWING FOR 23 HOURS

Within Seven Miles of the Scilly Islands When Picked Up by a British Steamer.

Details of the heroism of men on the destroyer Jacob Jones, which was sunk by a submarine on Dec. 6, 1917, were told by Lieutenant Commander David W. Bagley and other officers of American destroyers, who arrive in America from a European port yesterday.

After Commander Bagley jumped off the sinking destroyer, he found himself swimming beside a seaman, who hailed him cheerily and said:

"Captain, where do we go from here?"

Commander Bagley was in the water for ten minutes and was picked up by two seamen and Lieutenant Norman Scott, who were in a twenty-foot dory. He had just been taken into the dory when the submarine was seen in the distance, taking one man on board.

The Commander found that some of the four rafts had more men than they could safely carry and that others could accommodate more. Lieutenant S. F. Kalk, who was on one of the overloaded rafts, had already set out to swim to another, a swim which later cost him his life through exhaustion and exposure. Commander Bagley and the men in his dory carried men from one raft to another until the weight was equalized.

After this was done the Commander decided that he and the others in his boat would row to the Scilly Islands, about thirty miles north, and send for help from there. The torpedo attack had occurred with so little warning and had been followed by an internal explosion of such violence that no wireless message could be sent from the destroyer.

Commander Bagley's party was the last to be picked up. A British steamer accidentally found some of the survivors on one of the rafts, which had floated great distances away from one another and sent out wireless calls, which resulted in the dispatch of ten British ships to save the rest. All of those who had made their way on the rafts were saved by 8 o'clock the next morning.

Those in the Commander's dory, all of whom had been thoroughly soaked, rowed steadily for twenty hours and had covered twenty-three of the thirty miles to the Scilly Islands when they were picked up by a small British boat. Work at the oars had served to keep them warm, and they escaped with little ill effect from their experience.

The American naval officers who arrived yesterday included Commanders B. C. Allen, C. T. Hutchins, N. E. Nichols, and C. F. Neal, Lieuts. Norman Scott and W. M. Bertrand and Ensign N. N. Gates.

When reports were mentioned that submarines had been sighted from the vessel which brought these officers to this country one of them, who had been submarine hunting for nine months, said:

"Do you know how many German periscopes I have seen in that time? Just two. At first, every time I saw a floating spar or a lighthouse top in the distance and every time I got a speck in my eye I thought I saw a periscope. Steamship passengers are not necessarily untruthful because they tell of seeing several periscopes on a voyage."

John Masefield, the poet, arrived in America yesterday and will go to Washington, after which he will start on a lecture tour.

WARBURG DOUBTS RUMOR.

Report of Federal Foreign Exchange Bank Project Discredited.

Denial was made yesterday of the report appearing in a morning newspaper that plans were under way for Federal legislation providing for the creation of a "foreign exchange bank" to be operated in conjunction with the Federal Reserve Bank, and that Max May, who has been relieved of his duties as Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company for the duration of the war, would be made the head of the proposed institution.

Paul M. Warburg, Vice Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, who was in New York, said: "All I know about it is what I saw in one of this morning's newspapers. We (referring to members of the Reserve Board) know nothing about such a plan, nor do we believe in it."

Officers of the New York Reserve Bank and bankers generally said that as far as they knew no serious consideration was being given to any plan for a foreign exchange bank. They pointed out that Federal Reserve Banks were permitted to engage in foreign banking transactions, and that they had been dealing in Indian and Argentine exchange.

Mr. May went to Washington yesterday. He has offered his services to the Government, and his visit presumably had to do with an appointment in the Government service. Mr. May is regarded as the best foreign exchange expert in the United States.

SAYS ARMY IS SLANDERED.

Congressman Cary Wants Charges of Drunkenness Investigated.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Congressional investigation of "slanderous charges" against the character of American troops abroad, alleged to have been circulated by the Anti-Saloon League, was proposed in a resolution today by Representative Cary of Wisconsin.

The resolution proposes that Speaker Clark appoint seven members from the Military Committee to inquire into the charges. It says that statements "by the Anti-Saloon League that our soldiers in Europe are drunkards" are "slanderous and detrimental to the character and reputation of our boys, who are sacrificing their lives for liberty."

WESTERVILLE, Ohio, Jan. 15.—Ernest H. Cherrington, general manager of the publishing interests of the Anti-Saloon League of America here, disclaimed any knowledge of references by the league that reflected on American soldiers in France or that charged them with drunkenness, as inferred in the resolution of Congressman Cary.

BISMARCK OUT OF POLITICS.

That's Why North Dakota Governor Won't Change Capital's Name.

FARGO, N. D., Jan. 15.—Members of the Women's Relief Corps here who recently adopted a resolution asking Governor Frazier to bring about a change in the name of the capital of the State (Bismarck), announced today that they had received a letter from the Governor, stating that "as Bismarck has been out of German politics for some time and had nothing to do with the present trouble," the change was inadvisable.

vember and December, 1914, was greatly instrumental, but not the essential factor, in causing the arrest of Caillaux.

Several more interviews with Mme. Caillaux were printed today. In one of these she said:

"We never knew or saw Count van Luxburg at Buenos Aires. It is possible that he tried to approach my husband. It is probable that some third person tried to bring them together, but without success. I never left my husband one hour. I know every person with whom he talked, and at no moment was he in communication with von Luxburg."

Attempt to Smirch Poincare.

The reports regarding the contents of the safe vary in every newspaper. L'Humanité says that the documents include a sketch of a concordat between France and the Vatican, drawn up by President Poincaré himself, and documents on relations between Premier Clemenceau and Cornelius Herz, which latter would have reference, apparently, to the Panama scandals. There were also, according to this newspaper, a letter from M. Clemenceau to Camille Barrère, French Ambassador to Italy, and a document of Tomasso Tittoni, former Italian Ambassador to France.

The Journal du Peuple, whose editor ends his editorial with a "Vive Caillaux," says that Caillaux never saw or corresponded with Count von Luxburg, although an Italian in Argentina several times tried to induce the ex-Premier to enter into relations with German diplomacy. The same person, on the day of Caillaux's departure from Argentina, the newspaper says, offered to give Caillaux a letter from Count von Luxburg guaranteeing him safety during the voyage in case an enemy vessel should be met, but the offer was refused.

The Government was interpellated today in the Chamber of Deputies as to the legality of the search of Caillaux's safe in the Florence Bank. Edouard Ignace, Under Secretary for Military Justice and Pensions, replied that all legal forms had been observed.

By a vote of 379 to 105 the Government was supported by the Chamber on M. Ignace's reply.

LANSING KEEPS SILENCE.

Won't Affirm or Deny Reports That He Caused Caillaux's Arrest.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Secretary Lansing and other high officials of the State Department today refused to authorize any statement with regard to the unofficial dispatch from Paris to the effect that the arrest yesterday of ex-Premier Caillaux was the result principally of a cablegram from Secretary Lansing showing that Caillaux had communicated in 1915 from Buenos Aires with the Berlin Foreign Office.

Secretary Lansing refused to deny or affirm the statement that he had sent such a cablegram to Paris. Later in the afternoon another high official of the department said: "The State Department has no comment to make," and declined to be drawn into any discussion of the matter.

The reticence of the department, however, was not able to break down the suspicion that the United States Government had obtained information implicating Caillaux, and that this information had come into its possession in connection with its investigaton of the activities of Count von Luxburg at Buenos Aires and those of Bolo Pacha, whose plot was financed by Count von Bernstorff, former German Ambassador here.

The State Department has made public only a very small number of the cipher messages exchanged between German diplomats and plotters in North and South America and the Belin Foreign Office, and it is believed that some of the many secret messages that have been withheld have an important bearing on the Caillaux case.

The Mothers' Union

A scientist startled the world one day by announcing that insanity was a surprisingly regular performance.

He demonstrated that a demented youth in Oshkosh would suddenly fall to collecting women's shoes. Not useful shoes, or dainty slippers—just any old feminine footwear.

Meanwhile, a lad in Holland was madly collecting wooden shoon. And a third in Upper Burmah, crazy with the heat, was assembling straw sandals.

The same trouble showed the same symptoms in every case. The discovery made the scientist famous.

He arrived at his deductions through an extended correspondence with fellow physicians in all parts of the globe.

By similar methods The Mother's Magazine through intimate correspondence with hundreds of thousands of its mother-readers has established facts and brought to light or developed methods of the most significant and vital importance to the home problems which arise from day to day.

The 500,000 subscribers to The Mother's Magazine are by no means light minded. The frivolous girl, the social butterfly, and the isolated spinster are automatically excluded.

Mothers live in the midst of an affectionate crowd, always making demands for love, money and attention. They must systematize their work. They must find time for improvement. They must buy with the utmost intelligence. Their questions have required a vast amount of research to answer.

Just as the now world-famous alienist arrived at his discovery, so the specialists in moral and physical training, in child hygiene, and home economics have studied and indexed the facts which the letters from the mothers of America have developed.

The Research Bureau maintained by The Mother's Magazine as a result of this work is the basic consulting authority for the home.

The Mother's Magazine is really the official organ of "The Mothers' Union" of America. There is never a copy goes forth that is not instrumental in making good homes better.

WASTING OF FOOD PENALIZED IN BILL

AIMS TO HALVE THE LOSS

Punishment for Violation of the Act May Be $5,000 Fine or Six Years in Prison.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—In response to the views of the Food Administrator, Herbert C. Hoover, a bill to limit the quantity of foodstuffs that shall be supplied to hotels, restaurants, distributers, manufacturers, and others was introduced in both Houses of Congress today by Senator Pomerene and Representative Lever. The measure greatly enlarges the powers conferred upon the Food Administrator by the existing Food Control act by giving him power through a proclamation by the President to restrict the foodstuffs going to hotels, other public eating places, and manufacturers of food.

The bill as introduced is intended to reduce what is asserted to be a great waste still existing in restaurants and other eating places. It is a compromise which the administration hopes will meet the existing evil and bring a reduction in prices as well as a conservation of food materials.

The Food Administrator had under consideration a proposal to seek legislation which would fix the prices of all the staples that go on the average man's table, but the difficulties of enforcing such an act were so great that the plan was abandoned. Mr. Hoover informed the Committee on Agriculture of the House that the proposed legislation would reach the problem of waste and he is of the opinion that if waste can be stopped and if food becomes more plentiful prices will be stabilized.

Lever Explains the Measure.

In explaining the measure Representative Lever said:

"The bill is especially aimed at hotels, restaurants, and dining cars—public eating places. In such establishments, I should think, probably 50 per cent. of the food of the country is consumed, and it is in such places that we find the greatest waste. There should be power in the hands of the Food Administration to fix the portions of the vital necessities that may be served to any individual. There is absolutely no excuse for any hotel carrying on its bill of fare for service to one person a steak which would cost $8 or $10—the waste is too great. We hope also in this bill to see to it that all classes of people, rich or poor, are treated alike.

"This bill provides that the President is authorized to issue regulations modifying, limiting, or prohibiting the sale, use, manufacture, or distribution by any person conducting a public eating place, or by any manufacturer, producer, carrier, distributer, or other person, of any foodstuffs, feed, or material necessary for the production, manufacture, or preservation of foodstuffs or feeds. When such regulation is issued, any violation of it is to be punished by a fine not exceeding $5,000, or imprisonment for not more than six years, or both."

Wheatless and meatless days and other economies necessary that America may help sustain her co-belligerents would become mandatory by the proposed law instead of voluntary as at present. Such new laws, the Food Administration holds, are necessary to protect the millions of loyal Americans co-operating in food saving against the wastefulness of others.

Text of the Bill.

The bill reads:

A bill to provide further for the national security and common defense by the conservation of foodstuffs, feeds and materials critically necessary for the production, manufacture and preservation of foodstuffs and feeds.

Be it enacted, &c., That by reason of the existence of a state of war, it is essential for the national security and common defense and for the successful prosecution of the war by the United States and other nations now or hereinafter associated with it in the war, and for the support and maintenance of the army and navy, adequately to conserve foodstuffs, feeds and materials necessary for the production, manufacture and preservation of foodstuffs and feeds, by conferring the authorities and powers and imposing the duties and penalties hereinafter set forth.

Sec. 2. That whenever the President shall find that in order to provide for the army and navy, or any other use connected with the national security and common defense, it is essential to limit the further unrestricted use, manufacture, sale, or distribution of any foodstuffs, feed, or material necessary for the production, manufacture, or preservation of any foodstuff or feed, and shall by proclamation so announce, the sale, use, manufacture, and distribution thereof by any person conducting a public eating place, or by any manufacturer, producer, carrier, distributer, or other person shall be modified, limited, or discontinued to the extent necessary to assure an adequate supply for the uses hereinbefore specified, which extent shall be defined from time to time by rules and regulations issued by the President. The President is hereby authorized to issue such rules and regulations modifying, limiting, or prohibiting the sale, use, manufacture, or distribution by any person conducting a public eating place, or by any manufacturer, producer, carrier, distributer, or other person of any foodstuff, feed, or material necessary for the production, manufacture, or preservation of foodstuffs or feeds, specified in any proclamation issued in accordance with the provisions of this section. The President may vary such regulations from time to time to meet changing conditions, and in carrying out the provisions of this act may utilize any department, agency, or officer of the Government.

Sec. 3. That any person who fails or refuses to modify, limit, or discontinue the sale, use, manufacture or distribution of any foodstuffs, feed or material necessary for the production, manufacture or preservation of foodstuffs or feed in accordance with the provisions of any regulation issued under Section 2 of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $5,000, or imprisonment for not more than six years, or both.

Sec. 4. That for the purposes of this act the word "person" whenever necessary shall import the plural and shall include any individual, partnership, association or corporation, and the act, omission or failure of any officer, agent or other person acting for or employed by any partnership, association or corporation within the scope of his employment or office, shall be deemed the act, omission or failure of such partnership, association, or corporation, as well as that of the person. The filing as a part of the records of the Department of State of any regulation issued pursuant to this act shall be deemed notice of its contents to all the world, and all courts shall take judicial notice thereof.

Sec. 5. That the provisions of this act shall cease to be in effect when the existing state of war between the United States and Germany shall have terminated, and that fact and the date of such termination shall be ascertained and proclaimed by the President. Any offense committed, and all penalties incurred prior to such termination may be prosecuted or punished in the same manner and with the same effect as if this act had not been terminated.

PAID PASTOR FOR SPEECHES

Negro Minister Said Fusion Committee Gave Him $410.

Assistant District Attorney Edwin P. Kilroe, who is conducting the examination into the Fusion campaign fund, was notified yesterday that the Baptist Church Union of New York and Vicinity, at a meeting on Monday, appointed a committee to investigate the connection of a number of colored clergymen with the Fusion Campaign Committee.

The Rev. W. W. Brown, a Baptist minister, told Mr. Kilroe yesterday that he received $410 from the Fusion committee, part of which he disbursed for assistance in conducting the campaign for Mayor Mitchel among the colored population.

"Do you think it proper for a minister of the Gospel to take money for making political speeches?" asked Mr. Kilroe.

The District Attorney also made public a letter sent to the Fusion Committee by the Rev. H. Arthur Booker, pastor of St. Paul's Baptist Church, 347 West Thirty-sixth Street, written on Oct. 20, 1917. The letter said that the colored pastors had held a conference and decided to submit the "proposition" to the Fusion Committee that they be allowed to manage the campaign in their own way and required $2,018, which they said was needed for men to distribute literature, speakers, meeting places, clerical help, telephone, and sundries.

On the request of Mr. Kilroe, George W. Perkins has consented to appear at the District Attorney's office on Friday to tell of what he knows of the Fusion campaign fund.

Jacob A. Livingston, Republican leader of Kings County, denied yesterday that he had handled any of the Fusion primary campaign fund in Brooklyn, but admitted that he had been consulted about the distribution of the money by Deputy State Controller William Boardman, and had given advice.

"Mr. Boardman," said Mr. Livingston yesterday, "came to me just prior to the last primary and told me he had or would have Fusion money for distribution where it would do the most good. I declined to receive or touch a dollar of it. When he asked me as a friend to advise him, so that he might not be discredited with those with whom he had been dealing, I did so, and, at his request, jotted down the Assembly District numbers, names, and suggested amounts."

FOOLED BY "BOYS" ON ICE.

Firemen, Police, and Part of Bronx Tried to Rescue Two Cakes.

While the ticket agent of the New York Central station at Mount St. Vincent was sitting at his desk yesterday morning, about 11:30, an excited laborer rushed in, shouting "boys" and "river." The agent then saw on the ice, a mile from shore, what appeared to be the figures of two small boys. A telephone call was immediately dispatched to the Bronx Police Headquarters, where Sergeant Vosburgh called up Deputy Fire Chief Hayes and asked for a fireboat.

Fire Chief Kenlon ordered out the steel-bottomed fireboat Cornelius W. Lawrence and ordered Engine 52 to the foot of 260th Street. Captain Brown and his firemen were joined by police reserves from the Kingsbridge Station. Deputy Chief Hayes came over in his automobile and took charge. By this time a large crowd of curious onlookers had assembled and called to the marooned lads to "hang on."

The fireboat meanwhile was pushing at the ice in the North River in the vicinity of 150th Street, but, as it was making little headway, a telephone message was sent to the Jersey side of the river for help. The crowds were growing more dense, and several of the more thoughtful ones had brought over blankets to be ready when the rescue was effected. As the hope of immediate help grew dimmer, one of the crowd produced a pair of marine glasses. He looked a minute, and then handed the glasses to Captain Brown. He took a look, and then swore audibly. "Stung!" was his only explanation. The figures on the floe were two cakes of ice which bobbed and gesticulated in the wind.

Cortelyou Tax Suit Dismissed.

Supreme Court Justice Hendrick dismissed yesterday a suit of the City of New York against George B. Cortelyou, President of the Consolidated Gas Company, to recover $963 personal taxes for 1917 on an assessment of $75,000, after Mr. Cortelyou had testified that his net personal property amounted to only $28,701 and he had paid tax on this amount. Mr. Cortelyou testified that he lived at Riverdale, but owned no real estate. He had $21,461 in the bank, and owned securities, including United States Rubber bonds, worth only $8,240. His household effects were worth only $5,000, he said, and he owed $5,000 on a note.

SENATE REJECTS PAPER REGULATION

Resolution for Federal News-Print Control Fails by a Vote of 36 to 32.

KING DENOUNCES POLICY

Says It Tends to Bureaucracy—Knox, Reed, and Hitchcock Also Active in Opposition.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—After five hours of acrimonious debate, in the course of which Senator King, Democrat, of Utah, arraigned the Democratic Party in Congress for "projecting heresies and isms" that were likely to stifle the country's huge industries, the Senate today defeated the resolution offered by Senator Smith of Arizona to put the news print production of the country under control of the Federal Trade Commission. The vote was 36 to 32.

Senator King accused the Democrats in Congress of having lost sight of State rights in their war legislation, asserting that the country had been headed toward nationalization and concentration of power in a bureaucracy.

"In ten years, yea, in five years, with this benighted policy that is being pursued, we will have no more great captains of industry," said Senator King. "Men will be afraid to venture upon unexplored fields of private endeavor."

The Utah Senator opposed the resolution sponsored by Senator Smith because, he said, it infringed the rights of States to govern their own affairs. He insisted that Congress had no right to delegate to the Federal Trade Commission or any other Governmental agency the power to control the output of an industry. He characterized the measure also as superfluous legislation, arguing that if the news print manufacturers, as alleged, were maintaining prices through an illegal combination, the anti-trust laws would reach them.

Senators Hitchcock of Nebraska, Reed of Missouri, Knox of Pennsylvania, and others on both sides of the Chamber attacked the measure as lodging dangerous authority in the Government. Before the resolution was put to a vote Senator Smith accepted changes that greatly modified it, in the hope of getting enough votes to pass it. As originally drawn the resolution gave the Federal Trade Commission authority to take over the entire news print output. This provision was changed in such a way as to empower the commission to "supervise and regulate its distribution."

An amendment lodging the power of supervision and regulation with the President was defeated.

In the vote that killed the resolution fifteen Democrats and twenty-one Republicans voted "No," while twenty-five Democrats and seven Republicans voted "Yes."

While the resolution was under debate in committee of the whole, an amendment was offered by Senator Jones of Washington to limit the size of newspapers during wartime to sixteen pages. This was carried by viva voce vote, but later the Senate, as an evidence that it did not take the amendment seriously, defeated it by a vote of 58 to 4.

In opposing the resolution Senator King said that he understood that recently the newsprint manufacturers controlling the market had made a substantial reduction in price.

"That is what the Senator from Arizona stated on the floor of this Senate," said Senator King. "Well, if that is so, there is no necessity for this legislation; the newsprint men appear to have seen the light. In any event, this is not the character of legislation Congress ought to pass. The evils of bureaucracy are creeping into our Government. The security of the people rests upon the assertion of a proper and just individualism. We are losing the right to boast that the Anglo-Saxon race possesses in the highest degree the power of self-initiative. We no longer are exercising the power of that initiative."

Senator Smith interrupted to remind the Utah Senator that the country was at war, and that "extraordinary exigencies" had to be met.

"But we are striking a mortal blow at the democracy of this Government," Senator King insisted.

Senator Reed objected to the resolution because of the authority it would give the Federal Trade Commission to fix prices. The country, he said, had suffered the present coal shortage because of the power delegated the Fuel Administration to fix a price for that commodity.

"It is unscientific," he said, "and if it is to be judged by its possibilities, it is also vicious. Its preamble recites, if it is read aright, that the resolution contemplates that news is to be properly and generally distributed. I ask, as I did last Spring, what necessity is there for the authority of this unprecedented power over newspapers, based upon the theory that improper news is disseminated? The newspapers, or most of them, are loyal, and do not need such legislation. If that is the purpose of this resolution, it ought not to be passed."

Senator Reed offered an amendment to the resolution to make it a penal offense, punishable by three years' imprisonment and $100,000 fine, to fix prices for newsprint or any other commodity. Senator Smith remarked that Senator Reed, in voting for the National Defense bill, had supported a measure "forty times worse than this one," so far as the delegation of power to the Government was concerned.

"Do you compare that bill with this miserable thing you have brought in here?" shouted Senator Reed.

Senator Smith characterized Senator Reed's attitude toward war legislation as "pugnacious and bombastic." The Reed amendment was defeated by a vote of 31 to 30.

In his opposition to the resolution Senator Hitchcock said he had faith in the ability of the Federal Trade Commission to handle the newsprint problem without further legislative authority.

DR. AMSTER HEAD OF HEALTH BOARD

FRIEND OF ARTHUR MURPHY

Mayor Directs Department Heads to Select Employes from Civil Service Lists.

Dr. J. Lewis Amster of the Bronx was yesterday appointed Commissioner of Health by Mayor Hylan to succeed Dr. Haven Emerson. The new appointee is President of the Bronx County Medical Society. He is a Democrat and has always been active in the affairs of the party, being a member of the Jackson Democratic Club of the borough. He is a close friend of Arthur H. Murphy, Democratic leader of the Bronx, and is said to have been appointed on Mr. Murphy's recommendation.

Dr. Amster was born in New York City in 1879 and was graduated from the College of the City of New York. He received his diploma from the Cornell Medical School in 1898, and four years later was appointed house surgeon of the Lying-In Hospital. Later he became house physician of St. Mark's Hospital. He is a member of the Masonic order, President of the Cornell Medical Alumni, and other civic and fraternal organizations in the Bronx. Shortly after taking office Commissioner Amster issued a statement in which he said:

"The work of the Department of Health is perhaps the most important activity carried on by the municipality. The present organization has been built up as a result of years of labor. I realize that the duties of this important office are tremendous, and I am satisfied that co-operative measures will be immediately established between the Department of Health and the physicians of this city. Only with such co-operation and mutual understanding can the efficiency of the Health Department be maintained."

The Mayor arrived at the City Hall yesterday morning at 8:57. He came over via the Broadway line of the B. R. T. and consumed forty-nine minutes in reaching his office. Had he taken the route recommended by Public Service Commissioner Travis Whitney, over the Lexington Avenue line, the Mayor would have been late, as the line was held up because of an accident from 7:33 to 8:43 o'clock.

The Mayor sent a letter to all heads of departments directing them to establish the practice of "appointing or promoting the first man or woman on the civil service eligible lists."

Bill for Barge Canal Terminals.

ALBANY, Jan. 15.—An appropriation of $950,000 for the construction of Barge Canal terminals at Kingston, Newburg, Poughkeepsie, and Yonkers is asked in a bill introduced in the Legislature today by Senator Walton and Assemblyman Brush. The bill provides that the plans be prepared by the State Engineer and approved by the Canal Board, and that not more than $150,000 of the appropriation be expended for the acquisition of sites.

On Children's Shoes—Neōlin Soles

For all the qualities which make Neōlin Soles desirable on shoes for men and women—flexibility, waterproofness, durability—are of magnified importance in the case of children's shoes.

With Neōlin Soles, young foot muscles flex as they were meant to flex. So, if the last is right, the foot grows as it should grow, with strong arches supported by exercised muscles.

Neōlin waterproofness, also, serves children even more than it serves their elders, for the youngsters, in their play, are more exposed to the dangers of dampness underfoot.

When your children wear shoes with Neōlin Soles you know that they are safer from wet feet and colds, even though they leave off rubbers—as they will.

And in the matter of economy Neōlin Soles bring even greater returns on children's shoes than on men's and women's. The reason is vital.

Youngsters wear out shoes quickly. This is partly due to their greater activity—but partly, also, to the fact that leather soles on children's shoes are of a far poorer average quality than is found on shoes for grown-ups.

So Neōlin-soled shoes wear longer.

And families which have standardized on Neōlin Soles save a great deal of money, annually, on children's shoes.

But do not buy Neōlin-soled shoes for your children for economy alone.

Buy them for their flexibility and the activity that this flexibility encourages.

Buy them for their waterproofness and the health protection that this brings.

But, if you do not at once find exactly what you want for your children, get out their old shoes and have them re-soled with Neōlin.

You can have this done at almost any good repair shop or store where repairs are handled. You can have either whole soles or half soles applied.

Tell the repair man to cement the sole before sewing. And, if a half sole is used, tell him to make it longer on the shank than he would a leather tap—also to nail it across the shank before either skiving or sewing. He will know what you mean.

But when you buy—either new shoes or resoles—be sure to see the trade mark Neōlin underneath. If it is not there the sole is not Neōlin. Mark that mark; stamp it on your memory: Neōlin —

NEUSTADT AND BOYD VICTORS WITH CUE

LEWIS DEFEATED BY RIVAL

A high standard of play was maintained in the national amateur Class C balkline billiard tournament at Lawler Brothers' Academy in Brooklyn yesterday. In all, seven matches were contested, and there began to be a definite line determined as to which of the sixteen entrants would survive the elimination contests. Neither in averages nor in high runs did the day's performances exceed those of the opening matches.

Several players gained their second victories in the tournament. Among them were Joseph Neustadt, F. W. Boyd, and George Spear. With the exception of Spear, these men came through yesterday's contests without experiencing formidable opposition. Neustadt showed the consistent quality of his game by maintaining his average close to the mark of five.

In the evening two of the stars of the tournament came to the fore. Joseph Neustadt defeated Claude R. Lewis, an experienced tournament player, by a score of 150 to 80, and averaged 4 22-32. This is the same mark which he made in his first game. F. W. Boyd, who has to his credit the high average of the tournament, defeated Dr. I. U. Miller by 150 to 75, and virtually put the latter out of the running for a place in the final round robin.

The afternoon matches, while failing to produce exciting contests, did supply flashes of high quality billiards. There was a disposition on the part of the contestants to play real balkline as distinguished from the shot-making type of game. For this reason there was an interest in the play that appealed to the dyed-in-the-wool follower of the game. There were really sparkling bits of play that gave indication that some of the men may look forward to graduation into an advanced class at no far distant date.

Ferdinand A. Unger of Montclair made his first appearance in the tournament, and easily worked his way through to victory at the expense of Jesse T. Jaeger, who was forced to see his second defeat. The score of this match was 150 to 78 in favor of the man from Jersey. It was a pretty bit of play which carried him to victory. The outstanding feature of his game was the consistent manner in which he counted. His runs were not large as runs even in Class C competition go, but there was far from being the frequent interpolation of ciphers as is so often true of the championship contests. Unger failed to get a count in only six of the thirty-one innings of the match.

George Spear, the former Class B player, who elected to step down from the advanced class to compete in the Class C tournament, won his second match by defeating John Low at 150 to 131. This was one of the best matches of the day. Low, who was easily vanquished in the opening night's play, supplied a much stronger game against Spear.

Gus Gardner, who has been identified with the pocket billiard championship, was victor in the third match of the afternoon, defeating J. F. Blaisdell by a score of 150 to 87. Gardner faced difficult positions many times, and they tended to break up his play and destroy the chance of a high average. The mark he attained was 3 27-41. Blaisdell's average was 2 7-40.

COLIN IS SOLD FOR $5,100.

Famous Turf Hero Brings Small Sum at Corrigan Sale.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 15.—Ultimus, a stallion by Commando, brought $26,000 at the largest sale of race horses ever held in this city today, when the Wickliffe stud of J. W. Corrigan was disposed of at auction. He was purchased by W. B. Miller of New York. Colin, by Commando-Pastorella, a familiar name to racegoers of several years ago, was bought by Captain P. M. Walker of Virginia for $5,100, while Emil Herz of New York succeeded in obtaining the brood mare Marian Hood, (imported,) by Martagon-Maid Marian, for $17,000.

The prices realized were in excess of the hopes of the auctioneer, according to his own statement, and so far as attendance was concerned, it broke all records, when different points of the United States which were represented were considered.

My Friend, by Disguise-Playmate, a yearling, brought $12,800. He was obtained by H. A. Porter of Tulsa, Okla., who also bid in Ultima Thule, by Ultimus-Rubia Granda, for $7,400.

Charles W. Micklewait of New York obtained Madras Gingham for $3,200, while J. C. Milan of Lexington bought Fleeing Shiek for $2,300, and John Madden of Lexington and New York bought Swansong for $2,600. Other similar prices were obtained for a large number of the horses sold.

Lack of Heat Halts Swimming.

The swimming competitions to decide the intermediate championships of the club, which were to have been held in the tank of the Boys' Club in East Tenth Street yesterday and today, have been postponed until Feb. 26 and 27. Lack of fuel is ascribed as the reason for the postponement, because with the coal shortage it was found necessary to close down the pool, and this prevented any preparatory work by the Boys' Club natators.

DRAFT TAKES ALEXANDER.

Cubs' $50,000 Pitcher Placed in Class 1—Big Deal Off.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—Pitcher Grover Alexander, who, with his battery mate, Catcher Killifer, was purchased by the Chicago Nationals for $50,000, has been placed in Class 1 of the selective draft, Charles H. Weeghman, President of the Chicago club, was unofficially advised tonight.

When Alexander, who is rated as the leading pitcher in the National League, was purchased from the Philadelphia club, it was agreed that, if either he or Catcher Killifer was drafted at any time previous to thirty days before the opening of the 1918 season, the transaction for the player taken into the military service would be canceled.

Alexander had previously advised Weeghman that he expected to be placed in the third class, as his aged mother is dependent upon him.

McGRAW LEAVES FOR CUBA.

Manager John J. McGraw of the Giants left yesterday for Havana, where he will spend a month's vacation before going to the New York Club's Spring training camp at Marlin. The Giants leader has been busy this Winter arranging the Herzog trade to his liking, and he had to bring about a three-cornered deal to get rid of his temperamental second baseman and arrange for the return of Larry Doyle.

All of McGraw's players are in line and as there is nothing more to worry about now until the Spring trip begins, he has decided to go to Cuba and try to improve his golf game. Also it is expected that the races, which are now in full swing, will come in for McGraw's cautious attention.

Manager McGraw is well satisfied with the acquisition of Jesse Barnes and Larry Doyle, and now believes that the Giants are in excellent shape for another hard pennant campaign. The Giants' righthanders did not come up to the manager's expectations last season, and he took on Al Demaree late in the season hoping to bolster up the right-handed section of the staff. Demaree did not fill the bill, but he has confidence that Barnes will add great strength to the twirling department. McGraw also looks for Tesreau to show improvement next season, as he believes the big boxman still has several good years of service ahead of him.

ICE YACHT BLANCHE SOLD.

Independent Club Members Buy Championship Contender.

Special to The New York Times.

RED BANK, N. J., Jan. 15.—The purchase by a syndicate of Independent Club members of the ice yacht Blanche, owned by Walter Content of New York, was announced today. Clarence E. Fisher and C. H. Page of Newark are among the new owners of the craft, which should prove an ideal sailing mate of the former champion Imp in the coming North American championship events. It is understood the sale price was $500.

The purchase of the Blanche and the importing of the best crew from Long Branch to handle her are evidences that the Independent challenging club is leaving no stone unturned in an effort to regain the championship title lost by the Imp last year. The Blanche was considered the fastest yacht of the South Shrewsbury fleet in a heavy breeze.

The second trial race, postponed today because of rain and gales, will be sailed tomorrow. The performance of new yachts, together with George W. Bray's Daisy and Irving Brown's Say When, any of which may be picked as a defender, will be particularly noted by the club.

COLUMBIA FIVE DEFEATED.

Brooklyn Poly Takes Close Basket Ball Game at 24 to 21.

Excellent basket shooting by Stewart of Brooklyn Poly, coupled with the ragged teamwork of Columbia, gave the Brooklyn basket ball five a close victory, 24 to 21, in a game played at Columbia last night. Stewart scored 11 points for the victors in the second half and was the outstanding factor in the outcome of the struggle.

It was an exceedingly rough contest from the outset. Two players were forced from the game because of personal fouls, and two others had three personal fouls called when the game ended. Farrell, a guard on Columbia, and Pamb, his opponent on Brooklyn Poly, were the players to be ordered from the game by the referee.

The line-up:

B'klyn Poly, (24.)	Position.	Columbia, (21.)
Hildebrand	R.F.	Latour
Specht	L.F.	Farer
Kessler	C.	Alexander
Stewart	R.G.	Farrell
Pamb	L.G.	Tomberg

Goals from field—Hildebrand, (2,) Specht, (3,) Stewart, Pamb, Latour, Farer, (3,) Alexander, Farrell. Goals from foul—Stewart, 10; Farrell, 9. Referee—Ed Thorp, De La Salle. Time of halves—Twenty minutes. Substitutions—Kurzman for Tomberg, Vollmers for Farrell, Kurzman for Pamb.

Three-Cushion Stars Matched.

Pierre Maupome, winner last year of the Interstate Three-Cushion League event, and leader in this season's competition, will play George Moore, former world's three-cushion champion, in an interstate match at Thurn's Academy tonight. Maupome is one of the most interesting of the three-cushion players because of his utter disregard of safety play. The same two contestants will play in a second match tomorrow night.

INTERNATIONAL GOLF MATCH FOR SENIORS

Canadians Will Form Organization Similar to Body of American Veterans.

International team matches between golfers belonging to the Seniors' Golf Association of this country and a similar organization planned for the Dominion, is a possibility in the near future. That the Canadians will form such a body is almost certain, since two representatives made a trip to New York and conferred with leaders of the American body. At that meeting, it was assured that Canada was to have a Seniors' association, but that the eligibility rules would have to allow for players of fifty years of age belonging there instead of the fifty-five year limit here. This was advised because of the few players in Canada.

The conference at which the international matches were talked of was attended by W. R. Baker, C. V. C., President of the Royal Golf Club of Montreal; Ralph H. Reville, editor of The Canadian Golfer; Darwin P. Kingsley, President of the Seniors' Golf Association of America; Horace L. Hotchkiss of Apawamis, Honorary President and founder of the Seniors' organization, and Frank Presbrey of Apawamis, one of the most active members of the national body.

At this conference, the Canadians were familiarized with the details of the American organization, and also given a copy of the constitution. It was promised that American golfers would do all possible to help out such an organization in the Dominion. Mr. Baker was quite certain that there would be an organization effected in Canada soon enough to hold a tournament next Summer, but he was not certain that an international match would be possible until after the war. A meeting of the Canadians is to be held shortly in Montreal, at which time a course for their first tournament will be decided upon. The competition will be played either over the Royal links at Montreal or the Lambton course at Toronto.

The Dinner Committee of the Seniors' Association met a few days ago and decided that the annual affair would be inadvisable this year because of the war, and the members were notified that no banquet would be held. This committee, of which Elias Johnson of St. Andrews is Chairman, and Winthrop Sargeant of the Merion Cricket Club, and Frank Presbrey, are the other members, thought that a banquet might be held in the Fall during the annual tournament.

The Tournament Committee is planning for a big jubilee next Fall. Frederick J. Wessels of Chicago and Norwalk, Conn., is Chairman of the committee, having been elected to that place when Frank Presbrey refused to serve for a fourth year. Mr. Wessels plans several innovations, and says he hopes to have just as much fun for the members as Mr. Presbrey arranged. Winthrop Sargeant and Dwight L. Elmendorf of Apawamis are also members of the Tournament Committee.

ERASMUS BEATS SAILORS.

Nautical School Passers Are Easily Downed by 27 to 5 Score.

Erasmus Hall High School's basket-ball five yesterday annexed its seventh victory of the season by trouncing the quintet representing the New York Nautical School, in a one-sided game on the Erasmus court, by the score of 27 to 5. The Brooklyn school team clearly outclassed the rival five from start to finish of the game and, starting in the lead, remained there throughout the contest. At the end of the first half, the score stood at 15 to 3 in favor of the Erasmus Hall quintet. The individual star was Barnes, who accounted for seven goals from the field.

The lineup:

Erasmus Hall.	Position.	N. Y. Naut. Sch'l.
Barnes	R. F.	Lyons
Boohecker	L. F.	McGee
Linoki	C.	Bradley
Scharmann	L. G.	Moran
Goebel	R. G.	Southerland

Goals from the field—Barnes, (7,) Boohecker, (3,) McMullen, Scharmann, Lyons, Moran. Goals from foul—Scharmann, (2,) McMullen, Bradley. Substitutions: For Erasmus Hall—McMullen for Linoki, Gillian for Goebel; for N. Y. Nautical School—Evans for Moran. Referee—M. E. Crooke, C. C. N. Y. Time of halves—Fifteen minutes.

NAVAL SWIMMERS IN MEET.

Brooklyn Reserves to Compete Against Y. M. C. A. Team.

A dual swimming meet, in which many former club stars of the metropolitan district will participate as sailors of the United States Navy, is scheduled for this evening at the East Side Y. M. C. A. pool in East Eighty-sixth Street, when the Y. M. C. A. natators oppose a team from the Brooklyn Naval Reserve Training Station. The tentative program shows the following events: 100 yard swim, 220 yard swim, 50 yard backstroke swim, fancy diving contest and relay swim of 480 yards.

Brooklyn to Hold Tank Meet.

The Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A., which has placed its swimming pool at the disposal of the boys of the naval service, will hold an open A. A. U. swimming meet on Jan. 26 for the purpose of raising funds for athletic equipment for the sailors. Included in the program are a 50-yard scratch race for enlisted men, 100-yard open handicap, fancy dive open handicap, 400-yard relay between Pelham Bay and Fifty-second Street Naval Reserve training stations, 100-yard metropolitan championship for women, fancy dive for women, and other special events.

HARVARD WINS AT SQUASH.

Crimson Players Hard Pressed to Gain Victory Over Princeton Club.

Standing of the Clubs.
CLASS B.

	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
Harvard	2	0	1000
Columbia	2	0	1000
Princeton	1	2	.333
Crescent	1	2	.333
Yale	0	2	.000

Close matches marked the play in the Metropolitan Squash Tennis League events yesterday. In the Class B division the Harvard Club representatives just managed to secure the decision over the Princeton Club team on the Harvard Club courts by a score of 3 to 2, and Columbia met with more spirited opposition than had been expected from the Crescent A. C. on the latter's courts. The verdict in this contest was 3 to 2 in favor of the Columbia Club.

The startling fact in connection with Harvard's defeat of Princeton was that both of the leading Harvard Club players went down to defeat. Dr. H. R. Mixsell of the Princeton Club defeated A. E. Ellis, Harvard Club Captain, by a score of 15—12, 7—15, 15—13, and S. H. Bird, another Princetonian, defeated the No. 2 Harvard Club contestant, A. H. Lockett, at 6—15, 15—7, 15—8.

The Crescent A. C. and Columbia broke even on the playing of the first four matches, and it devolved upon the match between D. McClave of the Columbia team and N. F. Torrance of the Crescent A. C. to swing the balance to one side or the other. After each player had won a game, Torrance started off in the lead in the final game at 6—8. McClave drew even, and then the match went to 9-all. Torrance three times in succession drove so low that he hit the telltale, and McClave ran out the game to his credit. The summaries:

Harvard Club vs. Princeton Club.

Dr. H. R. Mixsell, Princeton Club, defeated A. E. Ellis, Harvard Club, 15—2, 7—15, 15—13; S. H. Bird, Princeton Club, defeated A. H. Lockett, Harvard Club, 6—15, 15—7, 15—8; G. N. Richard, Harvard Club, defeated Dr. A. D. Mittendorf, Princeton Club, 15—12, 15—6; A. O. Hoyt, Harvard Club, defeated R. Monks, Princeton Club, 15—9, 15—11; J. W. Lee, Harvard Club, defeated G. Graham, Princeton Club, 17—16, 17—16.

Columbia Club vs. Crescent A. C.

R. L. Strebeigh, Columbia Club, defeated M. M. Sterling, Crescent A. C., 8—15, 15—12, 15—6; D. McClave, Columbia Club, defeated N. F. Torrance, Crescent A. C., 18—13, 6—15, 15—9; A. C. Scott, Columbia Club, defeated G. Cruse, Crescent A. C., 10—15, 15—9, 15—4; J. Dorg, Crescent A. C., defeated H. Burt, 8—15, 18—14, 15—12; A. G. McGowan, Crescent A. C., defeated H. Warner, Columbia Club, 15—6, 15—12.

SQUASH PROS IN TOURNEY.

Kinsella to Head Field of Eight in Handicap Affair.

The first professional handicap squash tennis tournament will be held at the Yale Club beginning Jan. 22. Eight players are expected to compete. Those who have already entered are Walter A. Kinsella, holder of the world's championship and professional at the Squash Club; William Ganley, professional at the New York Athletic Club; Stephen J. Feron, professional at the Harvard Club; Harry Lafforgue, professional at the Yale Club; James Mullins, professional at the Racquet and Tennis Club, and James Reid, professional at the Crescent Athletic Club. To make up the eight players, it is expected that Harry Harris, professional at the Montclair A. C., and William Gray, professional at the Columbia Club, will enter the event.

Kinsella is conceded to be the superior of all the professionals, and he will concede aces to the other contestants. It is planned now to make the tournament an annual event.

FIFTY BOXERS AT N. Y. A. C.

The preliminary contests in the monthly amateur boxing tournament of the New York Athletic Club, which will be held in the Winged Foot gymnasium tomorrow night, will furnish local A. A. U. boxing officials a line on prospective competitors in the intercity amateur boxing tournament to be held in Pittsburgh on Feb. 23. This tournament will be between the boxers of New York and Pittsburgh and it is expected that the New York A. C. tournament will furnish the material from which to make selections.

Concannon Takes Pool Title.

Joseph Concannon won the New York State professional pocket billiard championship at Lawler Brothers' Academy, in Brooklyn, last night, when he defeated George Clark by a score of 100 to 91.

POLO TITLE GAMES MAY BE HELD AGAIN

Resumption of the polo championships, which were abandoned last year, was indicated by the expression of prominent officials and players after the twenty-eighth annual meeting of the Polo Association held at the Down Town Club, 50 Pine Street, yesterday afternoon. No definite decision was arrived at, and no dates were allotted for tournaments, as is the custom at the annual meeting. The clubs gave as their reason for not applying for dates that a number of their players are in the service.

The meeting was harmonious. There will be no change in the personnel of the officers, as the following were re-elected on a single ballot:

H. L. Herbert, Chairman; W. A. Hazard, Secretary and Treasurer. Executive Committee—August Belmont, Joshua Crane, John C. Groome, W. A. Hazard, Alex. T. Primm, Jr., Dudley P. Rogers, W. Plunkett Stewart, and H. P. Whitney.

A luncheon of the delegates followed the meeting, and after the views of the delegates, many of whom are active players, had been ascertained Chairman Herbert stated that it was probable that the national championship would be resumed. In recent years this fixture has been one of the prominent sporting events at Newport, but following the declaration of war the championship was abandoned, and all open tournaments were cancelled at the same time.

Mr. Herbert said that the President, the Secretary of War, many officers of the Army, also the authorities of Great Britain, Lord Derby, General Haig, and others, have recommended participation in polo, cross-country riding, and all open air feats of skill and endurance as important aids toward military efficiency. Despite the military activities, it had been possible to play many polo contests of an informal character during the past season, and though the ranks are depleted the sentiment is strongly in favor of placing the sport back on a competitive basis.

Owing to the scarcity of regular competitions no changes have been made in the handicap list, but if the sport is again put on an active basis this matter will be taken up by the Executive Committee, which also will canvass the different clubs and decide whether or not to schedule the championships.

Mr. Herbert called attention to the fact that the individual membership of 1,440 in the forty-nine clubs of the association had contributed 985 men to the service. From the Meadow Brook Club alone 76 of the 164 members have joined the colors. The list of players in the Army, Navy, and Aviation Corps shows the names of two Brigadier Generals, two Major Generals, eight Colonels, four Lieutenant Colonels, nineteen Majors, 125 Captains, 433 Lieutenants, and 392 in the service, but rank not designated. A tribute was paid to the late Major A. P. Gardner, who was a prominent polo player.

TITLE TRACK MEET HERE.

National Indoor Event Will Be Held on March 16.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—The national senior indoor track and field championships will be held at the Twenty-second Regiment Armory in New York City, March 16, according to an announcement today by Charles A. Dean, President of the A. A. U. The N. A. A. U. boxing championships will be held at Boston, April 8 and 9, under the auspices of the Boston Athletic Association, Mr. Dean said.

Zbyszko to Wrestle Hansen.

Wladek Zbyszko, the Polish wrestler, will take part in a handicap wrestling match in Prospect Hall, Brooklyn, on Friday night, marking his first local appearance on the mat since his triumph over Ed "Strangler" Lewis, the Kentucky grappler, in the closing match of the recent wrestling tournament. Zbyszko has contracted to throw Bernhoff Hansen, a Norwegian light-heavyweight wrestler, twice within an hour, and under the terms of the match will forfeit his end of the purse if he fails in his task. In a preliminary match Hilmer Johnson will attempt a similar feat against an unknown.

McCUE BOXING BILL READY.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 15.—A bill to be presented to the Legislature by Assemblyman Martin G. McCue to again legalize boxing in this State will provide for a single-headed boxing commission to supervise the sport and will call for a diversion of a part of the revenues from all boxing events to the big army training camps for the benefit of New York's soldiers. Ever since the repeal of the boxing law of last Winter Mr. McCue has labored for a new law, and feels confident that he will meet with success.

The McCue bill imposes a license fee of $5,000 on all New York City clubs and $2,500 on all clubs in other parts of the State.

Sailor Boxer Outpoints Shamus O'Brien at Pioneer S. C.

Joe Welling, a Chicago lightweight boxer, now in the naval branch of Uncle Sam's service, last night demonstrated his superiority over Shamus O'Brien of Yonkers, in their ten-round bout at the Pioneer S. C., before an admiring crowd of more than 200 fellow-bluejackets, who yelled themselves hoarse for a decisive Welling victory.

The contest was rather uninteresting, for Welling, inactive in ring competition since his enlistment, showed comparatively poor judgment of distance and inability to time his blows properly. He had advantages in height and reach on the Yonkers boxer, and, while the Chicagoan managed to clearly and decisively outpoint his opponent there was never any real danger of his knocking O'Brien out.

The other bout scheduled for ten rounds ended in the second round when Gene Tunney of Greenwich Village knocked out Hughey Weir, a west side welterweight, with a right to the jaw. The biggest crowd since the opening of the club under the membership plan witnessed the bouts, and there was no police interference.

Cochran Beats Sutton Again.

Welker Cochran defeated handless George Sutton in two balkline matches at Maurice Daly's Academy yesterday. In the afternoon the score in his favor was 300 to 100, and in the evening 300 to 79. During the evening match Cochran made a high run of 197. He averaged 25 in the afternoon and 30 in the evening.

A man asked us yesterday why we didn't say something about "money back" when talking of men's suits reduced to $25.

"No reason," we told him, "hadn't occurred to us." Supposed everybody knew that "money back" applied to everything we sold whether "mark down" or "regular."

A REMBRANDT IS SOLD FOR $10,750

$80,105 FOR 72 PAINTINGS

Gerard Dou's "The Hermit" Fetches $4,900, and a Muelich Portrait and an Inness $3,700 Each.

"Balaam and His Ass," a Rembrandt, formerly in the Gallerie Gustav Ritter Hoschek, von Muhlheim, Prague, brought the highest price at the Ferdinand Hermann sale of ancient and modern masters at the Plaza last evening, under the auspices of the American Art Association, Thomas E. Kirby, Auctioneer, going to Seaman, agent, for $10,750.

It is a striking picture, a panel, the prophet, in brilliant Oriental robes, beating the ass, which, crouched to the earth, looks at him appealingly while an angel with a sword stands at one side and travelers on horseback are in the background. The picture started at $5,000 and ran up quickly by thousands to the selling point.

Gerard Dou's "The Hermit," another panel, brought the second highest price, going also to Seaman, agent, and for $4,900. This was purchased at the Yerkes sale in 1910 and has a long list of former owners. Hans Muelich's "Portrait of Andreas Reidmohr," a small picture, a panel, 23 by 18 inches, was another of the old pictures which brought one of the higher prices. It went to Bernet, agent, for $3,700.

An Inness, "Sunset in the Apple Orchard," signed by the artist and dated 1886, went to Knoedler & Co. for the same price. This picture, 22 by 27 inches, the warm, red sun making a deep tone through the green of the trees, was sold by Inness at Montclair to Fishel, Adler & Schwartz, from whom it was purchased. The seventy-two pictures brought returns of $80,105.

Chinese Pilgrim Bottle Brings $205.

A rare blue and white pilgrim bottle, Ch'ien-lung, brought one of the higher prices at the sale of the Barnes collection of Chinese porcelains at the Anderson Galleries yesterday afternoon, going to D. Z. Norton for $205. Two Sang de Boeuf lamps of the same period went to E. Collins for $140, a K'ang-hsi blue and white vase went to J. Elliot for $75, a blue and white temple vase and cover, the same period, to H. K. Hudson for $77, and H. C. Yuan paid $72 for a low, bowl-shaped blue and white porcelain dish. The returns for the afternoon were $2,383, making a total for the two sales of $4,070. The last of the Barton Chinese bronzes will be sold this afternoon.

Maria Barrientos, Soprano, Arrives.

Maria Barrientos, the Spanish soprano, arrived at an Atlantic port yesterday after a roundabout voyage by way of Cuba. The singer, who was accompanied by her mother and her son, George, is to reappear in opera at the Metropolitan about mid-February. She sang last Summer in Buenos Aires before returning to Spain.

SCHOLA CANTORUM SINGS.

Songs of Spain and Wales Among the Chorus's Novelties.

The chorus of the Schola Cantorum, for nine seasons a producer of music of as wide appeal as old English Purcell, the modern French and Russians, and once the "St. Elizabeth" of Liszt, gave its first subscription concert of the Winter last evening in Carnegie Hall, again finding novelties far afield. There were at the outset some folk and fighting songs of Wales, the country of Lloyd George, and at greater length two groups of "novelties" both ancient and modern from neutral Spain. The more serious, churchly character of many of these later miracle and Nativity pieces, bringing to light a national musical revival all unknown for the last quarter century among Catalonian composers and choral singers over there, was appropriate at a time when Americans are interested as never before in all that expresses the national aspirations of European peoples.

Many Spaniards were in the audience that encored solo airs well sung by Mabel Garrison in "The Virgin's Plaint" and "Three Kings," or by Carl Formes in the "Serenade," all strongly Oriental melodies; the hummed accompaniments adapted for 150 voices recalled Verdi's Miserere in "Trovatore," from Garcia de la Vega's native play. One Spanish dance song, "The Silversmith," was like Milton's "L'Allegro" amid so much sombre melancholy.

Catalonian is a tongue of clipped Latin vocables, not always making for beauty in these songs, but giving original flavor, best in the rough peasant tunes. The lovers' quarrel "Under the Elm" ended with the woman wishing a priest read the man's funeral mass, whereas he wished her "in a barn of burning straw, with a brisk wind blowing," and would have been amusing in English.

Over the stage two American flags flanked one of Spain, as well as a Welsh emblem, the red dragon on white in a field of blue, lent by the local St. David's Society. The Schola also hung a new service flag, with nine stars.

HERO LAND PROFIT $571,438.

John Moffat, Executive Chairman of the Management Committee of "Hero Land," made public last night a statement of the receipts and disbursements of the war benefit bazaar which showed net profits of $571,438.86. The general expenses were given as $242,978.51.

Mr. Moffat's statement said: "'Hero Land's' net profits after payment of expenses of every kind exceed $571,000, constituting a world's record for any allied bazaar." The statement continued:

"The money especially contributed to cover the expenses of the bazaar, with the gate receipts and the advance sale of tickets and miscellaneous revenue, has proved, as was predicted, more than sufficient to cover the entire general expenses of 'Hero Land,' thus enabling 100 cents on the dollar of receipts to be credited to each of the committees taking part."

The statement said that the British Government war exhibits receipts amounted to $92,942.31, and that the expenses in connection with these exhibits were $45,382.18. The total raised at the booths amounted to $538,976.13, from which was deducted $25,368.13, paid out for expenses.

It is added that $75,000 had been forwarded for the relief of Halifax, and that $496,438.86 remained to be divided among the various committees taking part in "Hero Land."

"Aside from the figures," Mr. Moffat said, "which must be regarded as more than pleasing, it is also to be strongly borne in mind that 'Hero Land,' in stirring enthusiasm for the cause of America and the Allies, accomplished a service of wide scope and influence."

Leo Ornstein in Recital.

Leo Ornstein gave his only recital in Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon, perhaps his first as pianist merely, and not as composer; in that other rôle he had early won attention here with fantastic "cubist" pieces. He recalled to many a remark of Gounod: "At 20 I said 'Myself and Mozart'; at 40, 'Mozart and I'; at 60, I say 'Mozart.'" Mr. Ornstein is yet in the 20's, but he chose nothing of his own yesterday, playing instead Beethoven's sonata "Appassionata," some Chopin, and the twelfth rhapsody of Liszt, in sober but individual style. He added, for "modernist" touch, a "Danse," "Poeme," and two "Preludes" of Scriabine; "The Gibbet," "Scarbo," and "A Barque at Sea," by Ravel; two "Arabesques" of Debussy, and Albeniz's "Festival of Corpus Christi in Seville."

White Rats Mourn Junie McCree.

Funeral services for Junie McCree, actor and writer of lyrics, were held yesterday at the Campbell Funeral Church, with the ritual of the White Rats Actors' Union, of which Mr. McCree was a past President. A large number of his friends in the theatrical world attended the services as well as several hundred members of the White Rats, representatives of the Chicago Press Club, of which Mr. McCree was a member, and the Authors' League. Harry Mountford, Secretary of the White Rats, pronounced a eulogy of the one-time President, and James W. Fitzpatrick, International President of the White Rats, conducted the services, assisted by Edward Clark, Charles T. Aldrich, J. Edward Davis, President of the Green Room Club, and William P. Conley.

Willem Willeke, 'Cellist, Reappears.

Willem Willeke, the 'cellist, son-in-law of Franz Kneisel, and himself an artist whose public is as large and loyal as that of the former Kneisel Quartet, in which he was for ten years a member, made his first reappearance in solo recital last evening at Aeolian Hall. Mr. Willeke was a good 'cellist when Mr. Kneisel and Louis Svecenski first picked the young Hollander to join them after the retirement of Alwin Schroeder; he is not less but rather more accomplished today, not in a sensational virtuoso style, but in qualities that make a true musician. He played last evening his own arrangement of a Boccherini melody, with other unfamiliar works of Eccles and Jeral, as well as d'Albert, Servais, and a fellow-New Yorker, Rubin Goldmark.

Directors Give Caruso Punch Bowl.

Signor Caruso made his annual appearance in Brooklyn last night, singing in "Rigoletto" with Maria Conde, a youthful Gilda. The Board of Directors of the Academy, which Caruso had helped to open in 1907, went behind the scenes after the second act and presented to the tenor a large silver punch bowl.

The Directors had placed an inscription on the bowl to say their gift was "in appreciation of his golden voice and incomparable art" which have made the last ten years of grand opera in the Academy of Music "so distinguished and inspiring."

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Arnold Daly's production of Bahr's play, "Josephine," will have its premiere at the Knickerbocker Theatre on Monday, Jan. 28, following the engagement of "The Land of Joy." Virginia Harned will be Mr. Daly's leading woman.

A change has been made in the bill which the Washington Square Players offer next Monday, "Habit," by Frank Dare, being substituted for "The Hour Glass." The bill will be an all-comedy one.

Eugene Revere, recently of "Miss 1917," will have a rôle in "Girl o' Mine," coming to the Bijou a week from Monday.

"The Land of Joy" will be seen at the Montauk Theatre, Brooklyn, for a single performance next Sunday night.

A performance of "Over the Top" will be given at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre Roof Theatre this afternoon in aid of the Stage Children's Fund.

Seats for the Stage Women's War Relief performance of "General Post," which will take place at the Gaiety Theatre on Friday afternoon of next week, will be auctioned off at the theatre Friday at 4. Only members of the theatrical profession will be requested to purchase.

Fuller Mellish will appear with Margaret Anglin in the performance of Sophocles's "Electra," to be given under the auspices of the Symphony Society on Feb. 6.

SHOE TRADE PLANS STRICTEST ECONOMY

LOWER BOOTS FOR WOMEN

The strictest economy in every direction is going to be the motto of the shoe manufacturing and selling industry in the United States in the ensuing year, according to plans adopted yesterday at the opening of the annual convention of the National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' Association. Under the plan outlined by the association's President, John S. Kent, in his address, the soldiers and sailors of the nation are to have the very best of the heavy leather obtainable, while the civilian population will be shod with the rest of the heavy, and the lighter grades. It is hoped in this way that the practice followed in France and England of providing a standard foot gear for the non-fighting portion of the people will be adopted in this country.

Acting on answers received from a questionnaire sent out several months ago to boot and shoe manufacturers, the Conference Committee of the association adopted certain recommendations in regard to economy for the year 1918 which were yesterday approved by the convention. Next Fall, the height of women's shoes will not exceed nine inches above the heel. This height, it is hoped by the shoe men, may be cut down to 8½ inches later if the need for further saving becomes acute. At present, it was stated by an official of the association, women's shoes are only limited by the length of the skirt. Misses' shoes will be cut down to seven inches.

Other measures of economy will be in limiting the colors of shoes manufactured. Men's shoes for 1918 will be made only in black and two shades of tan. Women's shoes will be made in black, white, two shades of tan and two shades of gray. Shoe boxes of standard size and staple color will be used to deliver shoes. This tends to standardize the shipping cases. Things extraneous to the shoes themselves will be eliminated, such as advertising, labels, &c.

In his opening address, President Kent of the association told of the effect of the war on the shoe industry in this country. He prophesied that through the efforts of the shoe manufacturers to meet the situation created by the war there would be a renaissance of the industry in the United States.

"The influence of the war is paramount to all other influences," he said. "It has prevented imports of desirable hides and skins; it has caused a diminution in exports of leather, and an almost total loss of exports of shoes. It has eliminated the demand for extreme fashions in footwear and novelties in leathers, styles, and patterns; it has spread the gospel of economy throughout the land and caused the purchase of plainer and more substantial shoes, and made the cobbler an important figure in the shoemaking world.

"The man who wears a uniform is entitled to the best we have. Those who cannot fight will help by conserving what the fighter needs. We must make solid shoes for the trenches and use the leather that is left for the men who stay at home. It must be considered selfish and unpatriotic to wear something a soldier needs when something else will do.

"The action of England and France in providing for standard war shoes for the civilian population may not be put into effect here for the reason that our supplies of material not suitable for Government purposes and for the finer grades, together with our facilities for manufacture, will make competition keen for business on these lines, and as low prices will be made as actual cost will warrant. Price control and regulation of profits through investigation and taxation will do more to hold down the cost of shoes than will Government regulation of specifications and prices."

In his report, Sol. Wile, Secretary of the association, criticised England for her embargo on imports, which threw back on manufacturers here large quantities of shoes manufactured to fill orders for British trade.

The convention will continue all day today. Tonight will come the annual dinner. Ex-President William H. Taft is to be the guest of honor.

NAON GOING TO ARGENTINA.

Envoy May Quit Unless Anti-German Stand Is Taken.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—After a visit by Dr. Romulo S. Naon, the Argentine Ambassador, to the State Department today to say good-bye to Secretary Lansing preparatory to returning to his own country, it was said that he had been granted leave of absence and would be back in Washington in his official capacity in two months. The Argentine Government has refused to accept his resignation, but the fact that it was offered is said to have produced a crisis in the political affairs of Argentina.

Dr. Naon declined to authorize any statement, but denied that there were differences between his Government and himself. According to persons close to the Ambassador, he has been a stanch friend of the allied cause, and even before the publication of the Luxburg documents he favored a movement for Pan American unity on the question of the war, with the idea that Argentina should be aligned with the United States and the Allies.

Dr. Naon will go alone, leaving his family here, and it was said that he expected to stay in Argentina only two weeks. The Ambassador, it was said, goes to confer with the Foreign Office and the President of the republic on foreign relations.

It was said by close friends of the Ambassador that the only difference between him and his Government concerning the German question relates to the moment when the break with Berlin should be made complete, the Ambassador holding that now is the time when this final step ought to be taken, and his Government contending that the moment has not yet arrived. Both the Ambassador and his Government were said to have been surprised and pained by newspaper criticism of Argentina in the American press, especially by the charge that pro-German influences had affected the policy of the country.

A person close to the Ambassador said:

"The Ambassador has reached an irrevocable resolution to retire from the Argentine diplomatic service unless certain measures are taken. To persons acquainted with Argentine affairs, it seems probable that Argentina will soon declare the existence of a state of war with Germany."

VATICAN PROHIBITS TANGO.

Ban on "Modern Dances" Sequel to American Request for Ruling.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Jan. 15.—A decree was published here today, signed by Cardinal de Lai, Secretary of the Consistorial Congregation, dated Dec. 10, 1917, definitely prohibiting the so-called modern dances.

This action does not cause the same sensation as was created when the ecclesiastical authorities first objected to these dances, as since Italy entered the war there has been no dancing here.

The latest decision was caused by some American Bishops, who ventured to propose that the modern dances be allowed under certain restrictions. The decree sets forth that the prohibitions of the tango, maxixe, and other modern dances are to be enforced inexorably, even if the dances take place in the daytime or in the first hours of the evening for a short time without being preceded by dinner.

THEATRE MEN TO GO TO THE WHITE HOUSE

New York Delegation to Meet President or Dr. Garfield Tomorrow Regarding Fuel Saving.

A delegation of New York theatrical managers, including George M. Cohan, Lee Shubert, and probably David Belasco, will go to Washington tonight to confer with President Wilson or Dr. Garfield in regard to the proposed fuel-saving restrictions to be placed upon the theatres.

The conference which will take place at the White House at 3:15 o'clock tomorrow afternoon is the result of a telegram sent to the President by Mr. Cohan on Monday, in which Mr. Wilson was asked to receive a delegation of managers before action was taken. A telegram fixing the time for the appointment was received by Mr. Cohan yesterday from one of the President's secretaries, but it is not known here whether the theatrical men are to confer with the President or Dr. Garfield.

Among those who will make the trip to Washington, in addition to Messrs. Cohan, Shubert, and Belasco, will be E. F. Albee, representing the vaudeville interests, and Adolph Zukor, representing the motion picture makers. Mr. Cohan and others had several talks with Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the President, during Mr. Tumulty's recent visit here, and the direct appeal to the President grew out of these conferences.

Although no one was willing to be quoted in the matter, it is known that the methods adopted by the group of men who retained William Travers Jerome as their counsel are resented by certain of the managers. It was pointed out, also, that it was claimed by the interests represented by Mr. Jerome that they were speaking for all the managers of the city, whereas they represented only the film men and some of the vaudeville houses. The Shuberts, who were announced as indorsing the plan, said that they had not been consulted.

Comment by managers on the plan to close the theatres on Mondays was divided. It was generally admitted that it would provide no insuperable financial obstacles, but it was also pointed out that if the days were to be declared legal holidays it was all the more necessary for the theatres to be open. It was also declared that the saving of coal would be negligible.

The Stage Women's War Relief yesterday sent a telegram to H. P. Davison, head of the Red Cross, asking him to use his influence to prevent the promulgation of an order closing the theatres or putting them on part time. The work done by the theatres in the interests of the Red Cross was cited.

GREAT BRITAIN'S NEED OF MEN.

In giving notice of a call to the colors of nearly half a million men from Great Britain alone, Sir AUCKLAND GEDDES, Minister of National Service, says that, "excluding Russia "and Rumania, the Allies have a sub-"stantial superiority in fighting and "ration strength over the Central "Powers." The context seems to show that he includes the existing land forces of the United States, for he goes on to say that "notwithstand-"ing Russia's defection, the resources "of the Allies and America are suffi-"cient to assure victory, and nothing "but a psychological catastrophe can "save the Central Powers"—whatever that may mean.

What stands out very clearly is that no dependence for the present is placed upon the American contingent in France. It may be assumed the British General Staff believes that the Americans should have a longer period of training before taking their place in the line. Some of the British troops were put in too early (from necessity) for shock tactics. Greater gains would have been made by veterans in the battle of the Somme. This is not a reflection upon the gallantry of the new army engaged in the operations of the Summer and Autumn of 1916. It demonstrated a superiority over the German troops encountered, and the spirit of the British and Colonials was always splendid. Nevertheless, with additional training they would have gone further and shown greater staying power. If the French and British can hold the line this year until midsummer, the American reinforcements will be able to come to their relief with a hitting power that should tell mightily in a counteroffensive. It is fortunate that the American commander, like PETAIN and HAIG, is a believer in training troops for the battle ordeal until the finishing touch has been given. Pending the readiness of the American Army, the British, according to Sir AUCKLAND GEDDES, must strike hard at the enemy, as well as resist his attacks:

> Every day the hitting force of Britain becomes of greater importance to the alliance. * * * On Britain and the skill with which she handles her man power in the months to come everything depends.

France has by no means fought herself to a standstill, but to conserve her strength Great Britain must "carry on" in the field, and that has been General HAIG's task in the last six months. So the extra half million of men to be called to the colors are urgently needed. The drain on the British Army in France is continuous. In the week ended Jan. 14 the British casualties on all fronts were 24,979 officers and men, of whom 5,266 were killed. It was chiefly on the western front that these losses were incurred. Yet the dispatches tell of no great battle, only of raids. It is almost incomprehensible that so many men have been killed or wounded. The fighting must have been unintermittent and heavy. There is significance in such a bulletin as this: "An enemy raid at-"tempted under cover of a heavy "artillery barrage east of Monchy "during the night was repulsed by "rifle and machine gun fire." The fact seems to be that a great deal of ammunition is being burned on the British front by both sides. The losses are heavy, German as well as British, and the gaps in the line must be filled. England's need of 500,000 fresh troops is obvious.

MEXICO.

In the recent news about Mexico there are conflicting reports. There seemed to be sufficient warrant for saying a few days ago that Mr. HOOVER's plans for controlling the supply of binding twine were based in part upon an agreement with Mexico concerning sisal, the raw material, and that this agreement was associated with the exportation to Mexico of 4,000,000 bushels of corn and $10,000,000 of gold. Apparently trustworthy unofficial statements were to the effect that the embargo had been lifted to permit these exports and that the corn was moving across the border. Now it is asserted that the embargo is still in full force and that negotiations for such exports, interrupted when LUIS CABRERA, Mexico's Minister of Finance, hurriedly started from Washington to attend the proposed Latin-American Congress at Buenos Aires, are not to be resumed until President CARRANZA sends a new commission to this country for the work.

Mexico needs corn and munitions. The grain we can spare, but CARRANZA cannot expect to get war material here. A commission appointed by him is now crossing the Pacific, hoping to obtain arms, ammunition, and a loan in Japan, where the factories are no longer working for Russia.

Germany's agents in Mexico, who have not taken a vacation, will spare no effort there which can serve their cause. Evidently they have procured the aid of the commission, headed by CABRERA, sent to Argentina for the congress that was postponed. It is so distinctly pro-German that all of its members were arrested in Bahia and expelled from that Brazilian port. In Buenos Aires their open expressions of preference for Germany have excited comment and led the Argentine Foreign Office to suspect that their purpose is to work there secretly against the Allies. It is encouraging to hear that the Foreign Office regards them with aversion and is not inclined to receive them officially as guests.

If it be true that our export embargo has not been relaxed in response to Mexico's request, the negotiations should be resumed at once and pressed to a conclusion. The gold is needed for labor in industries that ship products to our allies, and corn is required as food for the people. There is room for doubt as to CARRANZA's war preferences, and Germany expects help from some of those who surround him. He should have no ground for complaint about supplies which can be spared and will not be used to our disadvantage.

BILLIONS OF FARES.

Next year billions of street car fares will be paid by riders in this city. The billion figure was first reached in 1903, and last year it was practically doubled, the exact figures being 1,918,812,226. The yearly variations are between the limits of a decrease of 5,571,630 in 1915—the only decrease on record—and a maximum increase of 128,845,272 in 1910. The great surges of business this indicates are due to such incidents as the bringing into use of new facilities or the reduction of accommodations by railway strikes.

Last year ten new lines were started, and this year there will be twelve more links opened. That will mark the approximate completion of the subway system, which has cost the city more than the Panama Canal cost the nation, and which involved more difficult engineering feats. The hugeness of the Panama Canal excavations was its chief characteristic, the work otherwise being along familiar engineering lines. The subway work presented new problems constantly, many of them of great complexity and difficulty. The revolutionary effect upon population is shown by the results of extending the Broadway subway to Times Square the other day. Already it is necessary to provide the platforms with police to control the crowds, and there is a proposal to alter the routing of the trains in order to reduce the crush at the transfer points.

The official figures come down no later than October, when this route was opened only to Union Square. For that month the receipts of the operating company rose $2,143,715, an increase of 12 per cent. That section carried in its first month 1,474,817 passengers, and the Fourth Avenue line (Brooklyn) increased its travel from 1,817,099 to 2,351,435. Most of this seemed to be new travel, it being possible to trace only some 600,000 to diversion from the Centre Street subway. That also is comparatively new and gained its travel from the old first Bridge passengers.

In one respect there is happily the prospect of a prolonged check to the upward curve of these figures. The average payment for street car fares for each resident of New York is $17.19, representing twenty times as many rides for 343 nickels. Of course individual riders on accustomed business pay a great many more nickels, and they are especially interested in the opening of subway links which give them a dime's ride for half price. The effect upon the subway revenues is more doubtful than upon the pockets of the riders. The city as proprietor will not necessarily suffer. There is a prospect that the number of rides will increase, and there is a certainty that hundreds of square miles of potato fields will raise a crop of population and taxes, paid by citizens who have heretofore strayed from their proper homes because the city had neglected its duty to keep them from looking elsewhere for the accommodations now provided.

There is one serious blemish upon this record of prosperity and enterprise. On all the steam railroads of this State only fifteen passengers were killed in 1917. The street railway figures do not classify the accidents in that manner, but there were 295 killed, besides 102 fractured skulls and 364 broken or amputated limbs. There were also 935 more accidents classified as "serious." It is true that on the steam railroads the accidents to employés and trespassers far outnumbered the accidents to passengers. Thus there were 226 employés and 364 trespassers killed on steam roads. In both cases the numbers are far too large, and there are considerations explaining why street car accidents are more numerous. Trespassing on street tracks is almost a necessity of city life, and there is always a temptation to get on or off while the car is moving. There were 17,511 accidents due to boarding and alighting alone, but the figures do not disclose who is to blame.

DR. FRIEDJUNG AGAIN.

"The Austrian historian, Professor HEINRICH FRIEDJUNG," is telling the Germans what is good for Serbia. Not SWIFT himself could have employed a more savage irony than appears in Dr. FRIEDJUNG's forecastings of the happiness coming to the Serbians, long so dear to the tender Hapsburg heart, to the benevolent Germans of Austria, the shrinking Magyars of Hungary:

> The uniting of Serbia with Austria-Hungary will fulfill the desires of the Serbians for unity. Serbia would be closely bound to Austria-Hungary by economic ties. In this way the Serbian people would emerge from the struggle victors, in spite of their terrible sufferings.

The lamb will be happy in the butcher's shop. The House of Hapsburg, the bitterest enemy of Serbia and the Serbs, the devourer of Bosnia and Herzegovina, the persecutor of the Serbo-Croats, the destroyer of Serbia, "will give better guarantees "for the prosperous development of "the Serbian people than their own "dynasty, which is responsible for all "their troubles." If Serbia kept her army and independence, she would be used as a tool by the fanatics, "sup-"ported by English, French, and Rus-"sian money." "Russian money" is particularly good in all this generous thought for the Serbs of Serbia. The kingdom is to be incorporated in the Austrian Empire, but "only small garrisons will be necessary." Could kindness go further?

These observations, which may not be thoroughly enjoyed by our genial old friend, FERDINAND of Bulgaria, need no comment. It "would be a "criminal error to unite Serbia and "Montenegro." From the latter Power Mount Lovchen, commanding the Bocche di Cattaro, must be filched by Austria. That is old Austro-Hungarian doctrine. Instructive to the artless gudgeons who have swallowed the "no annexations, no indemnities" bolus is Dr. FRIEDJUNG's statement:

> At the end of the war the great States will make use of the little ones in payment of their indemnities. Austria and Bulgaria will decide upon the future of the Balkans.

It is a pleasure to hear from Dr. FRIEDJUNG again. He used to be a sort of âme damnée of Baron VON AEHRENTHAL, the Austro-Hungarian Joint Minister of Foreign Affairs. His most glorious achievement as a historian is his article in the Vienna Neue Freie Presse in 1909, charging a Serbo-Croatian conspiracy, organized with the aid of the Serbian Government, against the Hapsburg monarchy. The "proofs" were documents furnished by the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Office, documents, as was subsequently demonstrated, made and photographed at the house of and by the orders of Count FORGACH, the Austrian Minister at Belgrade. No doubt Dr. FRIEDJUNG is as veracious a prophet as historian.

ONE-MAN CONTROL.

Chairman WILLARD of the War Industries Board and Mr. BERNARD BARUCH, an associate member, have recommended one-man control for army, navy, and Shipping Board purchases. Legislation would be required. According to Mr. WILLARD, who testified before the Senate Military Affairs Committee on Monday, Secretary BAKER told the Chamber of Commerce convention at Atlantic City in September that one-man control for army purchases was advisable. Mr. BAKER was a long time considering the step. Four months passed before he created a Bureau of Supplies in the War Department and put Colonel PALMER E. PIERCE at the head of it. The announcement has just been made. It is the Secretary's answer to Senator CHAMBERLAIN's proposal, which has been embodied in a bill, to establish a Department of Munitions, the head of which should have a seat in the Cabinet—for the duration of the war at least.

The plan of Chairman WILLARD and his associate is the most comprehensive of all. They would have a Controller of Supplies, with authority to buy for the Allies as well as for the army, navy, and the Shipping Board, and they suggest that this official be also head of the War Industries Board. Senator CHAMBERLAIN, who wants efficiency and results, would hardly insist upon a Cabinet position for the munitions director if Congress would provide the necessary legislation. President WILSON is said to be opposed to adding another member to the Cabinet, and to press the point would only make more delay.

What has been proved is that responsibility for tardy equipment of the army rests with the War Department, which Secretary BAKER is trying to reorganize. Judging from past performances, there is no reason to pin one's faith to the new method. It promises a measure of improvement, but the Secretary will still be supreme. The munitions director, controller, or whatever he may be called, should occupy an independent position and be held responsible for results. Whether he should have such extensive powers as Mr. WILLARD would give him is a question for deliberation. The Navy Department would point to the efficiency shown by Paymaster General MCGOWAN and Admiral EARLE as a reason why they should not be disturbed. Secretary BAKER will, of course, insist upon his reorganization as a solution of the problem in the War Department. By the way, Chairman WILLARD told the Senate Committee that he found in the War Department scarcely any knowledge of the manufacturing resources of the country. Mr. BAKER has lately been looking around for men who are well informed.

So far as the War Department is concerned, new legislation, either like that urged by Chairman WILLARD or on the lines proposed by Senator CHAMBERLAIN, would seem to be in order. As to the extent of the munition controller's jurisdiction, no time should be lost in arriving at a conclusion.

MAJOR GARDNER.

Born to wealth, accustomed to the sports of the wealthy, vainly sneered at as only a rich amateur in politics, AUGUSTUS PEABODY GARDNER made the Essex Congress District his own. To no purpose was the attempt constantly made to belittle and overshadow him with the name of Senator LODGE, his father-in-law. He took delight in opposing that statesman when occasion offered. He dearly loved a fight. He didn't care a rap for great personages or orthodox opinions. He was a natural independent and insurgent; and his part with the so-called Insurgents against Uncle JOE CANNON, and later against Mr. MANN, was in thorough accordance with his character.

The Essex Republicans and many who are not Essex Republicans swore by him, if sometimes at him. In his fifteen years in the House he rose gradually to a place of his own. He was not always discreet or of best judgment; but he had always the habit of not bothering about consequences to himself or flinching from forlorn hopes or unpopular opinions. He made friends easily, and enemies nonchalantly. In season and out of season he worked for preparedness, for a competent army and navy. With whatever occasional errors of taste or judgment, he saw the vital need of the United States, and he did all in his power, in Congress and out, to arouse the country to that need.

When America came into the war, he, who had been an admirable officer in the Spanish war, a passionate sympathizer with the Allies, showed the then still rampant pacifists that he was as eager to share in the conflict as he had been to have the nation ready for it. He resigned his seat in Congress, became a Colonel, and then a Major, going down in rank so that he might become an officer of the line and be sent to France.

He died for his country just as truly as if he had fallen in France. It is an honorable and a brave end to a brave and an honorable career.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Curious Kind of Neutrality. ABRAHAM I. SHIPLACOFF, one of the ten Socialists in the Assembly this year, has taken the trouble to deny that either he or any of his nine party associates is pro-German. That is interesting—it is even of a certain importance. It is to be noticed, however, that Mr. SHIPLACOFF hastened to add that all of the ten were "for peace" and that "on general principles we are neutral in this world war."

That is the same thing as saying, of course, that in the opinion of these Socialist Assemblymen no facts as to conduct or policy have yet been presented by the opposing belligerents to warrant or compel a decision by them for or against either side. "On general principles," as Mr. SHIPLACOFF puts it, that justifies the assumption that the one side is considered by the ten just as good and just as bad as the other. Whoever takes that position must be able, then, either to dismiss as trivial, or as no more characteristic of the Germans than of their antagonists, each count in the indictment of Germany drawn by Mr. KAHN in his Milwaukee speech.

He recalled that Germany had planned and willed the war, her revolting deeds in Belgium and Northern France, the infamy of the Lusitania murders, her innumerable violations of The Hague conventions, her abominable and perfidious plottings in friendly countries, and her shameless abuse of their hospitality. This is only the beginning of the list that might be made, but it is long enough as it stands to cast much light on the "neutrality" of which Mr. SHIPLACOFF apparently is proud—of which, at any rate, he evidently is not ashamed.

There are people—there even are Socialists—who would find it as difficult to view with either equal favor or equal disfavor Germany and the Allies as to do the same thing with respect to any common criminal and his victim. Our ten Assemblymen judge less hastily. They are more—well, broad-minded. But they are not pro-German! Far from it!

Why Should We Wait Any Longer? If there are any sound or even plausible arguments against the passage of the Calder Daylight Saving bill, they have not yet been brought to public attention. It might, indeed, be said with some trace of force that Congress has, or ought to have, under consideration more important questions than whether or not to set all our clocks ahead an hour on the last Sunday in next April and set them back again on the last Sunday in next September. The objection is deprived of its usual weight, however, by the fact that the proposal is not a controversial one. It has awakened no antagonisms and could be settled in five minutes by a vote that presumably would be unanimous.

Nothing but legislative inertia has robbed us of the many and real advantages long since enjoyed in half a dozen European countries as a result of using an extra lighted hour of every Summer day. That the clocks are all "wrong" when this is done is true, but it is a wrongness with no moral content, and, in this country, most of our clocks—all except those used by professional astronomers—are "wrong" already, as a result of our excellent "zone" system, so we are quite accustomed to departures from theoretical accuracy in our measurers of time.

"Daylight saving" is a rather unfortunate phrase for describing the purpose to be achieved by the proposed change. "Daylight using" would be a better one, for more of that is what would be attained, with incidental economies of at least a dozen kinds. They have all been rehearsed scores of times, and do not need to be repeated. Joys, too, as well as economies, would be gained, and both without any conscious alteration of any habit. No time tables would be in the slightest degree affected, we would get up and go to bed at the same hours as always, and it wouldn't cost anybody one red cent, it being the one reform known to man of which that can be said with truth.

Caillaux at Last in Prison. A less courageous man than M. CLEMENCEAU would have hesitated, as did his predecessors in office, to increase the difficulties and the perils of his political position by proceeding to extremities with an enemy as powerful as still is the mysteriously influential personage whose commitment to a prison cell has at last taken place.

For years past CAILLAUX has been a sinister figure in the public life of France, and almost as long he has been the constant object of grave suspicions. To prove him a traitor will not be easy, however, for he will have plausible explanations of all the evidence that can be brought against him, and his many friends have the best of reasons for standing by him firmly—they are more than likely to share his penalties if he be convicted of the treasonable practices with which he is charged. His present acquittal, therefore, would be hardly more surprising than was that of his wife when she was tried for the admitted killing of an editor who had threatened to disclose the details of her decidedly variegated career.

All the pacifists in France will be on his side, too, for he will claim to have been working for peace, and they will care little or not at all what price he was willing to pay for it—or what price he was to receive for the betrayal of France and her allies. Whether he has been for Germany or against England is not yet clear, and it makes no difference—they are the same thing, in France as here.

Mayor Gaynor Not Easy to Imitate. Mayor HYLAN should not make the mistake of believing that by imitation of Mayor GAYNOR's irritability the same position that was held by that remarkable man in New York's regard can be attained. An inclination to be snappish on occasion was but a small part of Mayor GAYNOR's character, and he rose in esteem not because he sometimes indulged in harsh and hasty language, but in spite of it.

Mayor HYLAN would be better advised if he determined to try the effects of suavity and considerateness for the feelings of others. He shouldn't see insult where others see only a simple statement of fact, and, as he promised numberless reforms while a candidate, he should not say now that we have had enough of it already to last us for a long time. It was as a reformer that he asked election, and as a reformer he was elected.

At least, we have himself as authority for so declaring, and his present attitude is therefore most confusing to the mind.

Low and High Dutch.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The experience complained of by some of my countrymen, indignant at being taken for Germans when they call themselves Dutch, is an affliction entirely of their own making. Dutch, indeed, they are, but they should define their relationship to the great Teutonic stock by adding the qualifying "Low" to "Dutch," ("Dietsch," "Duitsch," "Deutsch," Middle High German "Diutsch," Old High German "Diutisc," i. e., popular, vulgar,) which, from an adjective expressive of community of idiom, grew to become also an ethnic epithet.

At home we distinguish well enough between "Hoogduitschers" (Germans, alias moffen) and "Nederduitschers," (ourselves;) between "Hoogduitsch" or High Dutch (the German tongue) and "Nederduitsch" or Low Dutch, (our own language.) And if the term Dutchman of the Low Countries be somewhat unwieldy or otherwise unsatisfactory, there is always the name Netherlander in preference to that of Hollander, which, correctly speaking, belongs to the inhabitants of only two of our kingdom's eleven provinces. A BATTLE-HYMN.

God has touched the world to knighthood with the accolade of time,
In an oath to frame no compact with the strangle-clutch of crime;
"Every soul, an ensign!—Forward, with the Standards of the Right!"

Out of agonies the ages watch and trembling wave the way,
In a quailing of our souls that bear the Standards of the Right.

For the truth, our draft-recruiter, shall make righteousness the strong
Where the conscience is commander, and the hand and spirit smite

In the Teuton Cain we wrestle our iniquities of yore,
As the conquerors or captives of the spectre of Before:
Out of purgings of the darkness in the burnings of the night

All the errors of the half-way, all the evils we have done,
Our betrayers, whimper, counseling the half-way with the Hun.
"Unconditional surrender of the darkness to the light!"

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A quarter of a century ago the late Professor Paulsen of Berlin, speaking of occurrences that have tended to change historical values, (cf. his "Introduction to Philosophy," English translation, p. 318,) exclaimed: "Think of the Renaissance, the Reformation, the French Revolution, * * * and the German Empire on a Prussian basis!" That last phrase, "the German Empire on a Prussian basis," accurately designates the source of the present world cataclysm and names the evil that must be eradicated before either Germany or the world at large can know lasting peace.

The difference between a mere empire, even an autocratic empire like the Russia of Czar Nicholas, and an "empire on a Prussian basis," is momentous. America and the Allies are not fighting a mere German Empire, but "the German Empire on a Prussian basis." Were that fact and what it means kept steadily in mind, no intelligent man could be a pacifist or entertain for a moment any proposition looking toward a peace remotely resembling that proposed by the present German rulers. The history of Prussia, her governmental system in theory and in practice, the teaching of her scholars and of her writers on the philosophy of the State, and the reiterated declarations of her publicists and spokesmen in all walks of life but echo the declaration dinned into my ears in my student days in Berlin a third of a century ago—"Prussia is a military State." And what is a military State? A military State is a State the avowed primary purpose of which is to wage aggressive war; it is a State in which militarism is supreme and all other functions of the State are subservient to the military. "The German Empire on a Prussian basis" is such a State. That is the tremendous fact that Paulsen named.

Now such a State is a perpetual menace to its neighbors and to every other nation on the face of the earth, large or small. The Kaiser's constant threat of the mailed fist, shining armor, and gleaming sword, and the record of Germany's diplomacy and intrigue in every quarter of the globe abundantly reveal this. Take as a single illustration Germany's treatment of the United States in the Dewey incident at Manila, the Venezuela incident, the threat to Gerard, the attempt to embroil us with Japan, and her numberless other acts menacing our peace.

If, therefore, the nations would end war, there must be an end to this standing menace of war—"the German Empire on a Prussian basis." If they would have enduring peace they must remove this perpetual obstacle to peace. If they do not wish the world to become permanently an armed camp, and saddle upon themselves, in self-defense, a militarism that will match Germany's, they must carry on the war, regardless of its cost in blood and treasure, until "the German Empire on a Prussian basis" ceases to exist by becoming either free or powerless. Mr. Balfour's phrase, "a Germany free or powerless," states the only possible alternatives.

All statements of war aims are beside the mark that do not put this as the fundamental and irrevocable aim. It is to the enduring credit of President Wilson that in no important utterance on the war since we entered it has he failed to name this aim. In his address to the Congress in April, in his message to Russia, (May 26,) in his Flag Day address, (June 14,) in his reply to the Pope, (Aug. 27,) in his Buffalo Labor Convention address, (Nov. 12,) in his message to the Congress, (Dec. 4,) and in his recent address to the same body, (Jan. 8,) it will be found. Its best statement is in the reply to the Pope:

> The object of this war is to deliver the free peoples of the world from the menace and the actual power of a vast military establishment, controlled by an irresponsible Government, which * * * now stands balked but not defeated, the enemy of four-fifths of the world.

Mr. Asquith and Lloyd George have not failed to emphasize the same aim, and every responsible spokesman of France and of Italy has done likewise. What the common citizen should do is to back his spokesman by keeping this fundamental aim constantly in mind and perpetually reiterating it: "The German Empire on a Prussian basis is a menace to the world and must cease to exist; Germany must become free or powerless; German militarism must be discredited and disowned for all time."

And it goes without saying that if the German people will not or cannot wrest the power of the State from the military autocracy, subordinate the military and the war-making power to the civil, and establish a Government genuinely responsible to the German people, Germany must be so crippled from without that her militarism and military autocracy will be forever defeated and rendered powerless for further harm. I repeat, there can be no enduring peace with "the German Empire on a Prussian basis."

Timely Advice from General Lee.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It has occurred to the undersigned, in these days when so many students in colleges are leaving their books to enter military service, that some consolation may be found in the fact that the interruption of their education—let us hope that it is only an interruption—may not be entirely time lost without compensation, even from an educational point of view. I am sending you, therefore, the following extract from an address by Professor Milton W. Humphreys of the University of Virginia at the celebration of the Lee Centennial, Jan. 19, 1907. It must be premised that at the time referred to by Professor Humphreys General Robert E. Lee was President of Washington College (now Washington and Lee University) at Lexington, Va., and Professor Humphreys was a student in that institution. The extract is as follows:

"Just once it was my lot to receive a severe rebuke from General Lee. While I was an undergraduate my health seemed to become impaired, and he had a conversation with me about it, in which he expressed the opinion that I was working too hard. I replied: 'I am so impatient to make up the time I lost in the army'—— I got no further. General Lee flushed, and exclaimed in an almost angry tone: 'Mr. Humphreys, however long you live, and whatever you accomplish, you will find that the time you spent in the Confederate Army was the most profitably spent portion of your life. Never again speak of having lost time in the army.' And I never again did."

Glasses Acknowledged by the Navy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Apropos of letters in THE TIMES I would like to say that I had two acknowledgments of a pair of Lomb-Zeiss binoculars which went direct to Secretary Daniels—one from the Navy Department and one from the Secretary to F. D. Roosevelt. To be sure, they were slow, but of course the departmental mills grind slowly. L. D.

America After the War

The "Open Door" in China, a Principle of Foreign Policy to be Maintained Like the Monroe Doctrine—Island Possessions in the Pacific of Increasing Value.

By AN AMERICAN JURIST.

CHAPTER VIII.—ASIA AND THE PACIFIC.

THAT the present great war and its solutions will have a lasting effect on the future of Asia and the Pacific Ocean as an international highway is clearly discerned by the leading Eastern Asiatic powers. Both have therefore prepared for representation in the final peace council. The late action of China is peculiarly significant. It nominally entered the war in order to safeguard its national future. China was unwilling that its interests should in the peace conference be abandoned to the great European powers. China is a belligerent because it does not intend that the final decisions of the peace conference in regard to the future of the Orient shall go by default. In this action Chinese statesmen have acted astutely. The time has doubtless come for China to cry halt to European aggressions. These aggressions have gone further than is consistent with the interests of America. America has a supreme interest in Eastern Asia, the "open door." The success of the "open-door" policy demands that Eastern Asia, in common with the rest of the world, shall be left to govern itself consistently with the general law of nations. The abstract right of the Chinese to govern themselves can no longer be ignored. As an American doctrine it is rapidly coming to the fore. The right of the Chinese to govern themselves is as well founded as the right of Americans to govern themselves, and by Americans it cannot be safely challenged. The American Government at Washington has been theoretically consistent in upholding the plea of "Asia for the Asiatics." But it has lacked the power and will to enforce either the integrity of China or the "open-door" policy.

The "open-door" policy was first pronounced by the American Secretary of State, John Hay, in 1899. The open door graphically prefigures little more than equal commercial opportunities for all foreigners, including Americans, in China and its dependencies or provinces. The doctrine of the "open door" is unfortunately much complicated by railway and other concessions granted by China to Europe. These cessions have diminished the sovereignty of China throughout extensive provinces of its empire. But the most formidable obstacles to the "open door" are the exclusive territorial ambitions of both Russia and Japan, not opposed by England or France. The Russians and Japanese have practically closed the "open door" in Mongolia and Manchuria. Their action is regarded in the Orient as fatal to the American plan of the "open door." Wherever Japan or Russia has encroached on Chinese territory the door is no longer left open.

The particular pretensions in China of Japan and Russia have hitherto been consistently supported by England and France of the present Entente Powers, without great regard for the American "open-door" policy. The history of Manchuria and the Chinchow-Aigun railway project would alone demonstrate the accuracy of this statement. It therefore becomes a serious problem for America, where if anywhere is America to look for an ally if it ever conclude to enforce its "open-door" policy in the Orient. If America conclude that it must enforce the "open door" by itself, and the time is fast approaching when the great States lying west of the Rocky Mountains will insist on some sort of Federal action about the "open door," it is evident that the military strength of America after the present war must be maintained even when it shall be placed on a peace footing. Otherwise America will be in a very exposed situation. Japan has promised to return to China after the war the territory of Kiao-Chau, leased to Germany by China and now held by Japan. If the German protectorate is not so returned after the war, what is to be the sequence and significance of the refusal?

Kiao-Chau is a minor matter. America is one of the great powers having direct interests in the Pacific Ocean. With the exception of China and Japan, no other power has such extensive interests in the highways of the Pacific as America. The Pacific furnishes the western boundary of the United States, and the greater trade of the vast region of America lying west of the Rocky Mountains will sooner or later be over the Pacific with the Orient. The territorial interests of England and France in China are not comparable with those of America. The real interests of England and France are in Southern Asia and in the Southern Pacific. How America is to safeguard effectually its particular interests in China and the Pacific is destined to be one of the greatest problems for American statesmen.

It is obvious that the proper foreign policy of America turns upon two great principles, the Monroe Doctrine and the "open door." The practical application of the Monroe Doctrine is confined to the Western Hemisphere; the "open door" to the Eastern. Unless America is prepared to enforce both, it would have been more conducive to the peace of America had they never been formulated. The safety and prosperity of America are, however, so intimately concerned with both policies that they cannot be abandoned. Therefore, America must be prepared to enforce them whenever they are flagrantly assailed or America will lose its rightful place as a great power.

America has become a great nation by reason of its natural resources, its constantly augmenting population, and its ever-growing commerce. The natural resources will cease to be developed, the population and the commerce of the country will cease to grow, if neglected by the Government at Washington; they require an intelligent and an energetic national policy for their proper conservation. American merchants are free to seek the protection of any more powerful Government, and if America neglects its own merchants they will seek a more splendid flag. American commerce will inevitably follow her merchants. It is essential, therefore, that the foreign policy of the United States shall be made to measure up to its responsibilities if the country is to continue permanently successful and powerful. Unless a nation co-operates closely with its merchants and fosters their foreign commerce by every legitimate means in its power, national prosperity will surely cease and political decadence follow. There can be no successful domestic commerce in a country where the foreign commerce is not intelligently promoted by the Government.

The acquisition of the islands of the Pacific now under American dominion was pursuant to the best national policy. Hawaii, Samoa, Guam, and the Philippines are not only important points of call, but important protected refuges for American shipping in the Pacific. The retention by America of these islands does not violate the principle of "Asia for the Asiatics." None of them was acquired from an Asiatic power. America is a co-owner of the shores of the Pacific, and one of the largest. In the distant future its commerce on the Pacific will far surpass in importance to America that of the Atlantic side. The future of American commerce forbids America to neglect or to abandon its rightfully acquired island possessions in the Pacific. No European power, indeed no Asiatic power, questions the right of America to the Pacific islands which have passed under its flag. It holds them by a completely valid title, and it must not part with them, or it will be false to its trust and to the future good of the American Nation.

America, unlike England, has never sought territorial possessions remote from its proper shores. Every acquisition of outlying lands has had direct reference to the proper sphere of American influence and to the immediate interests of its domestic territories. Had the Philippines been owned by China or Japan, America would not have acquired them. They were ceded to America by a European power in deference to the superior interests of America in the trade of the Pacific. America, unlike the European powers, has never sought any territory or "sphere of influence" on the Asiatic mainland. The American title to the Philippines is not derogatory to any Asiatic power. The islands are rightfully American and they are a tremendous and natural auxiliary to the long future of the rich trade between Asia and America. If the Philippines are abandoned by America the descent of America into the ranks of the decadent and nerveless powers will be rapid and sure. Asia is not impressed by a foreign power which exhibits neither strength nor consistency, for Asiatics are quick to realize that without these qualities no nation can be either successful or permanent.

Responsibility for Fires.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We wish to express our hearty indorsement of your editorial under the title "Fires Are Not Accidental." It is hard for the average citizen to appreciate the extraordinary peril and suffering imposed upon the firemen during such a cold snap as that just ended. They are as truly soldiers in the cause of civilization as our boys in the trenches in France, and their personal dangers and privation are probably at least comparable. The public owes much to the heroism of its firemen under such conditions. However, mere expressions of gratitude are almost beside the point. There is one thing which the public owes to these faithful servants which it should no longer withhold, and that is carefulness. As you very properly observed, these fires were due to somebody's "carelessness, stupidity, or penuriousness" in the vast majority of cases. No form of American wastefulness is so inexcusable as our prodigal indulgence in preventable fires. Fire is not a mysterious thing. Its laws have been studied for thousands of years, and the principles of fire prevention reduce themselves to a few easily comprehended rules; but fundamentally with their whole application is the single idea of carefulness.

We agree with you that legislation to fix responsibility would be a highly salutary measure. "Eventually, why not now?"

Not for Me, but for My Country.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Several years ago, when I visited Annapolis, one thing impressed me more than anything else, and that was the motto over the door of the chapel at the Naval Academy—"Non mihi sed patriae." It has always appealed to me, and its meaning is continually coming nearer and nearer. I have always loved the sound of it, and as it stands clearly before me it seems to represent the feeling which must be in the heart of every American, especially when sacrifice is now so great. Therefore, fellow patriots, as you help the cause along do not think of personal glory and forget to wave a red flag, as it were, with every good deed which you perform. Keep your deeds within yourself and do not try to emblazon them upon the minds of others, and remember, above all else, "It is not for me, but for my country."

Wants German-Americans to Act.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In that splendid article, "A War of Self-Defense," written by Robert Lansing, appearing in the Literary Digest, he says rightly, "The evil character of the German Government is laid bare before the world."

I think this truism might be extended and applied also to some of the army and navy, likewise a part of the people and professors of Germany.

All right-minded people and any with a spark of humanity look aghast at the iniquities of Germany and the manner in which she has conducted and is conducting her present war on mankind. There is hardly language adequate to express one's contempt when one hears of some new perfidy on her part and the authentic accounts of some of her soldiers' frightfulness which are unprintable.

We are told that her army and navy act thus under orders, and that the people are cowed down and so ruled by the authorities that it cannot be otherwise. Still, in this enlightened and free land of the United States dwell many German-Americans, many of whom are fine people, as we know, so to me it has been a source of wonderment that through all this stress of nigh three and one-half years I have not heard of any concerted action on the part of German-Americans in protesting against the inhuman methods of the Fatherland.

There may have been some single expressions of disapprobation made here and there, but it seems to me that there are enough humane German-Americans in our large cities that one would think they would get together and hold meetings protesting publicly and expressing their dissent to some of the iniquities committed.

The Germans and their forebears came in many instances to the United States to escape the very thing the Allies and our brave boys now are fighting to eliminate, so that it appears to me that if some protests on a large scale were made here, such concerted action with reports thereof would surely reach their countrymen and appeal to the better and human side of Germany.

This action on the part of German-Americans would hearten their folk over there and encourage them to make a strike against their masters and Prussian militarism, and perhaps help materially the rising in their might of the German people to cast off their yoke.

GARDNER'S FRIENDS DEMAND AN INQUIRY

PLAN SERVICES IN CAPITOL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Aroused by the death from pneumonia of Major Augustus P. Gardner, formerly one of their number, members of the House today agitated Congressional investigation of camp and hospital conditions, not only at Camp Wheeler, where the former Congressman died, but generally throughout the country.

Representative Gard of Ohio introduced a resolution to that purpose, drawn in broad terms, and many members indicated their support.

A wave of sorrow and sympathy swept over the House today at news of Major Gardner's death. Democratic Leader Kitchin announced that if Mrs. Gardner agrees to the plan when she arrives here with the Major's body tomorrow, there would be funeral services in the Capitol, where the body would lie in state. No such mark of respect has ever been paid to a former member of Congress.

The Senate adjourned in the afternoon in respect to the memory of Major Gardner, after hearing a eulogy by Senator Weeks and adopting a resolution of sorrow and sympathy for the family.

The House adjourned without transacting any business after Representative W. W. Lufkin, Major Gardner's successor and for many years his secretary, paid a warm tribute to the dead officer. This is the first time in years, if not in history, that the House has shown such a mark of respect to a former member.

As soon as the House met Mr. Lufkin announced the death of his friend and predecessor. He spoke with much feeling, and as he ended tears streamed down his face.

Tribute Paid by Lufkin.

"It is with profound sorrow that I arise to announce the death of my predecessor in this House, your colleague for the last fifteen years, Major Augustus P. Gardner," said Mr. Lufkin. "At 5:05 o'clock yesterday afternoon, in the Base Hospital at Camp Wheeler, Georgia, Major Gardner answered his last rollcall, either as a legislator or as a soldier, a victim of camp pneumonia.

"With the same courage which he ever displayed as a member of this House, with the same fortitude which characterized his action when the President called for volunteers, Augustus P. Gardner cheerfully answered the command of that great General from above and gave his life as a sacrifice to the cause which he had not only preached but practiced, the future safety of our country.

"I think I can truthfully say that Major Gardner was the first man in the American Congress to warn his fellow-countrymen of the importance and necessity of strengthening our national defenses in every way possible. It was characteristic of the man, therefore, that when America was called upon to do her part in the world-wide war now upon us Augustus P. Gardner should be the first member of this House to resign his seat and offer his services to his country's call. It was further characteristic of the man, after a service of a few months in the United States Army, to establish the almost unknown precedent of asking for a demotion from a Colonel on the staff to a Major in the line in order that he might more fittingly fight his share of our nation's battles.

"It was the privilege of you men here to have been associated with Augustus P. Gardner as a legislator, some during his entire service, others for a much shorter period. It was my privilege, however, to have been associated with him in a more personal manner, as his secretary, as his political associate, and as my dearest and best friend and benefactor, during a service of nearly sixteen years. I knew him before he became a member of this body, I knew him as a member, and I knew him as a soldier of the United States. He was always the same. The office or the uniform made no difference. He was always a man in all that the term implies."

Resolutions of Inquiry.

Representative Gard's resolutions calling upon the Committee on Military Affairs to investigate the health conditions at the camps and to determine whether disease resulted from the location of the camps and lack of clothing reads:

Whereas, The several reports of Surgeon General Gorgas of the United States Army as made to the Chief of Staff during the months of November and December of 1917, and which have been incorporated in a House document, disclose in certain camps conditions of ill-health of American soldiers as being directly affected by camp conditions, such as the selection of improper location, lack of proper sanitation, overcrowding in quarters, lack of proper clothing, and insufficient hospital accommodations; and,

Whereas, It is absolutely essential for the success of American arms in war that the soldier in training camp be surrounded with all possible facilities for the continuance and promotion of his health and strength; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Committee on Military Affairs of the House of Representatives be, and it is hereby, directed to at once make inquiry and investigate

First—As to the selection of camp sites, by whom made, and after what information.

Second—The number of cases of illness, with inquiry as to their relation to camp conditions.

Third—The supply of clothing.

Fourth—The sufficiency of barracks and tentage.

Fifth—The sanitation and cleanliness of the camps.

Seventh—The treatment accorded the soldiers in certain camps.

That the House of Representatives and the nation may be fully advised of all camp conditions, so that change and remedy may be applied where necessary.

And that said committee make such investigation and report thereon to the House of Representatives at the earliest practicable time.

BOSTON, Jan. 15.—Provision for official representation at the funeral services of Major Augustus P. Gardner were made by Governor McCall and the State Legislature today. The Governor in a special message referred to Major Gardner's long service to the State, and the Legislature adopted resolutions expressing sorrow at his untimely death and extending sympathy to the widow and family. Lieut. Gov. Calvin Coolidge, President Henry G. Wells of the Senate, and Speaker Channing Cox of the House will probably be designated by the Governor to attend the funeral.

149 DEATHS IN CAMPS CAUSED BY PNEUMONIA

Weekly Report Shows Fewer Fatalities, but Increase in Hospital Admission Rate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Pneumonia caused 149 of the 235 deaths reported among the National Guardsmen and national army men training in this country in the week ended Jan. 11. The weekly report of the Division of Field Sanitation, made public tonight, shows that eighty-eight guardsmen died, as compared with 109 the week before, and 147 national army men as against 167 the previous week.

Both the hospital admission and non-effective rates in the guard and national army camps increased for the week, with pneumonia generally prevalent. Among the guardsmen there were 342 new cases of pneumonia, and in the national army 340. The meningitis situation continued to improve in both the guard and national army, while measles continued to decline in most camps. Epidemics of German measles and mumps prevailed in many camps, with scarlet fever increasing in the national army and decreasing in the national guard.

Camp Doniphan, Okla., led the guard camps in the number of new cases of pneumonia, with 50, and Camp Wheeler, Ga., was second with 47. Camps MacArthur, Texas; Bowie, Texas, and Beauregard, La., were above the average in the number of new cases with 45, 46, and 36 cases respectively.

Camp Travis, Texas, headed the national army camps with new cases of pneumonia with 94, against 72 the week before. Camp Pike, Ark., was second with 41 cases, and Camps Lee, Va., and Taylor, Ky., reported 24 and 34 new cases respectively. The week before there were 59 new cases at Camp Lee.

BISHOP CUSACK BETTER.

Prayers Offered in Albany Catholic Churches for Prelate's Recovery.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 15.—The condition of the Right Rev. Thomas F. Cusack, Bishop of the Catholic Diocese of Albany, who is ill with pneumonia, was reported as slightly improved today. His fever was slightly less than yesterday, and he passed a fairly comfortable night, his physicians reported.

The Bishop became ill Sunday, and yesterday it was announced that he was suffering from pneumonia. At his own request he received communion and the sacrament of extreme unction. His nearest relatives were notified.

Today in all Catholic churches and schools in the diocese prayers were offered for the Bishop's speedy recovery.

Vassar Alumnae Reunion Today.

The Vassar Alumnae will hold a three-day reunion in New York commencing today to continue until Saturday. The headquarters of the alumnae will be the Hotel Vanderbilt. There will be a war work conference on Friday afternoon, and other conferences on topics of present moment will be held during their stay. There will be about 500 members in attendance.

39 DEATHS REPORTED IN OUR ARMY ABROAD

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—General Pershing today sent to the War Department the longest list of casualties—mostly natural deaths—received from him since the American expeditionary force reached France. Exclusive of two engineers who lost their lives as a result of the action at Cambrai on Nov. 30, there were thirty-seven soldiers in today's death list.

Of the thirty-nine deaths twenty-six were due to pneumonia. Suggestions that the members of the expeditionary force in France are not properly clothed are resented in the War Department, where officials insisted today that every man sent to France had sufficient warm Winter clothing. The heavy death list from pneumonia is attributed to the severe Winter weather in France.

The two engineers whose deaths were reported today were previously reported as missing in the action of Nov. 30, when they fought with the British in stemming the German counterattack at Cambrai. They were among the seventeen men who disappeared in that action. One of them was recently found to have been captured. How many of the sixteen were captured is not definitely known, but it now develops that two of the sixteen were killed and were buried in December. They were Private Harold T. Andrews of Portland, Me., buried Dec. 18, and Private Michael Dina of New York, buried Dec. 17. Dina's father is James Dina of 147 East Fourth Street, New York.

The other deaths reported by General Pershing today were:

LEAVE FOR PERSHING'S MEN.

One Week for All After Four Months of Service.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Jan. 14, (Associated Press.)—Regulations governing the granting of leaves to men who have been or will be at the front are made in a general order today. Officers and men in good standing will be entitled to seven days' leave, excluding the time spent in traveling, after four months of service in France.

This period is not as long as that given by the French, but is the same as that in operation in the early days of the war in the French Army. It is assumed that after the Americans have been through long and difficult service the period will be lengthened. Because of French military requirements and other considerations, leave to go to Paris will be available only by special arrangement, so that the number of Americans in the capital at any given time will be limited.

It is announced that leave-zone limits are being established and will be defined within a month. The regulations will apply to civilian employes as well as soldiers.

In connection with the issuance of this order, it was disclosed that the American troops in France will soon be introduced to permissionnaire trains, which will carry men to the leave zones, many of which will be to the south of the army zone. Orders regarding the time of return of men on leave and their conduct will be particularly strict. Upon the manner of compliance with these regulations depend many factors related to later leave arrangements.

BRIDE OF LIEUT. DONALD ROY

Miss Lucy F. Belcher Weds Son of Brooklyn County Judge.

The wedding of Miss Lucy F. Belcher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Belcher of Boston, to Lieutenant Donald Roy, son of County Judge Robert H. Roy of Brooklyn, took place at noon yesterday at the Central Congregational Church, Brooklyn. The Rev. Dr. F. Parkes Cadman, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony in the presence of a few relatives and friends. There were no bridal attendants.

Lieutenant Roy is a member of the 102d Trench Mortar Battery at Camp Wadsworth. He was graduated from Princeton, class of '13, and the bride is a graduate of Smith College, class of '15. After Lieutenant Roy's leave has expired the couple will go to Spartanburg.

Wed to Lieut. Harold B. Pratt.

The marriage of First Lieutenant Harold Birdsall Pratt of the 106th Infantry, stationed at Spartanburg, S. C., son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard H. Pratt, and Miss Gertrude Evans Middleditch, a daughter of Mrs. Thomas Jarman Middleditch, took place at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the residence of the bride's mother, 1,339 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, the Rev. Dr. Avery A. Shaw officiating.

McKinney-Kingsbury Engagement.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward N. McKinney of Albany, N. Y., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Julia Marion McKinney, to Frederick J. Kingsbury, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Kingsbury of New Haven, Conn. No date has been set for the wedding.

R. HOE, JR., MARRIES AGAIN.

New Yorker's Marriage to Miss Mary E. Thompson His Third.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 15.—The wedding of Miss Mary E. Thompson, daughter of the late Edward Livingston Thompson and Mrs. Thompson of Baltimore and New York, to Robert Hoe, Jr., of New York took place quietly this morning at the Park Avenue residence of the bride's aunt, Miss Emma Elliott Johnstone. The bride had for her only attendant Mrs. George Hoff of Baltimore. Arthur Ingersoll Hoe of New York was his brother's best man. Only the members of the two families were present, among them being the mother of the bridegroom, Mrs. Robert Hoe, who is 80 years old.

On the paternal side the bride is related to the Livingstons, Schuylers, and other prominent old New York families. Through her mother she is a granddaughter of the late Andrew Johnstone of Beaufort, S. C.

This is Mr. Hoe's third marriage. His first wife was Miss Ethel Louise Dodd, daughter of the Rev. Ira Dodd, New York; his second was Miss Grace Sedgwick, also of New York, daughter of the late Arthur G. Sedgwick, both of whom he divorced.

CAPT. 'BILL' McDONALD DIES

WICHITA FALLS, Texas, Jan. 15.—Captain "Bill" McDonald, United States Marshal for Northern Texas, the friend and bodyguard of several Presidents, and famed as the man "who would charge Hades with a bucket of water," died here tonight. McDonald was famed for his control over the most desperate characters of the Mexican border and Texas.

On the recommendation of Colonel E. M. House, close friend and adviser of President Wilson, McDonald had been twice named by the latter as United States Marshal of the Northern District of Texas and personal bodyguard of the President.

He was born in Kemper County, Miss., Sept. 28, 1852, and was appointed United States Marshal for the Northern District of Texas for the first time in 1887, and subsequently appointments were the result of his untiring efforts as Marshal and Texas Ranger. During his career he was identified with many of the most sensational crime cases of the southern border. He had killed a number of men in the performance of his duty as an officer of the law, and while literally "shot to pieces" himself, was lithe and active almost up to the time of his last illness.

COL. CHAS. W. FENTON DEAD

Commandant at Fort Myer Said to be Victim of Spinal Meningitis.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Colonel Charles W. Fenton, 2d Cavalry, U. S. A., commandant of the United States military post at Fort Myer, Virginia, died at the Walter Reed General Army Hospital today. He was taken there last Saturday, when it was reported that he was suffering from what appeared to be spinal meningitis. The surgeons today refused to give the cause of his death. No authoritative statement was obtainable.

Colonel Fenton was commandant at the first and second training camps at Fort Myer, and as such was well known to young men of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Virginia, Maryland, and the District of Columbia, who attended these camps. His work there attracted the attention of military men throughout the country. Officers of the allied armies who visited the training camp praised the work of Colonel Fenton.

Colonel Fenton was born in Michigan in 1865. He was graduated from West Point in 1888 and was assigned to the 9th United States Infantry. He served as aid to General Frederick Dent Grant. For the last three years he had been in command at Fort Myer.

Joseph L. Killgore.

Joseph L. Killgore, a veteran of the civil war and prominent in Grand Army affairs, died at his home, 343 Sixth Street, Brooklyn, on Monday, in his seventy-fifth year. Mr. Killgore enlisted as a corporal in Company D, 4th Delaware Regiment of Volunteers, and was captured and confined in Libby Prison. He had also been held a prisoner in other prisons of the South and in later years he devoted much of his time and work for the benefit of Union soldiers who were victims of prison camp outrages. He was also instrumental in having the New York State Legislature make an appropriation for the erection of a monument on the cemetery at Andersonville in memory of New York soldiers who died in that prison. Mr. Killgore was Commander of the New York Association of Ex-Union Prisoners of War, and President of the New York Association of Andersonville Prison Survivors.

The Moral Obligation On All New York Jews

Fifty thousand Jews must at once become members of the Federation for the support of Jewish philanthropic societies if Manhattan's and the Bronx's 89 Jewish charitable institutions which form the Federation are to care for the many thousands of our people who need their help.

The Federation collects and distributes all funds for Jewish philanthropic purposes. In 1917 it rendered splendid service to alleviate every form of distress. More money is needed this year and must be raised promptly.

There is an unquestionable moral obligation resting on every one of us who is fortunate enough not to need charity. It is to become a Federation member.

Any Jew is eligible for a $10 membership if over 18, or a $5 membership if under 18. Those are the minimum subscription rates. They can be paid annually, half-yearly or quarterly.

The mute, pitiful appeal of the helpless is irresistible. Fill out the appended blank and mail it at once to William Fox, Suite 312, Claridge Hotel, New York City.

The Woman Voter

Personal Government, the "Government of Favors," as Exemplified in Tammany and the Philadelphia Machine—Why It Is Strong and Why It Is Bad for the People.

FIFTEENTH ARTICLE—SHE LEARNS ABOUT TAMMANY.

"Tammany is the most famous of all American institutions," said the Correspondent.

"That isn't the definition I was going to give," said the Politician.

"It isn't a definition, it's a fact," said the Correspondent. "It's America's contribution to the international political language. Some years ago I read a book on Spanish political conditions by Joseph McCabe, the British writer, in which he quoted the President of the Athenaeum of Science and Letters, at Madrid, as opening a debate in the Section of Historical Sciences on the theme, 'Oligarchy and Tammany are the actual form of government in Spain.' And McCabe explained:

"'I have ventured to insert the word Tammany for the untranslatable Spanish word Caciquismo, because it is the only word familiar to English readers which conveys the meaning.'

"And Ferrero, the Italian historian, writes a history of Rome in which he undertakes to explain the conditions in ancient Rome so that modern Romans can understand them; and he has to go to Tammany to interpret ancient Rome to modern Rome. In describing Caesar's political methods he says:

"Whether it's an Englishman explaining Spain to England, or an Italian explaining ancient Italy to modern Italy, when they find themselves stuck for a household word to make their meaning clear they fall back on Tammany. And it's the only American word of which that is true."

The Politician, who had been waiting for a chance to get in his answer to the Lawyer's question, was not altogether pleased with this interruption. He paused long enough to show his disapproval before he began:

"When I said I didn't believe you knew what Tammany was, I wasn't referring to you in particular. You have taken part in a good many reform movements, and my opinion of reformers in general is that they spend their lives fighting Tammany without ever getting an understanding of what Tammany really is, what its solid reason for existence is. You call it names, and the names are deserved; but you don't try to find out what is back of it. How do you account for the fact that the people of the city turn Tammany out of power in one election and turn it back into power in another?"

"The people get tired of being good," said the Lawyer, "and want a wide-open town."

"That's a surface explanation," replied the Politician, "and doesn't get down to the bone. The truth is that Tammany means something. Tammany is the personal element in politics carried to the point of high organization. Reform is impersonal. Good government is impersonal. But Tammany is personal.

"Tammany is the Little Father idea in American politics. The district leader is the Little Father of his people, or at any rate he is when Tammany is its real self. I admit that the stuffing has been kicked out of Tammany in so many elections that it hasn't been feeling well until lately. But take Tammany in its flower, and it was a system like the Caliphate of Haroun-al-Raschid.

"The district leader looked after his people. He didn't confine himself merely to getting out the vote, as you reformers always picture him—when you don't picture him as taking bribes or blackmailing or stealing money. He was the Caliph, the little despot whose despotism was beneficent if you were good. And being good didn't consist in practicing the cardinal virtues, or the seven deadly sins either; it consisted in voting right. The district leader was your boss, your Caliph, and you looked to him for aid in tight places. You didn't look for it as a favor, either, you looked for it as a right. It was his business to look out for you.

"There never was a more successful leader than Big Tim Sullivan. He was an uncrowned king. He was the whole Tammany system in full bloom. The papers used to print accounts of Big Tim's more egregious benefactions, when he distributed shoes to every poor man in his district, or gave a dinner to all the hoboes; but they knew nothing of his constant and daily relations with the people of that district. I don't mean to imply that Big Tim was a philanthropist, but only that he was a Caliph. If a man needed a job he felt that he had a right to go to his leader and demand it; provided, of course, that his record was good for loyalty to the organization. It was the same if he needed a meal.

"The district leader, the Little Father, busied himself about the personal concerns of everybody in his district. Even its social affairs had their spring in him. If you got into trouble with the police, it was the leader's business to get you out. Naturally, you didn't inquire closely into the ways by which he got you out. In the old days he got you out because the Judge before whom you were arraigned did not dare refuse anything he asked."

"But didn't that give favored criminals the privilege of committing crime?" asked the Business Woman.

"Where the district boss was crooked, it certainly did. In such cases he even got a rake-off from the criminals on the proceeds of their crimes. But that depended ultimately on the character of the district the leader ruled. It didn't apply to every district by a good deal. The thing that did apply to every district was the essential feature of the system, the dependence of the district on the boss and the obligation of the boss to look after the district.

"Everybody in the district knew the leader, or if any one didn't it was his own fault, for the leader wanted to know him. When Tammany was completely in power, every city office that could be grasped was filled by members of the organization; so that if you had a favor to ask which your district leader couldn't grant, he could go to another district leader who did have the power and announce his wishes. For instance, take that case of your being in trouble with the police. It might be a matter beyond your district leader's control; he might not know the Judge; but he knew the Judge's district leader, who had put the Judge on the bench, and he merely told that leader what was to be done and that leader told the Judge. The system was completely interwoven, so that the district leader must have seemed omnipotent to those of his followers who did not know its windings and twistings.

"You see now what I mean by calling Tammany the Little Father idea, the personal element in politics carried to the point of organization. I admit that personal government, a government of favors, is always bad government, and that in the long run the people get the worst of it. Under Tammany they paid for their privileges, not only in the mass but individually. For the other side of favor is injustice. A favor to one means a compensating injustice to another; and the man with a pull was enabled to harry his enemy or his neighbor, while a police force that was ruled not by the law but by personal caprice could be a terrible engine of oppression to any one who fell out of the leader's favor, or even out of the favor of any one who had the leader's ear. Dirty streets, a high death rate, tolerated crime, hit not merely the people as a whole but the individual, the poor man more heavily than the rich.

"But most people lived without coming in contact with these unpleasant experiences, and they only saw the leader in his Little Father capacity. They grumbled, perhaps, if a house of prostitution was opened next door to the schoolhouse. They went to the leader about it, and he promised that it should be moved away. It disappeared within twenty-four hours, and instead of having their eyes opened they were loud in their praise of the leader, who responded so instantly to his people's desires. They never thought far enough beyond to wonder why such places were flauntingly open at all. Most of us are affected much more by immediate personal experiences than by general principles.

"Strange as it may sound, I can give you better illustrations of Tammany government from Philadelphia than I can from New York, for Philadelphia is a more thorough-going example of Tammany government than New York. You think of Tammany as a local institution, but it is not. The Philadelphia Tammany is run on exactly the same principle, and it is still in full blossom, whereas the New York Tammany has been hard hit by the elections of the last ten years, and has had many of its most picturesque features shorn off.

"The New York Tammany is Democratic, the Philadelphia Tammany is Republican, but that is merely because the preponderance of voters belong to those parties; neither of them has any political principles. The principle of both, the backbone, is the principle of the Caliphate.

"A few weeks ago there died in Philadelphia a typical Tammany boss, Jim McNichol. Years ago there was a great coal famine, caused by a strike in the anthracite regions. McNichol, who was then a ward boss in Philadelphia—what we call a district leader in New York—got some coal and ordered his lieutenants to deliver it to poor people in the ward who couldn't get any. When they reported progress, he asked if they had given any to a certain poor widow.

"'No, and you bet she won't get any,' said one of the sub-bosses.

"'I want some sent to her,' said McNichol. 'She needs it.'

"The subaltern could hardly believe his ears. 'Why, chief,' he expostulated, 'have you forgotten that her two sons are agin the organization?'

"'Are you going to put me to the trouble of taking that coal there myself?' asked McNichol. The debate ended and the coal was delivered, but the incident was never forgotten in the ward.

"About a dozen years ago the boss of the Philadelphia Tammany was Israel W. Durham, one of the most interesting bosses in political history. The machine in his day was founded on the salaries of officeholders, each of whom paid a specified portion of it to the organization, and the distribution was directed absolutely by the will of Durham. You can see that no pasha was more a monarch than Durham. The reason I have mentioned him is so that I can illustrate the workings of this Little Father system which is the backbone of all Tammanys, whether in New York or elsewhere.

"Durham established headquarters openly in the Betz Building, in the heart of the business section, and there, punctually at 11 o'clock every morning, he would arrive to give his orders for the government of Philadelphia. It was perfectly undisguised; it was far more open than the office of the nominal Mayor. When he arrived there each morning he would find contractors waiting to ask that city contracts be given them, officials waiting for instructions about how to conduct the city's business during the day, politicians with problems from their wards. He would find them waiting for him in the street and in the halls, and would listen to each and decide his case in a few words.

"Once a priest was waiting there for him. His church was caring for three children whose mother was a morphine victim. She needed treatment, and the priest wanted Durham to send her to a hospital which treated such cases.

"'Why don't you see the hospital authorities?' asked Durham.

"'I have,' said the priest, 'but they won't take her without money, and she hasn't any.'

"'Oh, they won't,' said the Little Father. 'Well, I'll see that they do.' And they did.

"Again, Durham, rusticating at Lake Placid, heard of an orphan girl who was trying to support five little brothers and sisters and needed help. The Boss wired his Secretary, 'Give the girl $200 for me and make every leader, officeholder, and contractor who comes in the office today give up, too.' And they did; there was no escape.

"On another occasion one of the machine found a neighbor of his, a church member, in great tribulation because a saloon was about to be opened next door to his house. He could not afford to move, he had children growing up, and saloons were his abomination. 'I'll see Durham about it,' said his friend, the politician. 'He won't help me,' said the churchman, gloomily; 'I've always voted against you people.' But his friend did see Durham, and the pasha said, after listening to the story of the churchman's woe, 'They don't really need a saloon there anyhow; tell those people they'll have to locate their ginmill two blocks up the street.'

"You may say that these are stories of a benevolent despot. The benevolence is likely to blind one to the despotism. Is it any wonder that to people who come in personal touch with such incidents as that, it is a little difficult to keep the eyes fixed on the abstract beauties of good government, that the boss seems warm and near, and good government seems cold and hard and far removed? I don't mean that it's difficult for you," he was waving his finger at the Lawyer now, "because you're an abstraction yourself, but it's difficult for ordinary people who think a good deal about coal and food and pay envelopes, and never belonged to a Greek-letter fraternity."

"And yet it's those same people that have voted Tammany out of power time and time again in New York, and once in a great while in Philadelphia," retorted the Lawyer.

"Yes, you can get the plain people in ire for good government by making them actually feel the hardships of bad government," said the Politician, "and Tammany is pretty sure to show them bad government if it stays in power long enough. I don't mean the local New York Tammany particularly, but any Tammany—any 'Caciquismo,' as the Correspondent's Spanish friends call it. But while people don't really want bad government, there is another kind of government that they don't want either, and that's a kind the reformers always give them."

"What kind of government is that?" demanded the Lawyer.

"Uncomfortable government," said the Politician.

COMING FUR AUCTIONS.

Features of Those to be Held in This City and St. Louis.

The collection of furs to be disposed of at the forthcoming auction sale in this city, which will be held in the Masonic Hall beginning Jan. 28, will be the largest and most valuable yet offered at a Winter sale here, according to William Zobel, executive officer of the New York Fur Auction Sales Corporation. The quality of the offerings is said to be remarkably good.

"Too much cannot be said of the quality of the fresh American and Canadian skins, which is unusual at this time of the year," said Mr. Zobel yesterday. "It is doubtless due to the game laws of many States, which prohibit early trapping, and to the extreme cold weather that has been seen this Winter. Heavily furred, prime skins have been the result. The offerings, as we have previously said, show a shortage in such staple furs as muskrat, skunk, and raccoon that averages about 25 per cent. This is due largely to the same things that have contributed to the fine quality of the skins. The shortage, however, is more than made up by the offerings of all varieties of foxes, marten, lynx, beaver, and ermine, which are larger than at any previous Winter sale.

"At no prior auction of the corporation have all the fur-bearing countries of the world contributed to so great an extent. There are raccoon, pahmi, and weasel from China, fox and opossum from Australia, and mole from Scotland and Holland. South America, Russia, Japan, Persia, India, Greenland, Alaska, and Canada have also contributed. The collection of lynx, marten, and cross and silver fox from Alaska and Canada is very fine. The quantities of the rarer and higher grade furs which have been shipped here for the forthcoming sale indicate an increasing realization of the purchasing power of New York as the fur market of the world."

Offerings at the St. Louis sale of Funsten Brothers & Co., which begins on Jan. 21, include about 2,800,000 skins. The largest offerings will be made on the fifth and closing day, when more than 775,000 pelts will be sold. The goods will be one show from tomorrow, and "prompt day" will be on Feb. 6.

Fibre Silk Sweaters Popular.

The Spring trade is said to be taking fibre silk sweaters in liberal quantities. The coat sweater seems to be the most favored in these lines, and is wanted in a wide variety of colors. Stripes are preferred, apparently, and some of these are in the most brilliant shades. Such combinations as red, green and yellow, blue, yellow and old rose, and black, yellow and white in stripes of varying widths are among the most popular. The high collar buttoning in front has been attractively developed on many of these garments and seems to be well liked. Most of these sweaters have sashes in the color which predominates in the rest of the garment, though in some the combination of colors is maintained here also.

British Anti-Suffragists Rebuffed.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The anti-suffragists in the House of Lords suffered another rebuff today by the rejection of Viscount Halifax's amendment to the Franchise bill providing that the question be decided by a referendum of the women. The amendment was defeated by a vote of 90 to 62.

A SERVICE FOR BUYERS.

Merchants finding their stock running low may replenish it by sending a letter to The New York Times, describing what is wanted. A summary of the letter will appear the next morning on the Business Page as a small advertisement. Replies can be mailed direct to the advertiser, or The Times will supply a box number.

The cost of this service is 50c an agate line of six words.—Advt.

Auctions.

By virtue of a chattel mortgage executed by Sam Bodie to Willys-Overland, Inc., dated the 3d day of April, 1917, upon which default has been made, I shall sell the following property therein mentioned and described, to-wit:

One (1) used Mercer automobile, "as is," 35C, No. 700, with equipment, at public auction, at the Service Station of Willys-Overland, Inc., 521-31 West 57th Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City, County, and State of New York, on the 17th day of January, 1918, at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon of that day.

Dated, New York City, January 15th, 1918.

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Should Buy Linens Now.

American housewives who are in a position to do so should buy all the household linens they are going to need for some time while the January white sales are on in the retail stores. As expensive as these goods are now compared with pre-war figures, indications point to very much higher prices, due to the British embargo on flax and its manufactures for other than war uses. It may be possible that these goods will be entirely missing from the American market in the course of the next year. With linen in great demand for use in airplane wings, because it is found to be the only fabric that can be punctured without ripping, the British Government is shutting down hard on the use of flax for other things. This is due to the shortage of this fibre as a result of the German occupation of Belgium and the upset condition of Russia. Normally both are large producers of flax.

An Error as to Discounts.

The terms of "8-10-60" mentioned in the article headed "Sticking Well to Discounts" in last Sunday's issue of this paper was in error. It should have read "8-10." The standard basic terms agreed to last Summer between the wholesalers and retailers in the women's garment trades were 2-10, 1-30, net 60. It was further agreed that, by the addition of 6½ per cent. to the basic terms, 8-10, 7-30, 6-60 might be granted.

Opinions Differ on Sabath Bill.

Opinions in the local cotton goods market vary quite a little as to the probable effect on the trade of the passage of the bill recently introduced in the House by Representative Sabath of Illinois, which is designed to prohibit speculation in cotton and wool. While some merchants are not inclined to regard it very seriously, so far as its possible effect on the selling of cotton goods is concerned, in other quarters the opinion is expressed that its passage might limit the extent to which mills could book long contracts in gray goods because it might prevent buying cotton ahead in a large way with which to cover these sales. In still other quarters the possibility of very irregular cotton prices is spoken of, with an uncertain and unsettling effect on the goods market. Quite a little lack of knowledge of the details of the bill is evident here.

Women Want Beautiful Dresses.

"This talk of conservative styles and subdued colors for Spring due to war conditions," said a prominent dress manufacturer of this city yesterday, "is a beautiful theory, but I have not found it to be working out in actual practice. With but few exceptions, I find buyers looking around for the bright shades and color combinations and styles which are anything but conservative. The bulk of my business thus far has been in those garments which are as elaborate as can be with the restricted yardage that we are using. Women want beautiful clothes now just as they always did and always will."

Printcloth Demand Increases.

There was more snap to the demand for printcloths in this market yesterday, and business was done at high prices for shipment through the Spring months. Immediate delivery sales were reported on 39-inch 80 squares at 16¼ cents, with sales to June at 16 cents. Fourteen cents was paid for 39-inch 68.72s, and most mills are now asking that price for February and March. January-March 38½-inch 64-60s sold at 12¼ cents, and Spring deliveries of 60-48s brought 10¾ cents. Sheetings were reported a bit less active than on Monday, though business was done on 5.50s at 11½ cents for Spring, with some houses asking 11¾ cents for them. For four-yard 48 squares and 40-inch 2.85s the respective asking prices were 15¾ and 21¾@22 cents. Printcloths closed this way:

Demand for Children's Rompers.

Manufacturers of clothes for children report that retailers in many sections of the country are buying overalls and rompers for both boys and girls in larger quantities than ever before. Apparently the feeling is growing that, with economy urged on every hand, women this Summer will dress their children in the most practical and sensible way possible. There is no question that fancy and less durable garments will be sold, and, in fact, retailers already have placed fair-sized orders for such merchandise. But it is generally predicted that the bulk of the reorders which will come in later on after the season has opened will be for those lines designed for their wearing qualities rather than for their appearance.

Millinery Doings in Paris.

Late reports from Paris say that milliners there are using old-fashioned yellow lace straw as a facing for black or colored Milan shapes, which gives them a very soft effect. They are also using this straw for facing large picture hats made with upturned side effects, as well as in sailor shapes. Inch-wide gold and silver ribbon is being used around the crown, finished off with a small, soft bow on the edge of the brim. As a novelty, one modiste is showing navy blue taffeta hats set off with brown velvet ribbon. She also shows Havana brown taffeta or satin hats with old rose velvet ribbon and straw facings of the latter color.

Wish Another Name for It.

It has been proposed that the Tribunal of Commerce now being formed in the ready-to-wear industry be known instead as the Conference Council of the Wholesalers and Retailers in the Women's Garment Trades. Those advocating the new name feel that the designation "Tribunal of Commerce" is not sufficiently expressive of the functions of that body. It is expected that a meeting of the new organization will be held next Tuesday afternoon, at which time the final details of its [illegible] will be [illegible] the new name will come up for ratification.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The feeling of depression under which Wall Street labored yesterday was more noticeable in the atmosphere than on the ticker. The list was dull and irregular, with most stocks yielding further ground despite the argument that the deline has run to a point at which a recovery should appear. Here and there in the list attention was attracted by what brokers referred to as good buying, as in International Mercantile Marine preferred, but for the most part stocks sagged without any signs of applied pressure. Steel shares absorbed a large volume of supporting orders and carried the quotation to a new low for this movement, but a reaction at the close left the final price substantially unchanged. The commission houses are still having trouble with their wire connections and the professional traders are becoming wearied of a market which is not enlivened by entrance of new speculative interests. Attention was called to the money market in the late afternoon when call loans moved up to 6 per cent. Most of the day's requirements were satisfied at 4 per cent., however.

The coal situation is looming up as the principal factor on the business horizon. It is hard for people to realize that a country as richly supplied with coal deposits as the United States may have to forbid the free use of fuel; may even be compelled to limit the operation of essential manufacturing plants. There was evidently some misunderstanding among the Fuel Administrators after the meeting which ended early yesterday morning, and the impression left by Mr. Schley was not supported by Mr. Wiggin. It is agreed that the possibility of an order from Washington closing most of the business plants in New York and New England through the establishment of Monday as a second holiday each week has been given consideration, along with other extreme measures, but the situation is hardly so desperate as to call for the adoption of this plan at once. It is obvious that the insufficiency of the present receipts of coal must be offset by refusal to allow its free use wherever it can be obtained by consumers. The suggestion that industrial plants be reduced to five days' operation each week contemplates grave interference with the output of many articles for which there is urgent need. A hint of the disturbance which would be caused by the denial of coal to mills and factories was given in the sudden drop in the price of cotton, which followed the premature announcement yesterday of the recommendations to be made to Mr. Garfield.

On very heavy offerings the United States Liberty 4 per cent. bonds of the second issue slumped rather easily yesterday to a new low record at 96.14. This weakness on the eve of an expected announcement from the Treasury Department of the terms and date of the next bond sale was somewhat surprising. If the Secretary decides that it will be advisable to make the interest rates for the next issue 4½ per cent. the outstanding bonds may be converted into the new issue, which should certainly sell at no less than par. The suggestion that the next issue be made callable at the end of five years and payable at the end of fifteen, thus bringing maturities of the new issue and the three now outstanding into convenient sequence, is gaining approval in bond circles.

LONDON MARKET IS QUIET.

$165,000,000 Worth of War Bonds Were Sold Last Week.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The stock market was rather quiet today, owing to the attraction of the national war bonds, the sales of which amounted to £33,000,000 last week. Investment shares were easy, but renewed strength and activity developed in Peruvian issues, shipping and industrial shares, and low-priced Rhodesian mines. The latter advanced in spectacular fashion. Russian bonds were weak and 4 points lower on reports of repudiation of debts.

Money was in better supply and discount rates were steady. There was an active demand for short bills.

Trading More Active on Bourse.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—Trading was more active on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 58 francs 25 centimes for cash. Exchange on London, 27 francs 18 centimes. Five per cent. loan, 88 francs 50 centimes.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Britain's Loan in Argentine.

The $200,000,000 credit being arranged by Great Britain with the Argentine to finance cereal exports will be secured by the deposit of collateral in London, according to advices from Buenos Aires. The loan is to be liquidated in part during the next two years by the application of the income from British investments in Argentine railroads and other property to the loan principal. It is estimated that the aggregate of such dividends and interest payments amounts to $25,000,000 or more a year. The interest rate on the credit is expected to be 5 per cent.

New Low for Liberty Bonds.

A new low record for the 4 per cent. bonds of the Second Liberty Loan was established yesterday. They sold down to 96.14, or $961.40 per $1,000. The previous low record was made last Tuesday, when the bonds changed hands at 96.26, but later in the week there was a recovery in prices. Yesterday's sales of the 4 per cents. amounted to $1,763,500, and the closing quotation was 96.18, a net loss of .30 from Monday's final figure. The 3½ per cent. bonds of the First Liberty Loan closed at 98.50 and the "conversion 4s" at 97.40.

Liberty Loan Payments.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York received yesterday only approximately $12,000,000 of the $58,000,000 due as the final installment on the Liberty Loan. It was explained that, inasmuch as a great many out-of-town institutions do not remit until they have received payments from their clients, and the payment was only due yesterday, it would be several days before the transaction was entirely cleaned up. Today's receipts will probably be much heavier than those of yesterday.

Shutting Down Plants.

In addition to various other objections made to the proposal to shut down plants for the purpose of conserving the coal supply, it was pointed out that the reduction of the number of working days would seriously affect the sale of Liberty Loan bonds. At the present time hundreds of thousands of employes pay for their bonds out of the dollar or two they save from their weekly wages. In the event that they were forced to work only five days, their compensation would be reduced accordingly, and immediately a great many would stop paying their weekly installments on their Liberty bond purchases. Bankers also thought that with the reduction of industrial activity it would be so much harder to induce the workers to subscribe to the Third Liberty Loan, the terms of which will be announced shortly.

Cotton Regulating Itself.

The problem of regulation of the cotton trade seems in a fair way at present to solution without Government action by the backfire of a greater problem—the fuel shortage. The cotton trade generally has been opposed to such artificial and temporary expedients as price fixing and restriction of the futures market, holding that if regulation is necessary it must go to the root of the matter by restricting consumption, in which case the price would take care of itself. But now the coal shortage appears likely to accomplish a restriction in consumption, for the time at least, plenty drastic enough. Great Britain and France have already drastically restricted their cotton importations, and now, with domestic production falling off before the coal shortage, some of the Southern growers who turned up their noses at thirty-cent cotton may soon have cause to do some deep and rapid thinking.

Another Controller of Shipping.

The shipping industry, on the financial side at least, does not seem unduly excited at the news that a Shipping Controller is to be appointed to bring about further co-ordination by taking charge of affairs in New York. Some shipping men feel that the Shipping Board already has all the organization machinery it requires for any present or probable future situation, and that the troubles it is experiencing would be best remedied not by creating new offices and new machinery but by making better use of facilities already in existence. "The trouble is," said one man yesterday, "not that they have not all along had a beautiful organization in theory, but that its operation has been intrusted to men who didn't know, when they took hold, whether a ship was hollow or solid." This objection at least would be overcome in the case of the new office if the report that P. A. S. Franklin was to be appointed to it were true, but Mr. Franklin himself had not even heard of the matter yesterday, and furthermore there is doubt in shipping circles whether he would accept the post if offered, unless on conditions which the Shipping Board might be unwilling to grant.

Trade Acceptances and Government.

Governor Harding of the Federal Reserve Board has been asked whether arrangements could be made by which the United States Government would use trade acceptances as a medium for the payment of goods purchased by the Government. The Governor, in his reply, stated that it was unlikely that the present method of financing Government purchases could be altered so as to introduce the trade acceptance, especially by reason of the fact that under the provisions of Section 3,477 of the Revised Statutes vouchers issued by the United States in payment of goods bought are not assignable.

STEEL MILLS CRIPPLED.

Blizzards and Lack of Fuel Strike Heavy Blow to Industry.

Blizzards and lack of fuel resulting from the weather conditions have struck a heavy blow at steel mill operation during the last ten days. Meager news which reached the headquarters of concerns with plants in the Chicago district yesterday indicated that the snow practically has stopped work at rolling mills and blast furnaces. Because of broken telegraph wires, information from Chicago came mostly by way of Pittsburgh, and from the latter city word came that numerous plants have either been closed or are working far below 50 per cent. of capacity.

The steel men said they expected the worst would be over in a few days, after the snow has been removed and additional supplies of coal and coke delivered. The fuel situation, however, is disturbing to the operators and they are not optimistic about chances of getting back to capacity operations for some time to come. The industry is more depressed at the present time, it was said, than since the middle of November, 1914, when plants all over the country were operating at no more than 28 per cent. of capacity. Eastern Pennsylvania plants are suffering less from the weather than from inadequate supplies of fuel, but their activities have been reduced to a level around 50 per cent. of normal since Dec. 30.

SPEED IN WAR WORK, ADVICE TO JOBBERS

WOMEN'S TEXTILES IN PERIL

Production May Be Curtailed So Mills Can Give More Attention to the Army's Needs.

Members of the Jobbers' Association of Dress Fabric Buyers, at the annual convention held yesterday at the Waldorf-Astoria, were urged by H. Clay Miller of the Daniel Miller Company of Baltimore, First Vice President of the association, to become members of the "United States Company" for the period of the war. Mr. Miller, who presided in the absence of President W. T. Farley of Boston, advocated co-operation between the dress fabric buyers and the Government.

"Don't let us shift the responsibility to other shoulders," he said, "and feel, as one is so apt to, that 'just my not doing it' will not seriously affect the whole, but let us enter into the war heart and soul, and determine today that 'I will do my part well and cheerfully and will measure up fully to my personal obligation.'

"Did you ever stop to think that the first letters of co-operation are 'C-O'? That stands for company, so the Government, in asking us to co-operate, has invited us to become members of the United States Company, which has undertaken the biggest contract in history to crush autocracy and thus make the world safe for our sons and our sons' sons. 'U. S.' spells 'us,' and means 'us.' My message is for every man to fill his niche in the 'Hall of National Effectiveness' in order to speed up the work of war and prevent a recurrence of such blunders as the Senate investigation has disclosed."

J. B. W. Gardiner reviewed the world war and outlined the motives prompting the United States to enter the conflict. Mr. Gardiner pointed out that this country went into the war influenced by the highest consideration for the well-being of civilization, and called upon his hearers to see the issue of Autocracy vs. Democracy through to a victorious finish.

James R. MacColl of Pawtucket, R. I., in discussing the wool and fabric situation, said the buying of textiles should be governed no longer by speculation, but by supply and demand. Daniel M. Remsen spoke on commercial arbitration. It seemed to be the consensus of opinion among the buyers that if the war continued much longer a drastic curtailment in the production of women's dress fabrics would follow owing to the mills concentrating their attention to essential war orders for cloth for the Government. A report on this subject was presented by the War Service Sub-Committee on Dress Fabrics.

Thomas A. Fernley, Assistant Secretary of the association, said in his annual report that assurances had been received from the Commercial Economy Board in Washington that it would be necessary to view trade matters from the standpoint of a nation at war. The board, Secretary Fernley said, would rather see recommendations result from a conference with the trade than to adopt arbitrary regulations to govern the conduct of dress goods production during the war.

Officers elected were: President, H. Clay Miller of Baltimore; First Vice President, W. L. Logan of Dallas; Second Vice President, Frank X. Walsh of St. Louis; Secretary-Treasurer, George R. Aufderheide of Pittsburgh.

Burlington's Income Falls Off.

The monthly statement of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad for October, 1917, shows gross operating revenues of $11,342,614, an increase of $756,298 over the figures for October, 1916, and an increase of $1,252,818 in operating expenses. As a result the operating income for the month fell off $1,365,292, part of this being due to heavy tax increases. For the ten-month period total operating revenues were $101,573,663, total operating expenses, $65,812,572, and operating income, $28,639,580, a decrease of $1,924,601.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Directors of the German Exchange Bank, who decided last week to change the name of the institution to the "Commercial Exchange Bank," have elected President Joseph M. Adrian Chairman of the board and Louis A. Fahs President. The other officers are: Joseph Frey, First Vice President; Louis J. Adrian, Second Vice President; George Kern, cashier, and Harry Engel, assistant cashier.

Stockholders of the National Surety Company have re-elected the Directors. President W. B. Joyce announced at their meeting that $7,500,000 had been received in premiums during the year 1917.

The Bankers Trust Company, as trustee, is inviting offers of first and refunding sinking bonds of the Citizens Gas Company of Indianapolis to exhaust the amount now held in the sinking fund.

Sir Connop Guthrie, American representative of the British Ministry of Shipping, was the guest of honor last night at a dinner given at the Waldorf by his staff.

The Irving National Bank has issued a pamphlet on Trade Acceptances.

The annual Directors' report of the Broadway Central Bank shows an increase of 17½ per cent. in deposits over the previous year, with an increase of 14 per cent. in the number of depositors.

Arthur S. Sewall was yesterday elected a Director of the Lehigh Valley Railroad at the annual meeting of stockholders held in Philadelphia, in place of Edward B. Smith, deceased.

At the annual meeting of the Sixth Avenue Railroad Company the retiring Directors were re-elected.

At the annual meeting of the United States Gypsum Company the following Directors were elected to serve for a term of three years: W A. Avery, Jr., F. L. Kane, Ralph Van Vechten, J. W. Fowler, and D. F. O'Brien

The Board of Governors of the Investment Bankers' Association of America will hold its next meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria on Friday. President Hayden will deliver an address and Allen B. Forbes, Chairman of the Committee on the Conservation of Wealth, will make his report.

OFFER MILLION LIGHT NOTES

A syndicate headed by Merrill, Oldham & Co., Lee, Higginson & Co., and the Guaranty Trust Company is offering $1,000,000 of two-year 7 per cent. notes of the Fall River Electric Light Company at 99¾, to yield about 7⅛ per cent. The proceeds of the notes will be used for the retirement of substantially all of the present floating debt of the company, which was incurred for extensions and additions to property.

The Fall River Electric Light Company is capitalized at $1,400,000. The net earnings for the twelve months ended Nov. 30 were $207,355. Dividends of 6 per cent. per annum or more have been paid on the capital stock continuously for thirty-two years. The present annual rate of 8 per cent. has been paid for the last eleven years.

Another piece of financing announced yesterday was the sale of $2,000,000 bonds of the Province of Manitoba, (Canada,) of which $1,000,000 bear interest at 5 per cent. and mature Oct. 1, 1920, and $1,000,000 bear interest at the rate of 6 per cent. and mature Feb. 1, 1928. Both maturities are being offered by Wood, Gundy & Co., at prices to yield 6¼ per cent. For the flotation of this issue the Canadian bankers had to obtain permission from the Canadian Minister of Finance in accordance with the new law which requires the Government approval of all new financing operations.

BANKERS TRUST CHANGES.

Directors of the Bankers Trust Company, at their meeting yesterday, elected Samuel M. Greer and B. W. Jones Vice Presidents and L. C. Outcault and G. F. Trefcer Assistant Treasurers.

Mr. Greer was formerly General Commercial Superintendent of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, and for the last few months he has held the position of Director of the Bureau of Development of the Red Cross in Washington. He has been in the telephone business for twenty-five years, having started at the age of 16 years.

Mr. Jones has been Secretary of the Bankers Company for a number of years, and was one of a number of bank officers who assisted in the organization of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

Columbia Bank to Increase Capital.

Stockholders of the Columbia Bank, at a meeting held yesterday, voted to increase the capital stock of the bank from $300,000 to $1,000,000. This additional stock has already been underwritten without cost or commission of any kind and will become effective on March 1. The bank will then have, in addition to its $1,000,000 capital, a surplus of approximately $750,000.

Cort Files Bankruptcy Schedule.

John Cort, the theatrical manager, filed in the Federal District Court yesterday schedules showing liabilities of $831,995 and assets of $1,281,836. The assets consist of stock and bonds of John Cort, Inc., $1,249,000; notes, $22,836, and a lease of the Duquesne Theatre, Pittsburgh, $10,000. The petition in bankruptcy was filed on Oct. 11 by three creditors having claims totaling $15,794.

THE COTTON MARKET

Prices Drop Rapidly on Report of a Five-Day Week Due to Coal Shortage.

The local cotton market was hard hit yesterday by the report that the coal shortage would force industry in New England and New York to a five-day week basis. Before the prospect of a drastic reduction in consumption which this would entail, prices tumbled all down the line, and for the first time in a long while the trade showed no disposition to support the market. There were even reports of some trade selling late in the day, although it had bought fairly well in the morning. The net loss was only from 8 to 10 points for the day at the close, but this was not so significant as the rapidity with which prices went down in the last hour, losing 40 points in a brief interval from the highest point.

The Census Bureau report of December consumption, although 74,000 bales below November and 20,000 less than in December, 1916, was not particularly startling, as it was well up to the December average of recent years and better than many observers had expected in view of the fuel shortage and transportation crisis which had already become visible in that month. As a result, the market opened with a rather good tone, 3 to 11 points higher, and advanced well during the early part of the day, with trade buying as liberal, apparently, as ever. At the best point prices were up around 25 points net, but even before the bad news came there were signs of wavering, due to selling pressure from the South and reports of easier spot markets there.

Dry weather continues in the Southwest, although there have been heavy rains further east, with cold weather expected. Exports yesterday were 7,774 bales, or 2,227,981 for the season. Southern spot markets ranged from 25 points higher to 25 lower.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

Reports from Argentina said that an agreement has been signed with the allied Governments for the furnishing of 2,500,000 tons of wheat, equal to about 18,500,000 bushels. Credits have been arranged and cables from Liverpool state that tonnage will be provided for the transportation of this grain. The Buenos Aires wheat market declined 5c. to 5½c. per bushel, which was thought to represent selling by outside holders who had overstayed their market. Conditions here were not noticeably changed, and the Food Administration has emphasized the necessity of economies on the part of domestic consumers to provide for the additional 90,000,000 bushels of wheat which America has agreed to export.

CORN.

The corn market was a very dull affair and it was evident that the trade was little disposed to take an aggressive stand either way as long as traffic conditions are in such a deplorable state and the market is in such an unnatural condition. The undertone was barely steady, however, and the market reflected reports that country shippers were becoming quite anxious to make sales if they could secure cars. In the local cash market trading was dull owing to the inability to make shipments to the East, but prices were nominally easy, with kiln dried No. 3 yellow quoted at $1.77 and No. 3 mixed at $1.72, cost and freight New York, and Argentine corn at $2, cost and freight to arrive.

OATS.

The oats market was quiet, but an easier undertone prevailed, and the close was ¼c to ½c net lower. Price changes seemed to be governed largely by technical conditions, with longs inclined to sell, while the demand was slow. The movement was light as a result of the unfavorable traffic conditions throughout the country, but it was said that country shippers are inclined to sell. Bradstreet's visible supply showed a decrease for the week of 553,000 bushels, bringing the total to 26,736,000 bushels, compared with 76,817,000 bushels a year ago. The local cash market was firm, although prices were nominal; standard quoted at 99½c; No. 2 white, $1; No. 3, white, 98¼c; No. 4 white, 98c; clipped white, 98c@$1, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was quiet, but after a moderate decline early prices developed firmness, closing with moderate net gains. The hog situation was very strong, Chicago receiving only 3,500, with estimates of 5,000 for Wednesday. Traffic conditions were the principal disturbing element, and it is said that some of the Western roads were refusing to take livestock on account of the uncertainty of their ability to move it.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market for cottonseed oil again was dull and featureless, with prices entirely nominal owing to an entire absence of trading. The undertone, however, was firm, with offers light and in absence of pressure. Crude oil in the South was firm and bid prices here were net unchanged to 5 points higher. Tenders on January contracts amounted to 700 barrels. Range of prices:

COFFEE.

The trend of coffee prices was sharply downward yesterday and closing prices, with 15 to 24 points net loss, represented practically low levels of the day. Increased liquidation caused the early weakness and the decline later caught stop orders, which with Wall street selling, brought about a heavy feeling in the afternoon. Cost and freight offers from Brazil, showing 15 to 20 points decline, contributed to the bearish feeling among local traders and checked outside buying, which of late has been such an important factor in the market. The local market for spot coffee was dull and irregular without change, Rio 7s being quoted at 8½c and Santos 4s at 10½c. Range prices:

SUGAR.

The International Sugar Committee continues to purchase sugars freely and in large quantities, recent sales including 153,000 bags Cubas, January loading, at 4.985c, cost, insurance, and freight; 30,000 bags Porto Ricos, prompt shipment, at 5.005c, cost, insurance, and freight, delivered, and 950 tons Peru molasses, at 3½c, cost, insurance, and freight, delivered, these transactions carrying total sales for the last ten days or so close to 1,000,000 bags. The weekly statistics from Cuba show receipts at all ports, 71,634 tons; exports, 37,141 tons, and stocks of 100,668 tons. Mills grinding 158. It was reported that most of the local refiners had sufficient raw supplies on hand now to start up their plants, but that operations at this time were hampered by the lack of coal, which is now a serious factor in the situation and may further delay the distribution of sugar throughout this territory. The following are list prices for loading grades of refined sugar as quoted by local refiners: Cutloaf, 8.95c; crushed, 8.70c; Mold A, 7.95c; cubes, 8.20c; XXXX powdered, 7.65c; powdered, 7.60c; fine granulated and diamond A, 7.45c; confectioners A, 7.35c; No. 1, 7.30c.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday 7,157 packages. Still a shortage of desirable grades of fresh creamery and prices are ½c higher and firm. There is also some improvement in storage creamery, some sales of which are reported at 47c. Renovated favors the seller, and there is a stronger market for both ladles and packing stock. Creamery, higher than extras, per lb., 53½@54c; extras, (92 score,) 53c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 48½@52½c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 45@48c; thirds, 42@44c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 55½@56c; extras, 54½@55c; firsts, 50@54c; seconds, 46@49c; creamery, held, extras, 46½@47c; firsts, 46@46½c; seconds, 43½@45½c; thirds, 41@43c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 52@52½c; good to prime, 48@51c; common to fair, 40@47c; renovated, extras, 43½@44c; firsts, 41½@42½c; lower grades, 39@40½c; ladles, current make, firsts, 39@39½c; seconds, 38@38½c; lower grades, 36@37½c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 38@38½c; No. 2, 37½c; lower grades, 34@37c.

EGGS—5,315 cases. Fresh eggs scarce, and prime to fancy qualities rule generally firm and in sellers' favor. Buy for Permanent Investment

THIS is the time to buy for "permanent" investment—to purchase sound securities that are not subject to stock market fluctuations and lock them away until maturity.

FIRST mortgage serial bonds, safeguarded under the Straus Plan, are the logical selection for permanent investment. They are protected against wartime conditions and they yield 6%. They mature serially in two to ten years, thus affording the opportunity for a long-term investment. Denominations—$500 and $1,000.

OUR January Investment List describes a well-diversified list of these sound bonds, secured by the highest grade of properties in New York, Chicago and other large cities. Call or write, and specify is a very real business—not a family obligation. That is the outstanding reason why the Brooklyn Trust Company, with over fifty years' experience, should be selected.

Its service may be secured in two ways:

By private agreement whereby the owner, during life, is relieved of constant care and responsibility; or

By will whereby the Company succeeds to the management upon the owner's death.

CANADIANS BUY UP U. S. STEEL COMMON

HALT IN LIQUIDATION WAVE

Foreign holdings of United States Steel Corporation common stock at the end of the quarter closed Dec. 31, 1917, amounted to 484,190 shares, a gain over the total on Sept. 30 of 7,081 shares. This was the first increase in the ownership of Steel shares outside this country since the great liquidating movement began after the outbreak of war in 1914. In the September quarter the corporation's stock books showed a slight decline from the June quarter's holdings, but previously the quarterly shrinkage had been extensive, particularly in 1915. At the end of June, 1914, fully 1,274,247 shares of common stock were owned abroad.

The largest gain for any outside country was shown by Canada in the December, 1917, quarter, the 41,639 shares then being 7,659 shares more than three months before. Canada's increase was more than the aggregate net gain by all the nations combined, being reduced in the final result through a decline of the holdings of other countries. England's block of stock, amounting to 173,074 shares at the end of 1917, was 1,189 shares fewer than on Sept. 30. French owners increased their holdings by about 200 shares, while Holland's remained unchanged. Germany reduced her holdings of both common and preferred somewhat, and Austria reduced her preferred stock ownership substantially, the reports of these changes coming presumably through neutral countries where the shares were disposed of.

A feature of the preferred stock record was a gain of more than 2,600 shares by England, indicating that not only did liquidation cease, but renewed accumulation occurred in spite of war conditions. Switzerland sold a little preferred, the common remaining unchanged. The following table shows the holdings of leading countries on Dec. 31, with comparisons:

	Dec. 31, '17.		Sep. 30, '17.		Dec. 31, '16.
	Com.	Pfd.	Com.	Pfd.	Com.	Pfd.

Total foreign holdings—	484,190	140,077	477,109	140,089	502,632	156,412
Percentage of total issue—	9.53	3.88	9.39	3.88	9.89	4.34

The corporation's stock records show that the decline of steel shares during the quarter brought in new investment buying. At the end of the quarter the public held 53.47 per cent. of the total issue of common stock, against 47.34 per cent. on Sept. 30 and 41.96 per cent. on Dec. 31, 1916. Public holdings in this case are differentiated from stock in brokers' names. Investment holdings of preferred amounted to 89.84 per cent. at the end of the year, a gain of 2.64 per cent. for the quarter.

WAR LABOR BOARD NAMED.

Catchings and Landon Represent Employers on New Council.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Six men and one woman were named by Secretary Wilson tonight to form the Advisory Council to assist in the administration of a war labor program intrusted to the Department of Labor by the President. John Lind, former Governor of Minnesota, is Chairman of the council and representative of the public, and the other members are:

Representatives of Employers—Waddill Catchings, President of the Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron Company, Birmingham, Ala., and of the Plant Iron Works, Dayton, Ohio, and A. A. Landon, General Manager of the American Radiator Company.

Representative of Women—Agnes Nestor of Chicago, President of the Woman's Trade Union League.

Employers and workers alike were called on today by the employment service for aid in recruiting industrial workers to back up the fighting men. It is estimated that for every soldier on the firing line six civilians are needed to supply him with food and munitions, two of them behind the lines in France and four at home.

"Within the next six months," the service announced, "we must furnish approximately 1,000,000 workers for agriculture, nearly 400,000 for shipbuilding, 1,000,000 to man the ships, 250,000 for transportation, and 250,000 for the manufacture of munitions. Other war industries will call for a similar number."

RAILWAYS WIN ARBITRATION

Companies Sustained in Wage Dispute with Engineers.

The report and award of the arbitrators appointed to adjust the complaints of the engineers employed by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company and the Central New England Company were filed with the Federal District Court yesterday. In the main the company is sustained in the rate of pay and the hours the men have to work.

The controversy was submitted to arbitration under an agreement dated Oct. 30, 1917, and the hearings began on Dec. 4 last.

State Tax Rate Fixed at 1.08 Mills.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 15.—One-third of the State's direct tax for the current year, aggregating $13,058,752, will be made payable to the State on Feb. 15 next, according to announcement made today by Controller Travis. Of this total amount, $8,812,500 goes toward the payment of the interest of the State debt, $4,228,599 to the sinking fund for the redemption at maturity, and $17,653.49 is for the support and maintenance of Government. The Legislature fixed the direct State tax rate for this year at 1.08 mills, based on the valuations made last year on $12,091,437,643.

Goodyear Co. Doubles Its Capital.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 15.—Authority was given today to the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Akron, Ohio, to double its capital stock from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000. Common and preferred shares alike are doubled. The company paid a fee of $50,000 for the certificate.

Sumatra Tobacco Dividend.

The American Sumatra Tobacco Company has increased its dividend rate on the common stock from 6 to 7 per cent. annually, through the declaration of a quarterly disbursement of 1¾ per cent. Through an error, the American Tobacco Company was named yesterday in connection with the dividend. The payment will be made Feb. 1 to stockholders of record Jan. 25.

PLAN TO FINANCE SUGAR.

Bank Representatives Here Will Hold Second Conference Today.

Representatives of New York banks which have been asked to undertake the financing of Cuba's sugar crop will hold a second conference today when plans for the proposed transaction, involving $100,000,000 or $150,000,000, will be considered. President Hawley of the Cuban-American Sugar Company and President Rionda of the Cuba Cane Sugar Company, who participated in last week's meeting, arrived yesterday in Havana, where they will consult with President Menocal of Cuba and with various Cuban financiers and planters' organizations.

The New York bankers are willing to lend money on sugar, but the chief difficulty encountered is the apparent division of control over the property by reason of the position of the International Sugar Committee of the Food Administration. If the Cuban planters had sole control over the sugar crop, the bankers would be able to lend them money on sugar placed in warehouse, or sugar in transit from Cuba to New York. Inasmuch as the International Sugar Committee exercises control over the sugar but at the same time lacks corporate entity and its legal standing remains unsettled, the bankers are reluctant to enter into a loan transaction. It is understood that the matter has been turned over to counsel for opinion, and that as soon as the legal phases of the proposition are settled the bankers will decide upon the details of the financial operation.

This year's Cuban sugar crop is expected to exceed 3,600,000 tons. The International Sugar Committee is said to have contracted for about 2,500,000 tons and has an option on 700,000 tons more. Among the institutions interested in the financing are the Guaranty Trust Company, the Bankers Trust Company, the National City Bank, the First National Bank, and the Chase National Bank.

WESTERN UNION EARNINGS.

The Western Union Telegraph Company reports earnings amounting to $78,400,137 in 1917, a gain of $14,778,587 over the previous year. Expenses amounted to $52,660,938, including taxes, a total $11,418,098 greater than the year before. The company set aside for depreciation, repairs, &c., $11,640,449, an increase of $2,988,944, and the net income amounted to $12,766,950. This was only $371,545 more than in 1916, indicating the extent to which increased costs and depreciation charges ate into the gross revenue. The net was equal to $12.79 per share of stock, against $12.42 in the preceding year.

The report yesterday said that the December revenue and deductions were estimated.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

A closing rally marked the dealings on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. The tense fuel situation had been introduced in the market as a bearish factor in the early afternoon, and for a time there was decided weakness. An unfavorable effect was also produced by the decline in Liberty 4s to a new low record. At the start of the trading prices added to their losses recorded in the final dealings of Monday. Then there was a rally and then a fresh decline.

REAL ESTATE MEN PROPOSE NEW TAXES

INDORSED BY MAYOR HYLAN

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 15.—Tax measures providing for a limitation of seventeen and one-half mills on real estate in any one year, for a "habitation" tax of two and one-half per cent. on rentals to be collected by landlords and for a business license tax of from $5 to $100 annually were brought to the Capitol today by Edward F. Doyle, Secretary of the Real Estate Board of New York City.

Mr. Doyle also will have framed and introduced a bill to bring about economy in the New York City government through the abolition of the City Chamberlain's office, and the transference of the Chamberlain's functions to the Controller, and the consolidation of the Department of Docks and Ferries with the Department of Plant and Structure, as well as a bill to transfer from the Tenement House Commission to the Building Bureaus in the various boroughs the powers it now exercises in the supervision of construction and repairs of tenement houses in New York City.

All the bills will be introduced during the present week. The bill to limit the amount of the real estate tax will be presented tomorrow by Senator John F. Boylan, a Tammany member, and the "habitation" tax bill by Assemblyman Martin G. McCue, also a Tammany man. Robert F. Wagner, Democratic leader in the Senate, will probably introduce the bills affecting the city departments. These measures have the indorsement of the Hylan administration.

In order to relieve real estate from some of the taxation to which it is subjected at present, the Real Estate Board will suggest the enactment of a measure providing for a tax of one-tenth of 1 per cent. on bank balances and a tax of one-half of 1 per cent. on personal property. The bank balance tax would be payable by the banks themselves, charging the amount to customers' accounts.

According to Senate leader Elon R. Brown there will be a disposition on the part of the State in order to encourage the creation of new sources of revenue to show more liberality to localities in the refund from taxes than in the past. Beginning Oct. 1 this year the City of New York and other municipalities will receive 75 per cent. of the proceeds from the excise tax locally collected, where in the past 50 per cent. was refunded.

Minority leader Robert F. Wagner of the Senate tomorrow will introduce bills providing for the fixing of food prices charged by retailers and for the establishment of a minimum wage of workers in various industries.

W. F. Capes, Secretary of the New York State Mayor's Conference, whose Advisory Committee has been meeting here, announced today that this body would support the Wagner bill giving power to cities to own and operate public utilities if that measure could be amended in a manner which would permit of its application under the charters of second and third class cities in the State and to provide for a local referendum on the question of municipal ownership. Senator Wagner said tonight that he wanted the united support of the cities in the State for his measure, and would meet any reasonable demand for amendments.

A State-owned and operated hydro electric plant on the State reservation at Niagara Falls capable of developing at least 500,000 horse power is provided for in a series of bills introduced today by Senator Gibbs of Niagara. The bills provide for the issue of $3,000,000 in bonds to cover the first cost of the plant, and also that the project shall not be carried out unless approved by a State-wide referendum.

Senator Dowling today introduced a bill giving the New York Board of Estimate power to do away with the restrictions under which the Harlem Speedway is used only by horse-drawn pleasure vehicles. The bill would leave it to the Park Commissioners to say what vehicles should use the drive.

SUFFRAGISTS URGE HASTE.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 15.—The Legislature was petitioned today by the Executive Committee of the State Woman Suffrage Party, in session here, to hasten all legislation setting in motion the voting machinery for women. The committee held an all-day session at the Ten Eyck Hotel, and the members of the Legislature when they left the Capitol received messages telling them just what the Suffrage Party wanted.

The committee pledged the party to a broad program of war relief work. It was decided also to hold noon meetings in department stores, factories, and other places where women are employed to instruct them in civics. The gathering was called to order by Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, but in the afternoon she handed the gavel over to Mrs. William Belknap, wife of Westchester County's lone Democratic Assemblyman.

Among the measures indorsed was the Wagner-Adler bill making it possible for women to register so as to vote at the local option elections this Spring and participate in the primaries and the general election next Fall. The committee will have a representative at Albany all Winter and will urge speedy action by the Legislature on the Federal suffrage amendment when it is approved by Congress.

Other measures approved were the following: The Rankin bill, now before Congress, giving women the same rights as men in matters of citizenship; the Strong Commission bills of the last session reorganizing the State Board of Charities; an eight-hour law for women and children with an inhibition against children under 16 being employed before 8 A. M. or after 5 P. M.

Mrs. Ogden Mills Reid reported that New York State was expected to raise $60,000 annually as its share toward the support of the Woman's Foreign Service Hospital in France. The national suffrage organization has voted to maintain this hospital not only during the war but also during the reconstruction period.

The committee sent a telegram of appreciation and confidence to Maude Wood Park, National Congressional Chairman, at Washington; one of appreciation, pledging co-operation, to Representative Jeannette Rankin; one of appreciation to Senator William M. Calder, and one of loyalty and appreciation to Mrs. Norman de R. Whitehouse, who has sailed for Europe.

Among those at the meeting were Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, Miss Mary Garret Hay, Mrs. Ogden Mills Reid, Mrs. Victor Morawetz, Mrs. Raymond Brown, Mrs. Travis H. Whitney, Mrs. George D. Pratt, Mrs. Frank J. Tone, Mrs. Henry Cannon, Miss Katherine Starbuck, Miss Evanetta Hare, Mrs. George Nordstrom, Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip, Mrs. Frederick Green, Mrs. Richard Evans, and Miss Lillian Huffcutt.

600 TO SELL WAR STAMPS.

American Tobacco Salesmen Will Devote a Week to Thrift Aid.

Six hundred salesmen of the American Tobacco Company have enlisted in the War-Savings Campaign and will devote the week from Jan. 21 to Jan. 28 to selling Thrift and War-Savings Stamps to the public. The American Tobacco Company is the first large institution to offer its services to the Government in this way, and the week has been set aside by the company for its men to sell stamps all over the country, discontinuing other work. Instructions have gone out to all men from the headquarters of the American Tobacco Company, giving details regarding the meaning of the War-Savings Campaign and the value of Thrift and War-Savings Stamps to the public as well as the aid given the Government through their purchase.

It will be the aim of the American Tobacco Company's salesmen to interest as many persons as possible in starting a Thrift or War-Savings Stamp Card, rather than to sell a large amount of stamps to any one individual. For this reason the 600 men will not spend too much time in selling the single man on the street but will go into factories, mines, insurance companies, offices, department stores, railroad stations and all other places where great numbers of employes are concentrated. At such places department managers will be asked to permit the salesmen to address employes, when the War-Savings Stamps plan will be fully explained. The salesmen will have with them thrift cards with the first stamp attached and will be ready to dispose of them immediately. The American Tobacco Company and its men will employ the regular sales organization and methods which it uses in selling tobacco. Daily reports will be made by the salesmen as to the number of stamps that have been disposed of and the number of persons who have bought stamps to add to previously purchased certificates. The men will use funds provided for business purposes in the purchase of stamps from their respective postoffices. When all stamps have been disposed of a new supply will be bought and the fund turnued over and over until the week's drive ends.

It is expected that several other large business houses with similar sales organizations will follow the example set by the American Tobacco Company in aiding the Government to raise the $2,000,000,000 War-Savings Loan.

Committees of the New York Stock Exchange and the Cotton Exchange met yesterday to discuss plans for enlisting members of the exchanges in the $1,000 Limit Investment Society, of which Elihu Root is President.

MORE STREET ACCIDENTS.

Police Statistician Compares Figures with Preceding Year.

Despite the vigorous campaign by the police and highway societies, the number of street accidents in New York in 1917 increased as compared with 1916, according to the annual report submitted yesterday by M. E. Case, statistician of the Police Department, to Commissioner Bugher.

Street accidents of every nature during 1917 totalled 26,145, as against 24,464 in 1916, and 2,295 children under 6 years of age were injured, compared with 2,024 the preceding year. The number of fatalities in 1917 was 699, against 644 in 1916.

Injuries and fatalities resulting from horse-drawn vehicles were 1,764 and 56 respectively in 1917, against 2,202 and 82 in 1916. Two thousand one hundred and two persons received injuries by falling on the streets last year, twelve dying of their injuries.

The report shows that the largest number of accidents occurred between the hours of 4 and 6 in the afternoon.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Old Brooklyn Homestead Traded for Manhattan Holding—Operator Buying on Heights.

Kenneth M. Wylie sold to May Mitchell Cowenhoven the four-story brick building at 122 to 128 West Third Street, extending through to 12 and 14 Minetta Lane and occupied by Gray's Livery Stable. The property on Third Street measures 100 by 100 feet, and on Minetta Lane 50 by 50.

In exchange the buyer gave the old Cowenhoven homestead on Sixty-seventh Street, east of New Utrecht Avenue, Brooklyn, on a plot 80 by 116, also a two-story dwelling on a lot 35 by 100 and ten vacant lots adjoining.

The property has been occupied by members of the Cowenhoven family for more than fifty years. The brokers in the deal were N. A. Berwin & Co. and the William P. Rae Company.

Operator Buys Heights Apartment.

Frederick Brown, the operator who has been active recently in the buying and selling of upper west side properties, purchased from the 530 to 534 West 179th Street Realty Corporation, Jacob Hirsch, President, the two five-story apartment houses at that location, occupying a plot 43.6 by 100, 163 feet east of St. Nicholas Avenue. The houses are fully tenanted and have been held at $120,000.

M. I. Strunsky & Co. were the brokers in the deal, which makes the fifth apartment house in the immediate neighborhood acquired by Mr. Brown in the last two weeks. His other holdings include 98 to 100 Haven Avenue, 714 West 179th Street, and 570 West 172d Street.

Investor Buys on South Street.

Another deal in South Street, where there have been several investment purchases of late, was reported yesterday by the firm of Leonard J. Carpenter, which sold for the Swan Realty Company 26 South Street, a four-story business building, on a lot 25 by 84. The buyer is Moses Rodninsky, who now occupies 31 South Street.

Resells Interest in Former Hoe Properties.

Samuel Wacht, who on Saturday bought from Miss Laura Hoe her half interest in the twelve-story commercial building at 683 Broadway, northwest corner of Third Street, and the five-story business building at 62 and 64 Duane Street, has resold his interest to Francis Bannerman & Son, dealers in military goods.

Title passed yesterday, subject to one-half the mortgage of $150,000 on 683 Broadway and one-half of $13,000 on 62-64 Duane Street.

Buyers for Private Dwellings.

James A. Farley sold to an investing client of C. Royce Hubert 102 West Seventy-third Street, a four-story and basement dwelling on a lot 19 by 102.2. After extensive alterations the buyer will occupy it.

Douglas L. Elliman has acquired title from Emma H. Ellsworth to the dwelling 135 East Seventy-first Street. The property was taken over in foreclosure Dec. 24 by Mrs. Helen M. Kelly, who subsequently transferred it to the present seller.

Apartment House as Gift.

David Provost is the buyer of the apartment house at 516 West 177th Street, reported sold yesterday by Frederick Mathesius, Jr. Mr. Provost has presented the property to his wife, Edith W. Provost, as a gift. The house is subject to a mortgage of $28,000.

Bronx Holdings in Trade.

Mrs. Gertrude Boecher bought from the Conwalt Construction Company, Samuel Williams, President, the five-story apartment house recently completed at the northwest corner of the Grand Boulevard and Concourse and 165th Street, occupying a plot 74 by 106. The purchaser gave in part payment the northeast corner of Brook Avenue and 169th Street, a four-story flat, fronting 84 feet on the avenue and extending 100.5 feet to the tracks of the New York & Harlem Railroad. Alexander Selkin negotiated the deal.

Bronx Sales.

Hugo Wabst purchased from Carrie Toelle 1,423 to 1,431 Edwards Avenue, five two-family houses on a plot 106.1 by 79.8 by irregular, in the old Seton Home development. The seller acquired the property last November in foreclosure proceedings as plaintiff on a bid of $4,000.

Brooklyn.

The John Pullman Real Estate Company sold 695 President Street, a two-story and basement brownstone dwelling on a lot 20 by 100, for George A. Boyd to Carol C. Doepker for occupancy.

Sand and Gravel Company Buys Big Long Island Plant.

The Goodwin-Gallagher Sand and Gravel Company has purchased the entire plant of the Phoenix Sand and Gravel Company on the west shore of Hempstead Harbor at Fort Washington. The deal is said to have involved several hundred thousand dollars.

The Goodwin-Gallagher Company, which operates at Port Washington, and the Phoenix Company were the largest sand and gravel concerns in the east. Cornelius Gallagher will be President of the new concern.

New Jersey.

Alfred J. Keppelmann of Philadelphia and South Orange has purchased Overlook, the home of Douglas Robinson, on top of Orange Mountain, West Orange, N. J.

The property consists of eighteen acres, improved with a residence, garage, gardener's cottage, greenhouse, and stables. Mr. Keppelmann will take possession in the early Spring, upon completion of extensive alterations.

The H. M. Weill Company leased to the Van Dyke Auto Company the store at 1,739 Broadway and the basement at 239 West Fifty-fifth Street for a term of eight years at $12,000 a year.

Commercial Leases.

Horace S. Ely & Co., in conjunction with The Cruikshank Company, leased the store and basement of 813 Broadway to the Modern Neckwear Company, for a term of years.

The Robert E. Farley Organization, which has had its headquarters for several years at the Country Life Exposition in the Grand Central Terminal, has leased for its various suburban realty interests the seventh and eighth floors in the new Ashforth Building, 12 East Forty-fourth Street, and has already taken possession of its new quarters.

William A. White & Sons have closed leases and renewals in the Wall Street Exchange Building, 43 Exchange Place, aggregating $388,000. They have leased offices to Friedman & Co., James H. Rogers, and rented additional space to Balfour, Williamson & Co.; the International Nickel Company, and J. G. White & Co.

Important Realty Company Formed.

Clarence W. Eckardt, Vice President and Treasurer of Horace S. Ely & Co., who has been connected with the company for more than twenty years, has resigned to head the newly organized Markham Realty Corporation, which will have offices at 31 Nassau Street, and operate in the purchase and sale of New York City real estate.

The new company will have as Directors, in addition to Mr. Eckardt, Frederick M. Hilton, President of William A. White & Sons; Hubert E. Rogers, Director Atlantic Gulf and West Indies Steamship Lines; Edward L. Ballard, President Merchants Assurance Corporation; George T. Mortimer, President Equitable Building Company; F. H. Hirschland, Vice President Goldschmidt Detinning Company, and Seth Sprague Terry.

A 29 Per Cent. Decrease in Building.

Building in 101 principal cities of the United States decreased 29 per cent. in 1917. Figures received by the American Contractor show a total of $631,746,722, compared with $889,884,679 for 1916. The total number of permits issued in these 101 cities was 198,968, as against 258,484 for 1916, a decrease of 23 per cent.

$320,000 Midtown Loan Placed at 5 Per Cent.

A $320,000 mortgage at 5 per cent. for [illegible] years has been placed by Hughes & Hammond on the fourteen-story studio apartment building, just completed, on the southwest corner of Fifty-ninth Street and Sixth Avenue, by the 105 West Fifty-fifth Street Company, Hearn & Mathews.

The structure, which occupies a plot 71 by 100, is divided into two and three room apartments up to the twelfth floor and duplex suites on the two upper floors, renting from $1,000 to $4,500. It has a gross income of about $150,000.

Realty Notes.

Brooks & Momand have placed for the Kay-Ees Realty Company a first mortgage loan of $57,500, covering the five-story apartment house at 52 to 56 West 111th Street; also, a first mortgage of $35,000 on the five-story apartment house at the southwest corner of Columbus Avenue and Seventy-first Street, belonging to the Reckendorfer estate.

Education Notes.

The Board of Superintendents has appointed the following committee to investigate the advisability of organizing the public schools on the basis of a six-year elementary, a three-year intermediate, and a three-year high school grouping: Acting Superintendent of Schools Gustave Straubenmuller, Associate Superintendent John L. Tildsley, Edward B. Shallow, and Clarence E. Meleney, and District Superintendent Joseph H. Wade, Mrs. Grace Strachan Forsythe, John P. Conroy, Benjamin Veit, and Arthur C. Perry, Jr.

The evening high and elementary schools in Brooklyn have been closed owing to the coal shortage. The evening schools in the other boroughs remain open.

Acting City Superintendent Straubenmuller has asked the District Superintendents to report to him the number of school children who are underfed or ill-nourished or suffering from malnutrition, and who should be provided with a midday meal in school.

The Board of Education has disapproved of the proposed amendment to the by-laws giving the Inspector of Ungraded Classes the rank and pay of a director of a special branch.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The last southwestern disturbance has moved since Monday night from Central Tennessee to Eastern Maine, with steadily increasing intensity, and tonight the barometer at Eastport, Me., reads 28.72 inches.

Precipitation from this storm during the last twenty-four hours covered the entire country east of the Mississippi River except the upper Mississippi Valley, with heavy snows in the Ohio Valley and the lower lake region, and there were also severe gales over the greater portion of this area except the upper lake region.

Another disturbance is now over Eastern Texas, but as yet without precipitation of consequence.

Elsewhere in the West pressure has risen generally, but with light, scattered snows in the Northwest and snows and rains over middle and northern districts west of the Rocky Mountains.

It is somewhat colder from the Ohio Valley southward, but elsewhere temperature changes were not of consequence.

Rain is probable Wednesday in the East Gulf States, snow in the lower Ohio Valley, and rain Wednesday night or Thursday in the South Atlantic States. Elsewhere east of the Mississippi the weather will be generally fair Wednesday and Thursday. It will be somewhat colder Wednesday along the Atlantic Coast and slightly warmer in the lower Valley and the East Gulf States.

Winds for Wednesday and Thursday along the North Atlantic Coast will be westerly gales Wednesday, diminishing at night, with fair weather; Middle Atlantic Coast, diminishing west, with fair weather; South Atlantic Coast, moderate west, becoming variable Thursday, with fair weather.

FORECAST—TODAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York.—Fair Wednesday and Thursday, little change in temperature.

Southern New England, New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania.—Fair, somewhat colder Wednesday. Thursday fair.

Northern New England—Fair Wednesday, except snow in Eastern Maine, somewhat colder; Thursday fair.

3 A. M.	21	28	4 P. M.	20	[illegible]
6 A. M.	18	28	6 P. M.	21	[illegible]
9 A. M.	21	36	9 P. M.	22	[illegible]
12 M.	23	37	11 P. M.	21	[illegible]

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 32; for the corresponding date last year it was 22; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 30.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 33; at 8 P. M. it was 28. Maximum temperature, 40 degrees at 10:30 A. M.; minimum, 24 degrees at 10 P. M. Humidity, 97 per cent. at 8 A. M., 55 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 29.09 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 29.45 inches.

The Civil Service.

City.

Applications for inspector of iron and steel construction, Grade 2, will be received until 4 P. M. on Jan. 22. The subjects and weights of the examination are: Experience, 4; technical, including report, 6. A qualifying physical examination will be given. Candidates must be at least 21 years of age and not more than 55 years on or before the closing date for the receipt of applications. Appointments will be made, as a rule, at $1,200 a year. There are several vacancies in the Bureau of Buildings, and the list may be certified to other departments.

United States.

The commission announces for Feb. 20 at the New York Custom House an examination for assistant in forest pathology, for men and women. Vacancies in the Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture, in Washington, and in the field, at salaries of $1,200 to $1,440 a year, will be filled from this examination. It is desired to obtain for this position persons expert in preparing the special culture media used in forest pathology and who are familiar with the special processes of wood histology used in forest pathology, including the preparation of microscopical slides, of normal as well as diseased wood, and who are expert in microphotography as applied to forest pathology, as well as ordinary photography, and who are familiar with the filing and cataloging methods necessary in keeping track of the specimens and records of a large laboratory and with the special methods of isolating pathogenic organisms employed in forest pathology. Competitors will be examined in practical questions in the technique of forest pathology, thesis, education and training, and experience in forest pathology. Graduation from a college or university of recognized standing is a prerequisite. Applicants must have reached their twenty-first but not their fortieth birthday on the date of the examination.

MAYOR STOPS LOADING OF EXPLOSIVES IN CITY

Violations of the regulations governing the shipping of high explosives which are required to be loaded aboard vessels only at the powder anchorage in Gravesend Bay were discovered in Brooklyn yesterday. At the direction of Mayor Hylan, the Fire Department took quick action to avert the menace. What appeared to be a cloud of smoke was observed yesterday issuing from No. 1 hatch of the steamship Napoli Sicula of the Americana Line, at the foot of Pacific Street, Brooklyn. While a passerby sent in an alarm, the crew quickly deserted because they knew that in the hold were a quantity of torpedoes, while lashed to the decks were great steel drums filled with benzol. Alongside the vessel were car floats on which stood seven New York Central freight cars loaded with more torpedoes. On the pier were still more torpedoes.

The firemen discovered that the "smoke" was only a vapor cloud resulting from a small, broken steam pipe. Mayor Hylan wrote to the Fire Commissioner as follows:

"My attention has been called to the dangerous condition at the foot of Pacific Street, Brooklyn, that high explosives are now being loaded from barges to steamers. You will give this your immediate attention and see that this condition does not continue and does not occur again. I want an immediate report as to what action you have taken."

Mr. Drennan reported last night that the danger had been removed. The torpedoes were taken from the dock and the floats were towed away. It was said that navy tugs and navy crews aided in the work.

Oscar Hammerstein Operated On.

BIG JEWISH ORDERS AID CHARITY DRIVE

Brith Abraham Plans to Enroll All of Its 70,000 Members in New York City.

Despite a falling off in actual, tabulated results, the second day of the campaign to get 50,000 new members for the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies yielded yesterday definite encouragement of the hope that the final results of the week's drive would surpass expectations. A total of 8,779 new subscribers, representing in cash $104,742, were enrolled on Monday, the first day, with an estimate that the returns when completed would reach 10,000. The team Colonels reporting at yesterday's tea in the Cascade Room of the Hotel Biltmore totaled 3,772, representing $61,157 in cash.

Jacob Wertheim, Chairman of the Publicity Committee and one of the federation leaders, said that he felt sure the actual total for the day would equal that of the preceding day, and declared that the seeming slackening in accomplishment was due to the fact that the team headed by three Colonels, S. G. Rosenbaum, Reuben Sadowsky, and Jacob Sperber, which got 3,518 new members on Monday, did not report at all yesterday, and the team led by H. B. Rosen, whose first day's total was 762 new members, likewise failed to communicate results.

There was much cheer among the throng gathered at the 5 o'clock tea, at which the work of the previous twenty-four hours was recapitulated, when it was announced that Mr. Rosen's team had won the active co-operation of important Jewish fraternal organizations with large memberships. The Independent Order of Brith Abraham, with 200,000 members, 70,000 of whom are in New York City, through Grand Master Solomon Schelinsky, aided by Alex Wohlgemuth, started a campaign to enroll all its members in Manhattan and the Bronx. There was evidence in the energy with which organization was begun that important results would be accomplished. Every local lodge of the order has promised help through its President, and 100 field workers of the order will begin canvassing today.

Free Sons of Israel to Assist.

In addition, the Independent Order of Free Sons of Israel, said to be, per capita, the richest fraternal organization in the world, with a New York membership of more than 5,000, arranged for participation at a meeting of officers Monday night, and perfected plans for its campaign at a mass meeting in Terrace Garden last night, at which Felix M. Warburg, President of the federation and "general" of the campaigning forces, and Dr. I. Edwin Goldwasser, Executive Director of the federation, told of the need for widespread, democratic support of the eighty-nine organizations embraced in the federation, all of which are confronted with war-time increases in their budgets for the current year.

The results reported by teams yesterday follow:

	Members.	Amt.
Mrs. Emil Baerwald and Mrs. Sidney C. Borg	356	$4,408
Mrs. Julius J. Dukas	175	2,288
Mrs. Solomon de Lee	151	1,495
Mrs. William Einstein	150	1,718
Mrs. Samuel Elkeles	78	1,108
William Fox	1,001	20,000
William Goldman	255	5,649
Colonel H. A. Guinzburg	218	8,318
Mrs. Alexander Kohut and Mrs. Leopold Stern	181	1,245
Mrs. Alexander J. Marcuse	67	795
Louis J. Robertson	193	3,040
Arthur Sachs and Ludwig Vogelstein	247	4,415
Henry F. Samstag	303	4,720
Mrs. Israel Unterberg	269	3,783
Jacob Wertheim	178	3,180
Total	3,772	$61,157
Previously reported	8,779	104,742
Grand Total	12,551	$165,899

Almost as much enthusiasm as greeted the announcement of the fraternal reinforcements was evoked by the reading by Mr. Warburg of a letter from John McE. Bowman, head of the Hotel Biltmore, which caused particular surprise because of the fact that non-Jews are not being solicited in the campaign. Mr. Bowman's letter, addressed to Mr. Warburg, said:

> I cannot help but be impressed with the wonderful work you and your associates are doing for our people. It is a work, I believe, should be subscribed to by every one who can afford to, irrespective of their religion or creed. I have not been approached by any one to subscribe to your fund, but something tells me that we should help along with the others, even if we are not asked. I am inclosing a receipted bill for your affair here Sunday evening, Jan. 13, with our compliments, and I trust that it will help in a small way in the triumphal finale to your efforts.

The bill was for something over $5,000.

Teas in Name Only.

It was decided yesterday that the remaining daily gatherings of Colonels, Captains, Lieutenants, and privates in the soliciting army shall be teas in name only in order that funds shall not be used needlessly and that some small aid thus may be given to the food conservation movement.

These questions and answers for campaigners aroused much interest among the workers to whom they were submitted at yesterday's gathering:

Q.—Why, Madam, do you invade my home? A.—Because poverty invades many homes, and it is your duty to aid us to expel it.

Q.—How do you know my money will go to the poor? A.—It won't if you don't give it; do you think Mr. Warburg will keep it?

Q.—How do you know all the poor are deserving? A.—Federation aims at careful, discriminating, searching investigation and then adequate, regenerative service. We are not as fearful of helping the undeserving as of leaving the needy uncared for.

Q.—Why should I give for federation, I am not a believing Jew? A.—The consciousness of spiritual pauperism is no excuse for acquiescing in the maintenance of unrelieved material poverty among one's fellow-Jews.

Beside Rabbi Wise, who propounded and answered the questions, the speakers yesterday were Dr. Lee K. Frankel and Mrs. Alexander C. Kohut. Jacob H. Schiff will be the speaker at today's 5 o'clock meeting at the Biltmore. He will talk on the Monetfiore Home. There is to be a war breakfast at the Aldine Club this morning, at which these conferees will discuss plans for furthering the drive: Jesse I. Straus, Horace A. Sachs, Charles A. Wimpfheimer, Sam Kridel, M. H. Meinhard, Max Wilner, and Henry F. Samstag, a team Colonel, who will preside.

BURNS HEARING RESUMED.

Detective Agrees to Go on Stand and Will Testify Later.

The hearing before Deputy State Controller Boardman on the charges against the William J. Burns National Detective Agency was resumed yesterday. Application to have the agency's license revoked was made by Edward W. Edwards, Secretary of the Allied Printing Trades Council. Since the last hearing Mr. Boardman, Job E. Hedges and Meier Steinbrink, counsel for Mr. Burns and for the plaintiff respectively, have examined in Washington the documents filed there by George W. Wickersham, as the result of the investigation into the Oregon timber land frauds, in which the agency participated.

It is alleged in the complaint of Mr. Edwards that the report contained statements damaging to the character of Mr. Burns. Mr. Steinbrink said yesterday that the only proper way to answer Mr. Wickersham's letter in the Oregon case was to place Mr. Burns on the stand and to let him testify concerning it. Mr. Burns expressed his willingness to testify and it was decided to permit him to do so at a future hearing.

W. G. Garvin, manager of the agency, the only witness yesterday, in a denial of testimony given by former witnesses, admitted that he had bought old United States uniforms at Fort Hamilton from a discharged soldier, but he said that he had obtained permission to do so from the Quartermaster Sergeant. The witness declared that no man convicted of crime had ever knowingly been employed by the agency.

The hearing will be resumed on Monday morning at 10.30 o'clock.

AIDS HALIFAX UNIVERSITY.

Carnegie Corporation Will Repair Damaged Dalhousie Buildings.

The Carnegie Corporation will cover the expense of repairing the buildings of Dalhousie University, Halifax, which were damaged by the explosion of Dec. 6. It is estimated that the amount necessary for repairs will be about $20,000. Shortly after the explosion President Mackenzie of the University suggested that perhaps Mr. Carnegie might make good the damage to the science building, to the erection of which he had contributed $40,000. Upon the receipt of this suggestion by the Carnegie Corporation James Bertram, Secretary of the body, wired to Halifax inquiring into the extent of the damage to all the buildings, and upon receiving a report telegraphed back: "I am authorized to state that the Carnegie Corporation of New York will consider it a privilege to pay for repairing the damage to the Dalhousie University Buildings caused by the explosion."

POSSES SEEK A SCHOOLGIRL

Middletown, Conn., Men Also Search for Her Father's Employe.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Jan. 15.—Searching posses are being organized here to scour the region around Portland and the outskirts of this city for Esther Strickland, 17 years old, a High School student, who has been missing since Monday afternoon. She is the daughter of Frederick Strickland, who operates a quarry in Portland. The girl was last seen after school closed yesterday.

Also missing and sought for is an employe of Mr. Strickland, who is reported to have been seen in the girl's company after she had left the Portland school.

Information which has reached officials in Portland inclines them to believe that the girl is forcibly detained from going home, or has met with foul play. Tomorrow the quarry district of Portland will be searched by organized bodies of men. A description of the missing man has been sent to police in other cities.

STEFANSSON SUMMER PLAN.

To Make 300-Mile Dash Over Ice in Search of New Land.

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Jan. 15.—Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the arctic explorer, according to Captain A. Lane, who arrived last night from the Arctic Ocean, bringing direct news from the explorer, was preparing to make a 300-mile dash over the ice north and west of the western Canadian arctic coast during the Summer of 1918, in search of more new land.

Stefansson, he said, intended to leave his present base in April and hoped to reach Wrangel Island, off the northern Siberia coast, in July or August. He planned to spend the 1918-19 Winter on the island and end his explorations by sailing through the Bering Strait to Nome, Alaska, in 1919.

STRAUS TO REMAIN SERVICE BOARD HEAD

HOPE IN DUAL SYSTEM

Present Situation and Temper of the Public Make Work Distasteful, Says the Commissioner.

Oscar S. Straus is to be reappointed Chairman of the Public Service Commission when his present term expires on Feb. 1, and he will accept the reappointment with the understanding that he is not to be bound to a full term. If a situation comes which will make it possible to fill his place without interfering with the present organization of the commission, and with a man sufficiently familiar with the duties of the office so that the work on the new subways and other important work under way will not be delayed by a change, Mr. Straus is to be relieved.

Several weeks ago Governor Whitman asked Mr. Straus to accept a reappointment, but the latter said that he would rather retire. He explained that he fully realized the great importance of his present place, and the need of the people for constant and unselfish work on the part of the commission, but that the tasks set him were often distasteful. He said that he saw nothing in the place that could advance any man in the estimation of the public. The very best a commissioner could hope for was to save whatever reputation he had succeeded in building up. A Public Service Commissioner, no matter how hard and conscientiously he worked, could scarcely expect anything better than to be damned by the public.

"There are two new Commissioners," said Mr. Straus last night, "and it will naturally take them some time to familiarize themselves with the work which they will have to do. Commissioners Hayward and Hodge are in the war. If the latter was available the Governor could readily find a way out of the matter by naming him as Chairman. Commissioner Hervey is of the greatest value to the commission because of his knowledge of the city's financial affairs and his accomplishments as a statistician, while the ability of Commissioner Whitney is too well known to need comment. To take him out of the special line of work that he has been doing would be a misfortune, and the Governor realizes it.

"Therefore, there appeared to be nothing for me to do save to yield to the Governor's request and consent to serve on. He told me that it would be very difficult, if not impossible, to obtain the services of such a man as is needed in the place at a salary of $15,000 a year. Such men, he was sure, could always command much greater pay. I do not need the money, and so to me the pay is of no consequence. It appears that I can help by remaining in my present place, and I have consented to do so."

Yesterday Mr. Straus wrote to Mayor Hylan expressing regret that he was in Washington when the Mayor's invitation to him to ride on a Brooklyn elevated train during the rush hours of last Monday morning arrived and therefore had been unable to accept it. He told the Mayor that the commission was entirely familiar with the overcrowded conditions referred to by the Mayor, and that it always welcomed any concrete suggestions to relieve them. He referred to the time when the Mayor was interesting himself in the negotiations leading up to the signing of the dual contracts, and then his letter ran:

"All engaged in those negotiations knew that even with the utmost expedition it would be impossible to complete those new lines before suffering from transit congestion would almost reach the breaking point. Regulation of transit service helps, but the plain, simple fact of the matter is that in the overcrowded condition of New York's transit facilities only one thing can give substantial relief, and that is the completion of the dual system that doubles the existing systems in extent and probably more than trebles them in capacity."

Mr. Straus told the Mayor that shortly the east and west side trunk lines would be in operation; that fifty of the improved rapid transit cars would soon be operating on Brooklyn lines, and that everything possible was being done to push forward the rapid transit work on the new lines.

"There is one matter," the letter continued, "in which the commission requests your aid. For the last week the Police Department had stationed six policemen in the Canal Street station during rush hours, who have rendered valuable and efficient aid in controlling the great transfer traffic at that junction. I am informed that the Police Department has notified the operating company that it feels it necessary to withdraw these men during the next few days, despite the offer of the company to pay for them. You, of course, appreciate how much more effective a uniformed policeman is under such conditions than a uniformed company employe, and will, I think, agree with me that such service is every bit as important—indeed, far more so—as the regulation of traffic on the surface."

POLICE SECRETARY RESIGNS

Mills E. Case Will Enter War Work in Washington.

Mills E. Case, Secretary to the Police Department, resigned yesterday. He will go to Washington, where he will do some war work. The Department is now without secretaries or deputies with the exception of a third deputy Secretary.

"Any member of the Police Department desiring a personal interview with the Commissioner will not be required to forward an application through official channels but should do so by letter through the mail.

"GUDE"

Thin, watery blood, poor in iron and red cells, is evidenced by a falling off of the general health. Pallor—loss of weight and of appetite—listlessness—nervousness—uncertain temper—loss of interest in work and in play—these are some of the symptoms of blood poverty.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan
"The Red Blood Builder"

A true tonic and general health builder. It paves the way for the return of vigor, appetite, and weight. It charges the blood with iron. And it creates thousands of strong, new red cells in the blood.

Blood that is rich in iron and red cells scours out poisons and waste tissue. It rejuvenates every organ of the body.

If you are run down or anemic, if any member of your family—young or old—is in need of a general tonic, try a course of Pepto-Mangan.

Pepto-Mangan is pleasant to the taste, and it does not disturb digestion; it cannot injure the teeth. For sale at all drug stores.
